Lone Man Is Now Blocking San Rafael Redevelopment

By NELS JOHNSON

San Rafael's controversial, $6 million redevelopment project, which has withstood bitter challenges by the Marin County Board of Supervisors and Marin Community College District board, now faces the test of a lone plaintiff.

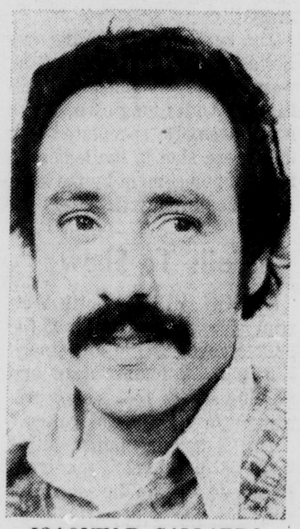
The legal challenge of a soft-spoken, 32-year-old San Rafael man is virtually all that is blocking the mammoth urban renewal project.

And Joaquin P. Gallardo of 202 Auburn Street, an unincorporated area just outside city limits, doesn't intend to give up without a fight. "I'm the last tackler in the defense, trying to prevent a touchdown," he said.

Gallardo, appearing before the city council last night, was told the city will begin "full scale litigation starting immediately" to force him to drop the suit.

Steven Goldfarb, redevelopment attorney, said last night the Gallardo matter is "serious, a very real threat," and said the man may draw support from redevelopment foes. Goldfarb said he will seek to quash an injunction preventing the redevelopment program from proceeding, next Monday in Marin Superior Court. In addition, he predicted an August court battle between Gallardo and the city if the suit isn't dropped.

William J. Bielser, city manager and redevelopment executive director, said the redevelopment program stands to lose $400,000 in tax incremental funding if the suit isn't dropped. Such tax incremental funding, the means by which redevelopment is financed, must be spent the year it is generated or be lost forever, he said.



JOAQUIN P. GALLARDO
Redevelopment holdout

Tax incremental funding generated by increases in the redevelopment area this year must be spent by July 1, 1974, according to Bielser.

The city will ask the court to order Gallardo to post a "substantial" bond to assure that no tax incremental funds will be lost the first year, Bielser said.

Gallardo, a county human rights commissioner and president of the Lomita Park Homeowners Association, signed the suit challenging the city's redevelopment plan months ago, along with the board of supervisors, the college district board, and two other citizens. The county, the college district and the two other citizens have since reached agreement with the city, and have dropped their legal challenges.

Now, Gallardo, who grew up in San Rafael, stands alone in the redevelopment squabble. "No one ever approached me even though my name was on the suit for months. I guess they thought I was with the college district," he said, noting the two other citizens who originally signed the suit were also college trustees.

Gallardo said he wasn't even aware of the redevelopment controversy when asked by the county legal staff to join in filing suit against the plan months ago.

(Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino told the Independent-Journal yesterday that Gallardo, brother of a legal secretary in the county counsel's office, was asked to sign the suit to "keep all our legal bases covered in the matter." Citizen cosigners were solicited, he said, because it was deemed necessary that county taxpayers, as well as taxing agencies, be represented in any redevelopment litigation.

(Godino said that because the board of supervisors has withdrawn its objections to the plan, and since "they can't pay me while I try a private lawsuit," he has asked that Gallardo drop his suit.

("Although ethically I'm committed to him, I will ask the court to release me" from representing Gallardo if the suit is not dropped within a week, Godino said.)

Gallardo, who works as a "bilingual community liaison officer" for the College of Marin and is chairman of La Familia, an organization of Spanish-speaking citizens, told the Independent-Journal yesterday that the city's redevelopment plan is oriented toward the business community "and not the people."

Among "concerns" he is urging the city to consider are a lack of provision for low and moderate income housing in the Senate Approves Alaskan Pipeline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted overwhelmingly today to give the green light for construction of the $3.5 billion trans-Alaskan oil pipeline.

The vote was 77 to 20.

It passed and sent to the House a bill that would grant a right-of-way across public lands for the 789-mile pipeline from Alaskan Arctic Coast to the ice-free port of Valdez.

A short time earlier, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew broke a 49-49 tie and cast the deciding vote today as the Senate voted to block further environmentalist court challenges to construction of a Trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

Agnew's vote blocked further consideration of an earlier decision to declare that the pipeline met requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

It was the first time that Agnew had voted to break a tie since taking office in 1969.

The amendment offered by Sens. Mike Gravel and Ted Stevens of Alaska was meant to exempt the project from the 1969 environmental law. Stevens sought unsuccessfully to amend it further to provide for a three-judge panel to determine the constitutionality of such an exemption.

That amendment was defeated by a 54-43 vote.

The original amendment to exempt the project from the environmental act was approved, 49 to 48.

The vote in which Agnew broke the tie came on a motion by Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., to reconsider the earlier vote.

Stevens' unsuccessful move to further amend the bill to provide for the three-judge panel came after Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., warned that the Gravel-Stevens amendment would not head off court challenges.

"It is my guess that the courts will still wish to make their own findings as to whether the environment impact statement is adequate or the other requirements of NEPA have been met," Jackson said.

Jackson said further that there might be "more litigation and more delay" over the ques-

Secret Service Men Clam Up On Bugging

Refuse Senate Answers On Direct Nixon Order

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the direct orders of President Nixon, Secret Service officials today refused to answer questions of the Senate Watergate Committee about the tape recordings of Nixon's private conversations over the past two years.

The committee, after a lengthy executive session that interrupted crucial public testimony from Nixon's former personal lawyer, Herbert W. Kalmbach, promptly wrote Nixon asking his "cooperation" in making the tapes and the Secret Service witnesses available.

"I certainly hope this course of action will bear fruit and that we will obtain access to the records and tapes and to the witnesses relevant to this investigation in a manner satisfactory to all concerned," Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., said as the afternoon session of the nationally televised hearings resumed one hour late.

Ervin said that the committee had subpoenaed "certain agents of the Secret Service" to testify after ex-White House aide Alexander P. Butterfield disclosed yesterday that —on Nixon's orders —the President's telephones and offices had been equipped with sophisticated listening devices since the spring of 1971.

But, said Ervin, when three Secret Service officials arrived for private questioning in answer to the subpoenas today, they cited a letter Nixon had written Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and refused to testify.

"I hereby direct that no officer or agent of the Secret Service shall give testimony to congressional committees concerning matters observed or learned while performing protective functions for the President or in their duties at the White House," Nixon said in a letter to Shultz dated yesterday.

"This applies to the Senate Select Committee which is investigating matters relating to the Watergate break-in and the current efforts which I am informed are being made to subpoena present or former members of the White House detail of the Secret Service.

"You will please communicate this information to the director of the Secret Service and either you or he should then personally notify the chairman of the Senate Select Committee. You should further advise the chairman that requests for information on procedures in the White House will be given prompt consideration when received by me."

The letter was on White House stationery and appeared to be signed personally by Nixon, who is recovering from viral pneumonia at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Seizing on the last sentence of Nixon's letter, Ervin said the committee had decided against trying to force the unnamed Secret Service officials to testify and would attempt to negotiate directly with Nixon.

Nixon and Ervin had been scheduled to meet this week about the prospect of granting the committee access to Watergate-related presidential papers —which Nixon has refused to do —but the meeting was postponed when the President was hospitalized Thursday night.

Budget Is Adopted; No Rate Change

The Corte Madera Town Council last night adopted a fiscal 1973-74 budget of $1,435,298, which will require a tax rate of $1.37 per $100 assessed valuation, unchanged from last year's levy. (See another story, page 19.)

Then, sitting as the Corte Madera Sanitary District board, the council adopted a sanitary district budget of $336,370, which will need a tax rate of 35 cents per $100 also unchanged from last year.

Town finance director Frank Bigley said assessed valuation within Corte Madera has increased 6.1 per cent this year, so tax bills will be somewhat bigger than the current total.

The amount of money to be raised from local taxes is $460,310, said Bigley, with revenue for the remainder coming from other sources, including sales tax.

The budget total is an increase of $164,135 over the current year's total of $1,271,163. During budget sessions the council raised employees' salaries by 5 per cent and gave themselves a $30 a month raise, bringing their pay to $180 a month.

According to Bigley the breakdown of the town's budget is general government, $334,004; public safety, $516,299; public works, $430,805; library, $77,253; recreation, $56,937; reserves, $20,000.

The sanitary district's budget includes an operational fund of $121,182, capital outlay of $150,680 and debt retirement, $64,508.

Fairfax Budget Wins Nod From Council

The Fairfax Town Council last night adopted a record $811,424 budget for 1973-74, about a 10 per cent increase over last year's $725,999 spending program. (Another Fairfax Town Council story, page 11.)

The council approved the spending increase on a 3-2 vote (Councilmen Lee Nelder and Robert R. Souza dissenting) after negotiations with town police officers failed to end in an agreement.

The budget consists of $719,774 in operating expenditures, and a $91,650 allotment for capital improvements.

Town Mgr. Robert E. Crowe estimated the tax rate will be about $1.81 per $100 assessed valuation, compared to $1.69 last year. The exact amount, he said, will be known later this week after he meets with bank officials concerning the cost of redeeming the $300,000 bond issue approved by voters this year for improved public safety facilities. He estimated the bond repayment cost at 12 cents on the tax rate, thus arriving at the $1.81 estimate.

Assessed valuations for property had risen 3 per cent in the past year. Crowe estimates that property taxes will generate $325,325 of the estimated revenue.

Nelder and Souza were dissatisfied with the failure to agree with representatives of the Fairfax Police Officers' Association. Nelder said he felt the town should pay its employees "all we can possibly afford."

Earlier, Nelder had proposed that $9,000 be chopped from the councilmen's budget to make more funds available for further salary increases. This proposal, which would have been sent to the voters at the next election, would have eliminated the salary that councilmen now receive. Although supported by Souza, Nelder's motion was defeated, 3-2.

After the vote, Councilman Albert E. Gately said to Nelder, "Now that we've got the politics out of the way, can we get

Phase IV Rules Due Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Phase IV economic controls will be unveiled Wednesday, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said today after conferring with President Nixon.

"We have all the presidential guidance we need," Shultz told reporters on emerging from a two-hour meeting in Nixon's suite at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Shultz said previously that the announcement would come after the stock markets close.

Expert Feels Chapter Didn't Phone Threat

By LARRY MOWELL

Aprofessor from the University of California at Los Angeles testified today in Marin's first trial based on voiceprints that he concluded it was "highly unlikely" that Steven C. Chapter made the anonymous bomb threat he is charged with.

Dr. Peter Ladefoged, a professor of phonetics for 20 years and a recognized expert voiceprint examiner, said, "I just cannot see how anybody could think that they are likely to be the same. The professor said he had compared the anonymous bomb threat with parts of two recording of Chapter's voice. "My opinion was that it was very unlikely they were the same voice," he said.

The professor further said that a court-ordered sample in which Chapter repeated the bomb threat was not spoken so rapidly that it could not be used in a voiceprint identification. The voiceprint examiner who had identified Chapter originally had said he had trouble identifying Chapter because of the speed of his voice.

Ladefoged also said that he is "reasonably sure" there is some dispute in the scientific community over the reliability of voiceprint identification in criminal cases.

Ladefoged agreed in part

Smog Board Softness Is Denied

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — Top state smog officials today rejected charges that the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District takes a permissive attitude toward excessive industrial pollution when caused accidentally.

The charges were made almost nine months ago by a group of Richmond citizens, and a prompt investigation was promised subsequently on Nov. 21 by the board's emissions and control committee.

The citizen groups appealed to the state board after district directors spurned their long campaign to close what they term loopholes in district smog controls. The state board's decision to investigate the charges was contrary to a recommendation by its own staff that it do nothing.

The board's two-member committee, in a 55-page report, concluded none of the charges by the citizens groups could be proven. It recommended the board take no further action.

The recommendation was to come before the board today at its meeting in the State Building.

The members of the committee are R. Robert Brattain of Pebble Beach, a consulting engineer and retired researcher for Shell Oil Co., and Allen B. Lemmon, retired deputy director of the state Agriculture Department.

Their report conceded

Judge Frees Hub Men Jailed In LSD Raid

By GEORGE NEVIN

A Marin judge yesterday ruled that a search warrant which led to the arrest of two San Anselmo men and the seizure of about 12,000 tablets of LSD was improperly obtained.

Municipal Judge David R. Baty thereupon ordered the evidence found at their home suppressed and the two, Harry Francis Fergerstrom Jr., 24, and Dennis Valentino, 27, freed immediately. They had been in county jail since June 22.

As a sidelight to the case, Judge Baty ordered Deputy Dist. Atty. Kathryn D. Mitchell to appear before him at 2 p.m. Friday for a hearing on whether she was in contempt of court last week when she reportedly swore at him during a heated confrontation in Baty's chambers.

Miss Mitchell, prosecuting the case, reportedly became angry with Baty over his refusal to release a San Jose policeman from testifying during a five-day hearing in the case.

She went to Baty's chambers Thursday, swore at him, and accused him of mishandling the case. Her remarks were read into the court record Friday.

Baty said there was "no probable cause for issuance of the search warrant." He said two San Jose police officers involved in the deal made misrepresentations to Judge Warren McGuire in order to obtain a search warrant.

The two long-haired men walked out of jail shortly after Judge Baty's ruling.

According to the court file, two San Jose narcotics officers, Sgt. Larry Fernsworth and Harry Stengel, arranged to buy LSD from two men identified as Steve Miller and William Geary, in San Jose.

On June 22, the officers were told to meet Miller and Geary in San Anselmo, where the deal would be consummated. Fernsworth and Stengel were to buy 1,000 "hits" of LSD for $200, and then buy 9,000 more for another $1,500 if they found the quality acceptable.

While Geary, Fernworth and Stengel waited at Zebedee's restaurant, 42 Red Hill Avenue, Miller disappeared on foot, telling them he was going to a nearby house to get the acid, and returned some 40 minutes later with 1,000 doses. He and Geary then were arrested.

Then, the files show, the two were taken to the San Anselmo police station where Fernsworth promised Miller he'd put in a good word for him if he told officers where he got the LSD.

Miller agreed, but led officers on three wild goose chases before finally pointing out a house at 176 Oak Springs Drive, which he said he thought was the one he'd been taken to.

The location of the house played a major part in suppression of the evidence, because the fact that Miller told officers it was "just around the corner" when it actually was three miles away was an indication of his unreliability. Instead of walking there, Miller originally

San Rafael Leashes Unfriendly Dogs

Tough dog controls were set last night by the San Rafael City Council.

The new ordinance requires all dogs be leashed when in the "public locale," and allows them to roam freely only on the private property of their owners, or on the private property of other consenting landowners. (See another San Rafael City Council story, page 18.)

The ordinance also limits the number of dogs allowable per household to three, and provides for exemptions to families now having more than three dogs upon completion of a $10 kennel inspection by the county Humane Society.

Litters of dogs will be exempt from the limitation up to an age of six months.

In addition, the ordinance allows for the impoundment of dogs deemed vicious, and provides for a $25 daily fine for owners who fail to surrender a vicious or biting dog.

Owners of dogs found harassing wildlife or livestock will be fined $50 under the ordinance. The measure will also reduce from three to one the number of signatures needed from adults to spark a humane society investigation of howling, yelping or barking dogs.

The council, in the absence of vacationing Mayor C. Paul Bettini and Councilman Jack G. Nixon, unanimously endorsed the ordinance, seen as a supplement to current city dog regulations.

A parade of citizens urged the council to support the new dog control ordinance.

James Maloney of Peacock Gap called the city dog situation "absolutely outrageous," saying a roaming mongrel had cornered a child in his neighborhood two days ago. A man who said he lived on Santa Margarita Drive claimed he had ripped up front yard turf and replaced it with lava rock because of the "dog residue problem."

Others cited instances of dogs biting or attacking children in other Marin cities.

Two residents said it was unfair to penalize considerate dog owners for the rising tide of roaming dogs in San Rafael. One girl, who said she needs her dog for security during jaunts through the city, called the leash law "awkward" for those who like to romp with their pets. Another youth suggested city leaders should scrap the measure in favor of forcing lackadaisical or inconsiderate dog owners to go to dog obedience schools.

Councilmen, after approving the ordinance as prepared by City Atty. Fred C. Robbins, said they will include a provision making it illegal for an owner to allow a dog to defecate on the property of others, when the measure comes up for adoption on Aug. 6.

The city council last May ordered preparation of the new ordinance and hiked impound fees for roaming canines after John Gill, director of the county humane society, suggested tougher leash laws.

The budget consists of $719,774 in operating expenditures, and a $91,650 allotment for capital improvements.

Town Mgr. Robert E. Crowe estimated the tax rate will be about $1.81 per $100 assessed valuation, compared to $1.69 last year. The exact amount, he said, will be known later this week after he meets with bank officials concerning the cost of redeeming the $300,000 bond issue approved by voters this year for improved public safety facilities. He estimated the bond repayment cost at 12 cents on the tax rate, thus arriving at the $1.81 estimate.

Assessed valuations for property had risen 3 per cent in the past year. Crowe estimates that property taxes will generate $325,325 of the estimated revenue.

Nelder and Souza were dissatisfied with the failure to agree with representatives of the Fairfax Police Officers' Association. Nelder said he felt the town should pay its employees "all we can possibly afford."

Earlier, Nelder had proposed that $9,000 be chopped from the councilmen's budget to make more funds available for further salary increases. This proposal, which would have been sent to the voters at the next election, would have eliminated the salary that councilmen now receive. Although supported by Souza, Nelder's motion was defeated, 3-2.

After the vote, Councilman Albert E. Gately said to Nelder, "Now that we've got the politics out of the way, can we get

Phase IV Rules Due Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Phase IV economic controls will be unveiled Wednesday, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said today after conferring with President Nixon.

"We have all the presidential guidance we need," Shultz told reporters on emerging from a two-hour meeting in Nixon's suite at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Shultz said previously that the announcement would come after the stock markets close.

By LARRY MOWELL

A professor from the University of California at Los Angeles testified today in Marin's first trial based on voiceprints that he concluded it was "highly unlikely" that Steven C. Chapter made the anonymous bomb threat he is charged with.

Dr. Peter Ladefoged, a professor of phonetics for 20 years and a recognized expert voiceprint examiner, said, "I just cannot see how anybody could think that they are likely to be the same. The professor said he had compared the anonymous bomb threat with parts of two recording of Chapter's voice. "My opinion was that it was very unlikely they were the same voice," he said.

The professor further said that a court-ordered sample in which Chapter repeated the bomb threat was not spoken so rapidly that it could not be used in a voiceprint identification. The voiceprint examiner who had identified Chapter originally had said he had trouble identifying Chapter because of the speed of his voice.

Ladefoged also said that he is "reasonably sure" there is some dispute in the scientific community over the reliability of voiceprint identification in criminal cases.

Ladefoged agreed in part

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — Top state smog officials today rejected charges that the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District takes a permissive attitude toward excessive industrial pollution when caused accidentally.

The charges were made almost nine months ago by a group of Richmond citizens, and a prompt investigation was promised subsequently on Nov. 21 by the board's emissions and control committee.

The citizen groups appealed to the state board after district directors spurned their long campaign to close what they term loopholes in district smog controls. The state board's decision to investigate the charges was contrary to a recommendation by its own staff that it do nothing.

The board's two-member committee, in a 55-page report, concluded none of the charges by the citizens groups could be proven. It recommended the board take no further action.

The recommendation was to come before the board today at its meeting in the State Building.

The members of the committee are R. Robert Brattain of Pebble Beach, a consulting engineer and retired researcher for Shell Oil Co., and Allen B. Lemmon, retired deputy director of the state Agriculture Department.

Their report conceded

Judge Frees Hub Men Jailed In LSD Raid

By GEORGE NEVIN

A Marin judge yesterday ruled that a search warrant which led to the arrest of two San Anselmo men and the seizure of about 12,000 tablets of LSD was improperly obtained.

Municipal Judge David R. Baty thereupon ordered the evidence found at their home suppressed and the two, Harry Francis Fergerstrom Jr., 24, and Dennis Valentino, 27, freed immediately. They had been in county jail since June 22.

As a sidelight to the case, Judge Baty ordered Deputy Dist. Atty. Kathryn D. Mitchell to appear before him at 2 p.m. Friday for a hearing on whether she was in contempt of court last week when she reportedly swore at him during a heated confrontation in Baty's chambers.

Miss Mitchell, prosecuting the case, reportedly became angry with Baty over his refusal to release a San Jose policeman from testifying during a five-day hearing in the case.

She went to Baty's chambers Thursday, swore at him, and accused him of mishandling the case. Her remarks were read into the court record Friday.

Baty said there was "no probable cause for issuance of the search warrant." He said two San Jose police officers involved in the deal made misrepresentations to Judge Warren McGuire in order to obtain a search warrant.

The two long-haired men walked out of jail shortly after Judge Baty's ruling.

According to the court file, two San Jose narcotics officers, Sgt. Larry Fernsworth and Harry Stengel, arranged to buy LSD from two men identified as Steve Miller and William Geary, in San Jose.

On June 22, the officers were told to meet Miller and Geary in San Anselmo, where the deal would be consummated. Fernsworth and Stengel were to buy 1,000 "hits" of LSD for $200, and then buy 9,000 more for another $1,500 if they found the quality acceptable.

While Geary, Fernworth and Stengel waited at Zebedee's restaurant, 42 Red Hill Avenue, Miller disappeared on foot, telling them he was going to a nearby house to get the acid, and returned some 40 minutes later with 1,000 doses. He and Geary then were arrested.

Then, the files show, the two were taken to the San Anselmo police station where Fernsworth promised Miller he'd put in a good word for him if he told officers where he got the LSD.

Miller agreed, but led officers on three wild goose chases before finally pointing out a house at 176 Oak Springs Drive, which he said he thought was the one he'd been taken to.

The location of the house played a major part in suppression of the evidence, because the fact that Miller told officers it was "just around the corner" when it actually was three miles away was an indication of his unreliability. Instead of walking there, Miller originally

San Rafael Leashes Unfriendly Dogs

Tough dog controls were set last night by the San Rafael City Council.

The new ordinance requires all dogs be leashed when in the "public locale," and allows them to roam freely only on the private property of their owners, or on the private property of other consenting landowners. (See another San Rafael City Council story, page 18.)

The ordinance also limits the number of dogs allowable per household to three, and provides for exemptions to families now having more than three dogs upon completion of a $10 kennel inspection by the county Humane Society.

Litters of dogs will be exempt from the limitation up to an age of six months.

In addition, the ordinance allows for the impoundment of dogs deemed vicious, and provides for a $25 daily fine for owners who fail to surrender a vicious or biting dog.

Owners of dogs found harassing wildlife or livestock will be fined $50 under the ordinance. The measure will also reduce from three to one the number of signatures needed from adults to spark a humane society investigation of howling, yelping or barking dogs.

The council, in the absence of vacationing Mayor C. Paul Bettini and Councilman Jack G. Nixon, unanimously endorsed the ordinance, seen as a supplement to current city dog regulations.

A parade of citizens urged the council to support the new dog control ordinance.

James Maloney of Peacock Gap called the city dog situation "absolutely outrageous," saying a roaming mongrel had cornered a child in his neighborhood two days ago. A man who said he lived on Santa Margarita Drive claimed he had ripped up front yard turf and replaced it with lava rock because of the "dog residue problem."

Two residents said it was unfair to penalize considerate dog owners for the rising tide of roaming dogs in San Rafael. One girl, who said she needs her dog for security during jaunts through the city, called the leash law "awkward" for those who like to romp with their pets. Another youth suggested city leaders should scrap the measure in favor of forcing lackadaisical or inconsiderate dog owners to go to dog obedience schools.

Councilmen, after approving the ordinance as prepared by City Atty. Fred C. Robbins, said they will include a provision making it illegal for an owner to allow a dog to defecate on the property of others, when the measure comes up for adoption on Aug. 6.

The city council last May ordered preparation of the new ordinance and hiked impound fees for roaming canines after John Gill, director of the county humane society, suggested tougher leash laws.

Afghanistan Revolt Topples Monarchy

NEW DELHI (UPI) — A military regime seized power in Afghanistan today and abolished the monarchy while King Mohammed Zahir Shah, 58, was vacationing in Europe. Diplomatic reports reaching New Delhi said heavy fighting broke out in the capital city of Kabul.

Radio Kabul, controlled by the new regime, proclaimed the Himalayan kingdom a republic and said all was peaceful. But diplomatic reports reaching New Delhi told of fighting at the royal palace and of widespread arrests of officials and policemen loyal to the king.

Former Prime Minister Sardar Mohammed Daud, the king's brother-in-law, said in a broadcast on behalf of what he called "the military regime" that he and his colleagues acted to end the "pseudo-democracy" of Zahir Shah and establish a "genuine democracy."

The king, who came to the throne as a 19-year-old schoolboy when his father was assassinated 40 years ago, was reported to be in Rome for medical treatment after a two-week vacation in England where he dined with the Queen mother, Queen Elizabeth.

Afghanistan, a landlocked nation of mountains and deserts, is largely peopled by nomadic tribes who roam almost at will across the boundaries of neighboring China, Iran, Pakistan and Russia and throng the streets of Kabul, their rifles slung over their shoulders, their heavily veiled women trailing respectfully behind.

The country lives largely on foreign aid from its neighbors —and the United States —and is famous for the open street sales of hashish and marijuana which has made it a mecca for hippies from throughout the world. It is so backward that a foreign diplomat said recently the king was leading Afghanistan into the 16th Century.

Diplomatic cables reaching New Delhi this afternoon reported that small arms fire was heard throughout Kabul during the early morning hours and that a heavy firefight took place between rebel soldiers and police outside police headquarters at Damazang Circle in downtown Kabul.

The diplomatic reports said Radio Afghanistan was broadcasting martial music interspersed with the following announcement:

"This is an announcement of the military government of Afghanistan: Stay off the streets and do not interfere with the soldiers."

As late as 7 a.m. (5 p.m. PDT yesterday) foreign diplomats reported hearing sporadic small arms fire inside the royal palace in the center of Kabul.

The diplomats reported that Prince Abdul Wali, son-in-law of the King and commander of the Kabul garrison, had been arrested and his home heavily damaged by gunfire. They also reported that the minister of defense had been taken into custody and said that a brigadier general was seen being led away under arrest by rebel paratroopers. The diplomatic cables reported that a large number of politce were seen under military detention in downtown Kabul, and military squads were stopping and searching buses and cars and removing all policemen.

The diplomats also reported the presence of tanks around key government buildings in the Afganistan capital.

Most of the shooting appeared to have tapered off by the time Daud went on Kabul Radio at 7:40 a.m. and declared Afganistan a republic.

Daud, who is married to one of King Zahir's sisters and is also reported to be a blood cousin of the king, was prime minister of Afganistan from 1953 to 1962 when he was fired for his efforts to make Afghanistan democratic.

He said that for the future prosperity of the country he found it necessary to establish genuine democracy.

He said he and his colleagues had made proposals to the king more than 10 yars ago to establish a genuine democracy to save the future prosperity of the country but their hopes were dashed.

"The upshot of all this was that instead of democracy—peoples government and constitutional monarchy—they got a despotic regime."

Daud was dismissed in 1963 after he had taken a number of moves designed to give the country of 17 million persons some semblance of modern democracy, first with a constitution in 1964 and parliamentary elections in 1965. Parliament rarely met, and when it did it accomplished almost nothing.

The coup, in ending one of the weakest parliamentary systems in the world, also toppled the elected government of Prime Minister Musa Safiq. This government, like all others over the last 40 years, operated under the watchful eye and powerful thumb of King Zahir.

The 6,000-foot-high capital city of Kabul was humming with the usual summer influx of Western tourists searching for either the plentiful cheap hashish sold in kilogram (2.2 pounds) bricks by taxidrivers, or for archeological treasures.

Afghanistan is a backward nation, and a diplomat attending a recent United Nations-sponsored seminar on narcotics control commented that "we are watching a nation about to spring right into the 16th Century."

Demand Turned Down To Seat Peron Now

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The provisional government of Raul A. Lastiri ignored demands by leftwing guerrillas today that it install onetime strongman Juan D. Peron as president without awaiting elections.

Lastiri's interior minister assumed his post last night by pledging fair and peaceful elections, but did not set a date for them. The elections are expected sometime within 45 days.

But guerrilla organizations said they were not satisfied with the delay.

"General Peron must take over immediately," said a statement signed by two of the most active guerrilla organizations, "because the presence of Lastiri as provisional president allows the imperialist conspiracy to continue and means a return to the (military) regime..."

Peron is expected to seek the presidency—and is heavily favored to win it—in elections made necessary by the resignation last week of Hector J. Campora.

Lastiri was sworn in four days ago to replace Campora, who resigned after only 49 days in power. He quit in a move designed to open the way for Peron's return to the presidency he lost in 1955 in a military revolt.

Since his ouster, the 77-year-old Peron had lived mostly in Spain. He returned home last month after Campora took office. Campora was handpicked by Peron for the office and pledged that if elected, he would give Peron real power.

Guerrilla organizations assailed Lastiri as an "imperialist agent" and accused him of nepotism.

The guerrilla statement demanding Peron's immediate assumption of power was signed by the "Revolutionary Armed Forces" (FAR) and "The Montoneros," two of the groups most active in political violence in recent months.

Peron did not comment on the demand.

Behind-the-scenes political activity concentrated on the likely candidate for the vice presidency on the ticket Peron would lead.

Ricardo Balbin, once a bitter foe of Peron and president of the Radical Civic Union party, was reported among the leading contenders. Political sources said Balbin might accept—a conciliatory gesture in the face of serious economic and social crises in Argentina.

Dollar Reported Stifling European Plane Makers

PARIS (UPI) — The drop in the dollar's price is hurting European aircraft manufacturers and, according to government and industry officials, giving U.S. manufacturers a big boast overseas.

The officials warned that the Americans will soon dominate the European market unless governments there buy only European aircraft.

"The devaluation of the dollar is a true disaster for the French aviation industry," said Claude Beguelin, head of the Communist-led union at a major government-controlled aircraft company.

Ignoring pressure by Paris, the Belgian national Sabena airline last weekend decided to buy 10 Boeing 737s instead of the Marcel-Dassault Mercure 100 built by France. Sabena officials said there was no contest.

"We can get two Boeings for the price of one Mercure," a Sabena official said.

French aircraft industry officials said they could not meet the Boeing bid that—after successive dollar slumps overseas—made each 737 cost $2.7 million less than a Mercure 100.

The 737 is a twin-engine jet that can carry 115 passengers and has a range of more than 1,300 miles. The Mercure has a 140-passenger capacity, but a range of only 620 miles.

Sabena's move came shortly after the Scandinavian Airways System (SAS) decided to buy 12 McDonnell-Douglas DC9-50s to replace its Caravelles, the French-built twin-engined passenger planes.

Meets with Japanese

Jews Form Educational Foundation

GENEVA (UPI) — Major Jewish organizations today established the first international foundation for Jewish education, with a capital of $5 million.

The foundation, with headquarters in Jerusalem, will provide educational materials for Jewish schools around the world, publish textbooks and a Jewish history over the past 150 years, provide training courses for teachers and conduct seminars.

Louis Pincus of Jerusalem, newly elected chairman of the World Conference of Jewish Organizations which set up the foundation at a two-day meeting here, said the step was taken "because of the gravity of and the urgency of the increasing erosion of Jewish values, culture and consciousness."

Pincus, who succeeded Dr. William A. Wexler of Savannah, Ga., as chairman of the World Conference, said the $5 million capital will come from the American Joint Distribution Committee, the government of Israel and the World Zionist Organization.

In other action at the close of its meeting, the Conference approved a resolution demanding that the Soviet Union "remove all restraints" on the emigration of Jews and praised the "heroic steadfastness of Soviet Jews who in the face of discrimination, harassment and intimidation have asserted their identity with their people and perservered in their endeavors to join their brethren in Israel."

Minorities Gain On Federal Payroll

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Blacks, Spanish-surnamed, oriental and Indian Americans make up 20 per cent of the federal civilian work force, the U.S. Civil Service Commission said in a report today.

The commission said it was the largest percentage at any time in history. It said minority workers hold 509,307 of the total government jobs, compared to 502,000 in November, 1971.

House Votes To Ban Some Food Freezes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted to give the agriculture secretary power to take off the freeze in prices on any foods which are in short supply.

The surprise action came yesterday without debate on a voice vote as the House considered the omnibus farm bill.

Under the amendment, offered by Rep. Harold V. Froelich, R-Wis., action to boost controlled wholesale or retail food prices could be triggered if the agriculture secretary told the President that the supply of a particular item would be "reduced to unacceptably low levels" if it were kept under a freeze.

Once the President had that certification he would be compelled to make "appropriate adjustments" in price regulations for any items covered by the certification of an existing or threatened shortage.

Froelich told newsmen he was "very surprised" no other congressman rose to debate this amendment before it was approved.

However, Rep. Charles M. Teague, R-Calif., ranking Republican member on the House Agriculture Committee, indicated the matter was handled routinely because "frankly, I think something like this (to allow increases in food prices) will be in Phase IV."

Froelich said he believed his amendment was needed because shortages of meat, poultry and other items are developing under the current price freeze.

Administration officials have indicated some increases in retail and wholesale prices will be permitted in Phase IV so that increases in raw farm product costs can be fully or partially passed on to consumers.

Earlier yesterday, farm bloc leaders stripped the cotton sections from the farm bill to pave the way for Senate-House consideration of an eventual compromise. The action nullified the earlier House crackdown on payments to big cotton growers. It also wiped out a House vote to end a program of $10 million a year in federal grants to a controversial cotton promotion program.

The Senate had voted to continue the grants, so the final fate of the program will also be left up to a conference committee.

Cooperation On Energy Is Pledged

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan and the United States ended two days of economic talks today with a pledge to cooperate in dealing with the world's energy crisis.

The two nations also discussed an exchange of visits by President Nixon and Japanese Emperor Hirohito, but Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira told a news conference, "We merely agreed this matter should be left to the judgment of the two heads of state."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who headed the American delegation to the ninth meeting of the United States-Japan Joint Economic Committee, was scheduled to leave Tokyo tomorrow for a three-day visit to South Korea.

"The Committee affirmed the importance to both Japan and the United States of a continuing and broad exchange of views on the problem of ensuring future supplies of petroleum, enriched uranium and other energy sources," a final communique said.

Rogers and Ohira agreed on a joint approach to the question of investing in development of oil and natural gas resources in Soviet Siberia, including a billion-dollar, 4,800-mile pipeline from the Tyumen oil fields in the Urals to the Pacific Coast.

They agreed to hold a conference of experts of the two countries on oil problems. They also pushed ahead with plans for joint investment in a billion-dollar plant in the United States for enriched uranium fuel.

Rogers told the news conference the United States regretted embarrassment to Japan caused by the Aug. 29 embargo on exports of soy products. He blamed the decision on crop failures in other countries, and said American soy production alone could not compensate for them.

"We are going to do everything to make sure we do not disappoint Japan in its reliance on America as a supplier of agricultural products," Rogers said.

Rogers said the United States has no intention of pulling its forces out of Taiwan and South Korea for the time being.

"We consider that the strength of our forces in the Pacific should be maintained," the Secretary of State said.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Unrest Returns

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen shot two young men in the legs in Belfast early today and a letter bomb blew up in the face of a mailman, the army said.

Samuel Simpson, 38, was hospitalized with face and leg wounds when he opened a letter addressed to a policeman and it exploded in a post office in Londonderry, an army spokesman said.

He said Simpson tore open the letter to find where it should be redirected after it was returned marked "gone away."

The spokesman said the two Belfast men, aged 17 and 20, were found wounded in Belfast's Andersonstown Park south area. He speculated that they were shot in the legs as a form of punishment by the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Fails To Show

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnam skipped a meeting of the joint recovery team for American and Communist dead and missing troops today over protests from the U.S. delegation.

The Hanoi delegation, citing "internal problems," sent word 15 minutes before the scheduled start of the four-party Joint Military Team (JMT) meeting that it would not be there, the U.S. delegation said.

Members of the other three delegations — the United States, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong — were on hand for the meeting, the U.S. delegation said.

None of the parties elaborated on the reasons for Hanoi not showing up. However, relations bejween the U.S. and North Vietnamese delegations have worsened over the past 5½ weeks because of a dispute over regulations governing JMT flights between Saigon and Hanoi.

Boyle Loses Bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The conviction of former United Mine Workers President W. A. (Tony) Boyle for illegally giving union funds to political candidates in 1968 was upheld yesterday by the U.S. Court of Appeals.

In its decision, the appeals court rejected the argument of Boyle's attorney that the laws prohibiting union contributions to federal campaigns was unconstitutional because it infringed on the union's freedom of speech.

Boyle, 70, faces a five-year prison term and fines totaling $179,250. He has been free on bond.

Boyle, the successor to John L. Lewis as the mine workers president, was ousted from office in a court-ordered election last December. He was beaten by reform candidate Arnold Miller, a West Virginia miner.

Sierra Club Upset

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Sierra Club says the government's new clean air proposals are in "direct violation" of court decisions on the subject, and that it will seek new court instructions.

Last month the conservation group won a Supreme Court decision requiring that federal rules be adopted to help keep clean the nation's remaining clean air.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) followed up last Friday by issuing for public comment four alternate proposals for limiting air pollution. The rules had to do with limiting emissions of sulfur dioxide and particulate matter mainly by industry.

Yesterday Lawrence I. Moss, president of the Sierra Club, said these proposals did not go nearly far enough.

The diplomats reported that Prince Abdul Wali, son-in-law of the King and commander of the Kabul garrison, had been arrested and his home heavily damaged by gunfire. They also reported that the minister of defense had been taken into custody and said that a brigadier general was seen being led away under arrest by rebel paratroopers. The diplomatic cables reported that a large number of politce were seen under military detention in downtown Kabul, and military squads were stopping and searching buses and cars and removing all policemen.

The diplomats also reported the presence of tanks around key government buildings in the Afganistan capital.

Most of the shooting appeared to have tapered off by the time Daud went on Kabul Radio at 7:40 a.m. and declared Afganistan a republic.

Daud, who is married to one of King Zahir's sisters and is also reported to be a blood cousin of the king, was prime minister of Afganistan from 1953 to 1962 when he was fired for his efforts to make Afghanistan democratic.

He said that for the future prosperity of the country he found it necessary to establish genuine democracy.

He said he and his colleagues had made proposals to the king more than 10 yars ago to establish a genuine democracy to save the future prosperity of the country but their hopes were dashed.

"The upshot of all this was that instead of democracy—peoples government and constitutional monarchy—they got a despotic regime."

Daud was dismissed in 1963 after he had taken a number of moves designed to give the country of 17 million persons some semblance of modern democracy, first with a constitution in 1964 and parliamentary elections in 1965. Parliament rarely met, and when it did it accomplished almost nothing.

The coup, in ending one of the weakest parliamentary systems in the world, also toppled the elected government of Prime Minister Musa Safiq. This government, like all others over the last 40 years, operated under the watchful eye and powerful thumb of King Zahir.

The 6,000-foot-high capital city of Kabul was humming with the usual summer influx of Western tourists searching for either the plentiful cheap hashish sold in kilogram (2.2 pounds) bricks by taxidrivers, or for archeological treasures.

Afghanistan is a backward nation, and a diplomat attending a recent United Nations-sponsored seminar on narcotics control commented that "we are watching a nation about to spring right into the 16th Century."

Demand Turned Down To Seat Peron Now

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The provisional government of Raul A. Lastiri ignored demands by leftwing guerrillas today that it install onetime strongman Juan D. Peron as president without awaiting elections.

Lastiri's interior minister assumed his post last night by pledging fair and peaceful elections, but did not set a date for them. The elections are expected sometime within 45 days.

But guerrilla organizations said they were not satisfied with the delay.

"General Peron must take over immediately," said a statement signed by two of the most active guerrilla organizations, "because the presence of Lastiri as provisional president allows the imperialist conspiracy to continue and means a return to the (military) regime..."

Peron is expected to seek the presidency—and is heavily favored to win it—in elections made necessary by the resignation last week of Hector J. Campora.

Lastiri was sworn in four days ago to replace Campora, who resigned after only 49 days in power. He quit in a move designed to open the way for Peron's return to the presidency he lost in 1955 in a military revolt.

Since his ouster, the 77-year-old Peron had lived mostly in Spain. He returned home last month after Campora took office. Campora was handpicked by Peron for the office and pledged that if elected, he would give Peron real power.

Guerrilla organizations assailed Lastiri as an "imperialist agent" and accused him of nepotism.

The guerrilla statement demanding Peron's immediate assumption of power was signed by the "Revolutionary Armed Forces" (FAR) and "The Montoneros," two of the groups most active in political violence in recent months.

Peron did not comment on the demand.

Ricardo Balbin, once a bitter foe of Peron and president of the Radical Civic Union party, was reported among the leading contenders. Political sources said Balbin might accept—a conciliatory gesture in the face of serious economic and social crises in Argentina.

Dollar Reported Stifling European Plane Makers

PARIS (UPI) — The drop in the dollar's price is hurting European aircraft manufacturers and, according to government and industry officials, giving U.S. manufacturers a big boast overseas.

The officials warned that the Americans will soon dominate the European market unless governments there buy only European aircraft.

"The devaluation of the dollar is a true disaster for the French aviation industry," said Claude Beguelin, head of the Communist-led union at a major government-controlled aircraft company.

Ignoring pressure by Paris, the Belgian national Sabena airline last weekend decided to buy 10 Boeing 737s instead of the Marcel-Dassault Mercure 100 built by France. Sabena officials said there was no contest.

"We can get two Boeings for the price of one Mercure," a Sabena official said.

French aircraft industry officials said they could not meet the Boeing bid that—after successive dollar slumps overseas—made each 737 cost $2.7 million less than a Mercure 100.

The 737 is a twin-engine jet that can carry 115 passengers and has a range of more than 1,300 miles. The Mercure has a 140-passenger capacity, but a range of only 620 miles.

Sabena's move came shortly after the Scandinavian Airways System (SAS) decided to buy 12 McDonnell-Douglas DC9-50s to replace its Caravelles, the French-built twin-engined passenger planes.

Jews Form Educational Foundation

GENEVA (UPI) — Major Jewish organizations today established the first international foundation for Jewish education, with a capital of $5 million.

The foundation, with headquarters in Jerusalem, will provide educational materials for Jewish schools around the world, publish textbooks and a Jewish history over the past 150 years, provide training courses for teachers and conduct seminars.

Louis Pincus of Jerusalem, newly elected chairman of the World Conference of Jewish Organizations which set up the foundation at a two-day meeting here, said the step was taken "because of the gravity of and the urgency of the increasing erosion of Jewish values, culture and consciousness."

Pincus, who succeeded Dr. William A. Wexler of Savannah, Ga., as chairman of the World Conference, said the $5 million capital will come from the American Joint Distribution Committee, the government of Israel and the World Zionist Organization.

In other action at the close of its meeting, the Conference approved a resolution demanding that the Soviet Union "remove all restraints" on the emigration of Jews and praised the "heroic steadfastness of Soviet Jews who in the face of discrimination, harassment and intimidation have asserted their identity with their people and perservered in their endeavors to join their brethren in Israel."

Minorities Gain On Federal Payroll

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Blacks, Spanish-surnamed, oriental and Indian Americans make up 20 per cent of the federal civilian work force, the U.S. Civil Service Commission said in a report today.

The commission said it was the largest percentage at any time in history. It said minority workers hold 509,307 of the total government jobs, compared to 502,000 in November, 1971.

House Votes To Ban Some Food Freezes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted to give the agriculture secretary power to take off the freeze in prices on any foods which are in short supply.

The surprise action came yesterday without debate on a voice vote as the House considered the omnibus farm bill.

Under the amendment, offered by Rep. Harold V. Froelich, R-Wis., action to boost controlled wholesale or retail food prices could be triggered if the agriculture secretary told the President that the supply of a particular item would be "reduced to unacceptably low levels" if it were kept under a freeze.

Once the President had that certification he would be compelled to make "appropriate adjustments" in price regulations for any items covered by the certification of an existing or threatened shortage.

Froelich told newsmen he was "very surprised" no other congressman rose to debate this amendment before it was approved.

However, Rep. Charles M. Teague, R-Calif., ranking Republican member on the House Agriculture Committee, indicated the matter was handled routinely because "frankly, I think something like this (to allow increases in food prices) will be in Phase IV."

Froelich said he believed his amendment was needed because shortages of meat, poultry and other items are developing under the current price freeze.

Administration officials have indicated some increases in retail and wholesale prices will be permitted in Phase IV so that increases in raw farm product costs can be fully or partially passed on to consumers.

Earlier yesterday, farm bloc leaders stripped the cotton sections from the farm bill to pave the way for Senate-House consideration of an eventual compromise. The action nullified the earlier House crackdown on payments to big cotton growers. It also wiped out a House vote to end a program of $10 million a year in federal grants to a controversial cotton promotion program.

The Senate had voted to continue the grants, so the final fate of the program will also be left up to a conference committee.

Cooperation On Energy Is Pledged

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan and the United States ended two days of economic talks today with a pledge to cooperate in dealing with the world's energy crisis.

The two nations also discussed an exchange of visits by President Nixon and Japanese Emperor Hirohito, but Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira told a news conference, "We merely agreed this matter should be left to the judgment of the two heads of state."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who headed the American delegation to the ninth meeting of the United States-Japan Joint Economic Committee, was scheduled to leave Tokyo tomorrow for a three-day visit to South Korea.

"The Committee affirmed the importance to both Japan and the United States of a continuing and broad exchange of views on the problem of ensuring future supplies of petroleum, enriched uranium and other energy sources," a final communique said.

Rogers and Ohira agreed on a joint approach to the question of investing in development of oil and natural gas resources in Soviet Siberia, including a billion-dollar, 4,800-mile pipeline from the Tyumen oil fields in the Urals to the Pacific Coast.

They agreed to hold a conference of experts of the two countries on oil problems. They also pushed ahead with plans for joint investment in a billion-dollar plant in the United States for enriched uranium fuel.

Rogers told the news conference the United States regretted embarrassment to Japan caused by the Aug. 29 embargo on exports of soy products. He blamed the decision on crop failures in other countries, and said American soy production alone could not compensate for them.

"We are going to do everything to make sure we do not disappoint Japan in its reliance on America as a supplier of agricultural products," Rogers said.

Rogers said the United States has no intention of pulling its forces out of Taiwan and South Korea for the time being.

"We consider that the strength of our forces in the Pacific should be maintained," the Secretary of State said.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Unrest Returns

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen shot two young men in the legs in Belfast early today and a letter bomb blew up in the face of a mailman, the army said.

Samuel Simpson, 38, was hospitalized with face and leg wounds when he opened a letter addressed to a policeman and it exploded in a post office in Londonderry, an army spokesman said.

He said Simpson tore open the letter to find where it should be redirected after it was returned marked "gone away."

The spokesman said the two Belfast men, aged 17 and 20, were found wounded in Belfast's Andersonstown Park south area. He speculated that they were shot in the legs as a form of punishment by the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Fails To Show

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnam skipped a meeting of the joint recovery team for American and Communist dead and missing troops today over protests from the U.S. delegation.

The Hanoi delegation, citing "internal problems," sent word 15 minutes before the scheduled start of the four-party Joint Military Team (JMT) meeting that it would not be there, the U.S. delegation said.

Members of the other three delegations — the United States, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong — were on hand for the meeting, the U.S. delegation said.

None of the parties elaborated on the reasons for Hanoi not showing up. However, relations bejween the U.S. and North Vietnamese delegations have worsened over the past 5½ weeks because of a dispute over regulations governing JMT flights between Saigon and Hanoi.

Boyle Loses Bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The conviction of former United Mine Workers President W. A. (Tony) Boyle for illegally giving union funds to political candidates in 1968 was upheld yesterday by the U.S. Court of Appeals.

In its decision, the appeals court rejected the argument of Boyle's attorney that the laws prohibiting union contributions to federal campaigns was unconstitutional because it infringed on the union's freedom of speech.

Boyle, 70, faces a five-year prison term and fines totaling $179,250. He has been free on bond.

Boyle, the successor to John L. Lewis as the mine workers president, was ousted from office in a court-ordered election last December. He was beaten by reform candidate Arnold Miller, a West Virginia miner.

Sierra Club Upset

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Sierra Club says the government's new clean air proposals are in "direct violation" of court decisions on the subject, and that it will seek new court instructions.

Last month the conservation group won a Supreme Court decision requiring that federal rules be adopted to help keep clean the nation's remaining clean air.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) followed up last Friday by issuing for public comment four alternate proposals for limiting air pollution. The rules had to do with limiting emissions of sulfur dioxide and particulate matter mainly by industry.

Yesterday Lawrence I. Moss, president of the Sierra Club, said these proposals did not go nearly far enough.

Nader Blames Nixon Vote Tactic For Food Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader said today increased prices for meat, dairy products and poultry are partly due to President Nixon's bid for the corn belt vote in the 1972 election.

Nader said that in late 1971, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz launched a $600 million subsidy increase to reduce the 1972 feed grain crops "in order to prop up the incomes of corn belt voters in time for the 1972 elections.

"The plan succeeded in garnering 67-70 per cent of the farm vote for President Nixon," Nader said. "Some frauds are so large that no one notices them."

In a statement prepared for delivery to the House monopolies subcommittee, Nader said "this vote was purchased at the expense of consumers everywhere, as short supplies bid up the prices of feed grain and fueled the escalation of supermarket prices for meat, poultry, and dairy products which had been initiated by the corn blight of 1970."

The consumer crusader said that the continuation of the farm program was indefensible because the benefits of subsidies and price supports "go primarily to the larger farmers who need them least."

He added "through various combinations of direct subsidy payments to farmers and allotments and other inducements to set aside land from cultivation, the prices of wheat, feed grain, cotton, milk, sugar, peanuts, rice, tobacco, wool, and even tung nuts are maintained above competitive market levels.

"The inflated feed grain prices translate directly into higher prices for meat, poultry, eggs, and dairy products," he added.

Nader said that in addition to the price support programs, marketing orders and agricultural co-ops "inflate the price of milk, tomatoes, celery, and other vegetables, fruits, and nuts."

Nader suggested the "food bill could be cut by billions" by effectively implementing unit pricing, percentage ingredient labeling, quality grade labeling and nutritional labeling.

Man Thrown Off Cycle Critical

A Kentfield man was reported in critical condition today in Marin General Hospital after being thrown from a motorcycle on San Pedro Road in San Rafael Saturday.

Jose Gallegos, 30, of 839 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, suffered head injuries and a fractured wrist in the accident at 6:45 p.m. Saturday, according to a hospital spokesman.

Police said Gallegos' motorcycle and a car driven by Jeanette Estella Anger, 31 Driftwood Court, San Rafael, collided when the car made a left turn off San Pedro Road at Loch Lomond Road.

Gallegos was thrown 10 feet.

Burglar Strikes Office Building

Items were taken from two offices in a San Rafael office building yesterday according to San Rafael police reports.

The offices of Lee V. Holman, an attorney, and Dr. Bernard J. Indelicato, a dentist, were both entered by the burglar shortly after 6:45 a.m.

Police said a gardener saw a man pry open a lock and enter the office building. A portable radio and dictating machine valued at $150 were missing from Holman's office and three vials containing seconal were reported taken from the dentist's office.

Nixon's Condition Is Improved Enough For Release On Friday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has recovered sufficiently from his bout with viral pneumonia to be released from the hospital Friday morning, his doctors said today.

Tkach told reporters, "If I'm smiling today it's for a very good reason —the President is convinced he now looks better and feels better."

At noon, the President began a final decision-making meeting on his Phase IV economic program with Treasury Secretary George P. Schultz and others. Ziegler said Phase IV definitely will be announced this week and made it clear that today's consultation would be the last with Nixon before the plan is unveiled.

Gradually increasing activity, the President asked two other new top aides, Melvin R. Laird and Bryce Harlow, to join him and Shultz for the late-morning meeting in Nixon's third floor suite at the hospital.

Nixon also arranged his first visit since his illness with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in the afternoon.

Leonard Garment and J. Fred Buzhardt, head of the White House legal team concerned with Nixon's Watergate defense, visited the hospital last night for conferences with other presidential aides on the latest development in the case —disclosure that Nixon's conversations in the White House are automatically recorded.

A White House spokesman said that Nixon did not meet personally with Garment and Buzhardt.

The spokesman said they met with Nixon's chief of staff, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, and Press Secretary Ronald L. Zeigler. The meeting apparently was in preparation for a more detailed statement, promised shortly, on the taping of Nixon's White House meetings and conversations.

The morning medical bulletin said the President had a dinner last night of beef tenderloin, string beans, carrots, fettucini and a spinach salad.

He has been in the hospital since last Thursday night and probably will stay there until Friday. Late yesterday, Nixon's doctors said the infection in his lungs was starting to clear up. They said he was breathing with only slight chest pains, was "progressing satisfactorily" and was "vivacious and loquacious."

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President's illness would not hold up the announcement of the Phase IV plan. He said Nixon had never anticipated unveiling the program with a television address, a vehicle Nixon used in announcements of other economic policy switches.

The President planned to confer today with Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz on new wage-price controls that are expected to be announced later this week.

Nixon's wife, Pat, daughter, Tricia Cox, and best friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, visited him at the hospital yesterday evening, bringing along three White House dogs, "King Timahoe," "Vickie" and "Pasha." Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Cox held the dogs on long leashes as they led them up the hospital steps.

"They really perked him up," Mrs. Cox said.

Asked how her husband was, Mrs. Nixon smiled and said "He's great."

After Nixon leaves the hospital it appears likely he will go to Key Biscayne, Fla., where he can rest in the sun.

Doctors have decreased his chest therapy treatments. They also skipped a chest X-ray yesterday, for the first time since he succumbed to the infection. His temperature rose slightly to 99 degrees yesterday afternoon.

"One is struck by the fact that the President is looking considerably better," said Dr. Saul Katz, a consulting pulmonary specialist from Georgetown University Medical School.

Nixon's doctors continue to worry that he could overdo and suffer a relapse. They want him to take a week or longer to convalesce after he leaves the hospital.

Ziegler told reporters that there is no plan to put off the President's forthcoming meetings with the Shah of Iran a week from today; and with Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka at the end of the month.

District Attorney Sues Nonprofit Health Care Plan

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Consolidated Medical Systems, Inc. a non-profit health care corporation franchised by the state, was charged with 10 counts of false and misleading representation today.

Dist. Atty. Ed Miller filed the complaint in superior Court and asked that the company be restrained from enrolling others in the plan until certain conditions are met.

He also asked that the company be enjoined from making false and misleading statements and that a penalty of $2,500 be assessed for each count of false and misleading representations.

The firm, which operates in Los Angeles and San Diego counties, was franchised by the state in an effort to remove patients from the state MediCal roles and place them in private prepaid health plans.

Several similar plans exist in the state.

Among the alleged false statements was that the company was replacing Medi-Cal and enrollment was mandatory, transportation to and from health care clinics was free and that members of the plan could seek the services of their own personal physician rather than a doctor on consolidated's staff.

"My office began an investigation of consolidated Medical Systems, Ltd., following the receipt of numerous consumer complaints about the firm's representations and services," Miller said.

"This lawsuit, however, should not be considered an indictment of all state sponsored prepaid health care plans. It is directed only at one company, its method of advertising, and its ability to provide care for San Diego residents."

Wallace Has Pride In Liberal Visitors

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George Wallace, in his first news conference since sharing the platform with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy on the Fourth of July, said yesterday the "liberals have finally discovered the South."

The governor said he was "particularly proud" that national politicians were visiting Alabama. Kennedy's speech "sounded like part of it was written in Alabama," Wallace said. About 200 letter writers criticized Kennedy's appearance, Wallace said.

Nixon's Condition Is Improved Enough For Release On Friday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has recovered sufficiently from his bout with viral pneumonia to be released from the hospital Friday morning, his doctors said today.

Tkach told reporters, "If I'm smiling today it's for a very good reason —the President is convinced he now looks better and feels better."

At noon, the President began a final decision-making meeting on his Phase IV economic program with Treasury Secretary George P. Schultz and others. Ziegler said Phase IV definitely will be announced this week and made it clear that today's consultation would be the last with Nixon before the plan is unveiled.

Gradually increasing activity, the President asked two other new top aides, Melvin R. Laird and Bryce Harlow, to join him and Shultz for the late-morning meeting in Nixon's third floor suite at the hospital.

Nixon also arranged his first visit since his illness with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in the afternoon.

Leonard Garment and J. Fred Buzhardt, head of the White House legal team concerned with Nixon's Watergate defense, visited the hospital last night for conferences with other presidential aides on the latest development in the case —disclosure that Nixon's conversations in the White House are automatically recorded.

A White House spokesman said that Nixon did not meet personally with Garment and Buzhardt.

The spokesman said they met with Nixon's chief of staff, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, and Press Secretary Ronald L. Zeigler. The meeting apparently was in preparation for a more detailed statement, promised shortly, on the taping of Nixon's White House meetings and conversations.

The morning medical bulletin said the President had a dinner last night of beef tenderloin, string beans, carrots, fettucini and a spinach salad.

He has been in the hospital since last Thursday night and probably will stay there until Friday. Late yesterday, Nixon's doctors said the infection in his lungs was starting to clear up. They said he was breathing with only slight chest pains, was "progressing satisfactorily" and was "vivacious and loquacious."

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President's illness would not hold up the announcement of the Phase IV plan. He said Nixon had never anticipated unveiling the program with a television address, a vehicle Nixon used in announcements of other economic policy switches.

The President planned to confer today with Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz on new wage-price controls that are expected to be announced later this week.

Nixon's wife, Pat, daughter, Tricia Cox, and best friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, visited him at the hospital yesterday evening, bringing along three White House dogs, "King Timahoe," "Vickie" and "Pasha." Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Cox held the dogs on long leashes as they led them up the hospital steps.

"They really perked him up," Mrs. Cox said.

Asked how her husband was, Mrs. Nixon smiled and said "He's great."

After Nixon leaves the hospital it appears likely he will go to Key Biscayne, Fla., where he can rest in the sun.

Doctors have decreased his chest therapy treatments. They also skipped a chest X-ray yesterday, for the first time since he succumbed to the infection. His temperature rose slightly to 99 degrees yesterday afternoon.

"One is struck by the fact that the President is looking considerably better," said Dr. Saul Katz, a consulting pulmonary specialist from Georgetown University Medical School.

Nixon's doctors continue to worry that he could overdo and suffer a relapse. They want him to take a week or longer to convalesce after he leaves the hospital.

Ziegler told reporters that there is no plan to put off the President's forthcoming meetings with the Shah of Iran a week from today; and with Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka at the end of the month.

District Attorney Sues Nonprofit Health Care Plan

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Consolidated Medical Systems, Inc. a non-profit health care corporation franchised by the state, was charged with 10 counts of false and misleading representation today.

Dist. Atty. Ed Miller filed the complaint in superior Court and asked that the company be restrained from enrolling others in the plan until certain conditions are met.

He also asked that the company be enjoined from making false and misleading statements and that a penalty of $2,500 be assessed for each count of false and misleading representations.

The firm, which operates in Los Angeles and San Diego counties, was franchised by the state in an effort to remove patients from the state MediCal roles and place them in private prepaid health plans.

Several similar plans exist in the state.

Among the alleged false statements was that the company was replacing Medi-Cal and enrollment was mandatory, transportation to and from health care clinics was free and that members of the plan could seek the services of their own personal physician rather than a doctor on consolidated's staff.

"My office began an investigation of consolidated Medical Systems, Ltd., following the receipt of numerous consumer complaints about the firm's representations and services," Miller said.

"This lawsuit, however, should not be considered an indictment of all state sponsored prepaid health care plans. It is directed only at one company, its method of advertising, and its ability to provide care for San Diego residents."

Wallace Has Pride In Liberal Visitors

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George Wallace, in his first news conference since sharing the platform with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy on the Fourth of July, said yesterday the "liberals have finally discovered the South."

The governor said he was "particularly proud" that national politicians were visiting Alabama. Kennedy's speech "sounded like part of it was written in Alabama," Wallace said. About 200 letter writers criticized Kennedy's appearance, Wallace said.

Sausalito Board Sets Mill Valley Transfers

The Sausalito School District Board last night approved a program that would send 40 pupils from Sausalito to the Mill Valley School District this fall.

The plan, under study for the past nine months by a committee of representatives from both district, must be approved by the Mill Valley School District board before it can be implemented.

Under the program, the students, selected from among sixth and seventh graders at Martin Luther King School in Sausalito, would attend the new Mill Valley Middle School.

"The idea is that Middle School is larger and offers a wider range of programs than is available at Martin Luther King School," said Lawrence A. Lindberg, Sausalito Superintendent.

He reported that 32 pupils already have been selected and their parents have given consent for them to participate in the experiemental program.

Sixty per cent of the youngsters are from Marin City and the balance are from Sausalito and Forts Barry, Baker and Cronkhite, he said.

Lindberg noted that a trailer bill to SB 90, tax shift legislation, will allow the district of residence — Sausalito — to collect average daily attendance monies from the state, although the students would be attending classes in another district.

Mill Valley, he said, would charge a tuition fee, to be paid by Sausalito. The amount of tuition will be set later, if the program is approved by Mill Valley Trustees.

The Sausalito School District Board Also:

EMPLOYMENT — Hired Martha Morrison as clerical aide to replace Constance Chatfield at a salary of $652 per month and Patrick Byrne, mathematics and science teacher, at a salary to be determined.

TRANSFERS — Approved an interdistrict agreement for Monisha and Stephana Johnson to attend the Larkspur School District and for Sara Silver to attend the Mill Valley School District.

CONTRACT — Awarded a contract to Maggiora and Ghillotti Construction Co. to demolish buildings and do grading at the old Bayside School at a cost of $22,917.

PLAYGROUND — Approved the expense of no more than $2,000 for ground work and playground equipment for the Bayside School kindergarten playground.

GIFTED STUDENTS — Authorized up to 40 students to participate in the College of Marin gifted student program and approved the expense of $400 plus $8 per student to cover program costs.

EDUCATION — Approved an early childhood education program proposed by a parents' committee which includes the hiring of an environmental resource teacher for kindergarten and first grade. The plan will be submitted to the state to meet requirements for $18,000 in early childhood education funds.

SUPERINTENDENT — Heard a report from Byron Mauzy, coordinator of the program to recruit and screen candidates for the district superintendency, that 80 applicants have been screened by the professional screening committee. Trustees set a special meeting for 7:30 p.m. Monday to review committee results.

CLOSED — Met in closed session to instruct the district representative regarding salary negotiations with district employees.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. today in district offices when trustees are expected to approve the publication budget for 1973-74.

House said that Nixon would treat the tapes of recordings at his offices as White House documents.

"Being desirous that this matter be decided, if possible, on an amicable basis with the White House," Ervin said, "the committee has decided for the chairman to send a letter to the President asking his cooperation in making available to the committee records and tapes relevant to the matters this committee is authorized to investigation."

Vice Chairman Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said the committee felt obtaining the presidential tapes relating to Watergate —which presumably could corroborate or disprove sworn allegations of Nixon's own involvement in the scandal —was of "monumental importance."

Baker said the letter to Nixon would ask: "1. Who is custodian of the tapes; 2. Who has had access to the tapes; and 3. How do we go about receiving that information and the tapes?"

The Secret Service officials reportedly summoned were Edward L. Morgan, assistant treasury secretary for enforcement, tariff and trade; Clarence (Buck) Lyda, the Secret Service congressional liaison; and Alfred Wong, now deputy director for protective intelligence who was director of the technical services division at the time the division installed the listening devices at Nixon's request.

Wong was also instrumental in finding James W. McCord Jr. —convicted in January for the Watergate bugging —for the job of security chief for Nixon's 1972 campaign.

Kalmbach testified in the morning that he realized two months before the 1972 election that something was wrong about payments to the seven original Watergate defendants, but never tried to warn Nixon about it.

He said he had "complete and implicit trust" in two of Nixon's top aides who had told him to raise the money —John W. Dean III and John D. Ehrlichman —and said he felt the payments reflected a "moral obligation" to help the bugging conspirators.

back to the budget?"

Nelder replied acidly, "This concerns the budget."

"The budget, my foot," Gately shot back.

Egger, in explaining his vote to keep councilmen's salaries, said that no saving would be achieved, because the town would then have to reimburse councilmen for expenses on the trips they are required to make to out-of-town meetings of other agencies.

The approved budget was only $2,000 more than originally proposed by Crowe. No major cuts or additions were made by council members during the seven review sessions.

plan, a fear the plan will pave the way for high density apartments in the Lomita Park area and the belief that the plan will require uprooting of residents without adequate relocation provisions.

Gallardo said he is also concerned because redevelopment never went to a vote of the people and is equivalent to "taxation without representation," land owned by his father and neighbors might be condemned under the plan, and the lack of any youth center in the plan.

He also said he wants the city to recognize the city's minority populations, include Chicanos on the redevelopment work force, begin a "cultural awareness program" for residents of Spanish and Indian backgrounds, consider creation of child care and human needs centers, and appoint Spanish speaking citizens to city boards and commissions.

City councilmen last night listened attentively to Gallardo's concerns, but said many of his requests were matters unrelated to redevelopment agency activities.

Councilmen also said that many of Gallardo's concerns relating to the redevelopment program were confused or unfounded.

City leaders said they did not deal directly with Gallardo during redevelopment negotiations because they believed Godino represented all plaintiffs. "Mr. Gallardo never contacted us," Bielser said.

Gallardo told our councilmen he will consult with friends to determine a course of action and report back to the city. "I am willing to negotiate and will hold out as long as I can," he said. "Once I withdraw from the lawsuit they could promise me the moon."

tion of the legal effect of such a finding by Congress than there would be if legal action by the environmentalists were allowed to run its course.

The Gravel-Stevens amendment, Jackson said, was "very friendly" to the pipeline opponents because it gave them additional grounds on which to sue.

Jackson concluded by reminding his colleagues that they had already approved an amendment urging the courts to act speedily because of the "national urgency" of the project.

"I believe that the courts will heed that message," he said. "In doing so, they do not need a host of new legal ambiguities and new causes of action."

The Senate Monday reaffirmed its decision to prohibit the export of Alaskan oil to Japan or other countries except when found by the President to be "in the national interest."

Low Clouds Will Stay Over Marin

The low, thick clouds and mild temperatures which have covered most of Marin and Southern Sonoma the past two days are predicted to continue through tomorrow by the National Weather Bureau.

Traces of rain were reported yesterday in Tiburon and Sausalito but several other areas had heavy mist and very low clouds.

Mists in Novato and Petaluma required windshield wiper use by commuters this morning.

The weather bureau's forecast called for the heavy clouds to extend well inland and to cause similar conditions tonight and tomorrow morning. High temperatures should be in the 70s with lows in the 50s.

Novato registered the high in the county among reporting stations with a 72-reading while Woodacre was the coolest with a 52-low mark.

charges were "a clear indication that the citizen group has lost faith in their local agency," but insisted the loss of faith was not justified.

The charges resulted instead from "frustration over the slowness of correction" of pollution, they reported. Correcting air pollution "does take considerable time," and odors remain even after emissions have been cut to meet air quality standards, they added.

The report also said the charges resulted "because citizens once aroused continue to think in terms of past insults and do not automatically recognize the degree of improvement."

It concluded with an appeal to the citizens groups "not to read ulterior motives or nefarious intent into every district action."

The complaining groups were the Stop Smog Committee, West Contra Costa Conservation League, North Richmond Citizens Against Unhealthy Air, Contra Costa Shoreline Parks Committee, Benicians for Environmental Action and the Freedom News.

Rebutting charges by the groups, the state board's committee said it found no direct correlation between odor complaints and malfunctions of smog controls. It also dismissed as unfounded the charge the industries increase pollution at night and on weekends when district inspectors are off work.

The committee noted it based its findings on meetings with the citizen groups, district officials and industry, and inspections of district records and of industrial sites in the area.

It acknowledged there were discrepancies between complaints of odors and emission data collected by the district and state, but simply left them as "unexplained."

Despite such complaints, the committee declared, "the odor problem has been substantially reduced in the last few years." It added that the odor problem "is not bad for an area containing many chemical plants and refineries."

The district, it noted, recently adopted "the first definitive odor regulations in the state." They will become effective on Aug. 3, and should go a long way toward reducing odors even more than they have been indirectly through controls on other emissions, the committee said.

It also disputed the charge that up to 4,000 excessive emissions are excused a year under the district's allowance for accidental breakdowns of smog controls. Only about 16 per cent of reported breakdowns cause excess emissions, the committee found, and some of these have been prosecuted.

The report said that 1,107 violation notices were issued by district inspectors during the first six months last year, and that 399 were prosecuted. Of these, about one-third involved accidental breakdowns.

These 399 resulted in $31,650 in fines, it noted — an average of less than $80 each.

The committee also dismissed objections to the district's practice of meeting privately with industry before toughening regulations. It concluded that it found no evidence "that these meetings had any purpose other than the collection of information which would lead to a good regulation."

TRIAL

with two scientists called by the defense yesterday. They said that voiceprint identification in laboratory situations is accurate but argued more study must be done before the technique can be used in court.

Michael H. L. Hecker, a doctoral candidate doing voiceprint research at Stanford Research Institute, called the studies of Professor Oscar Tosi "necessary, but not sufficient to demonstrate reliability for forensic application."

Tosi concluded from a $300,000 study he did at Michigan State University that voiceprint identification could be used accurately in criminal cases. He testified for the prosecution in the nonjury trial of Chapter, 20, of San Anselmo, which began last Wednesday before Judge E.Warren McGuire in Marin Superior Court.

The judge must decide first if voiceprints are considered reliable by scientists in the field, then whether the former telephone installer was the anonymous caller who used a number assigned to installers, and threatened to blow up the Pacific Telephone Co. offices in San Rafael Feb. 1, 1972.

Hecker and Dr. Frank R. Clarke, a specialist in human listening, agreed that Tosi's study was accurate as far as it went, but disagreed with Tosi that his results could be applied to criminal cases.

"My opinion is that it not yet adequate to be used in court because certain things have been left out," Clarke said. "The Tosi study is an important link in a chain one wants to build, but the remaining links are still missing."

Clarke was called not to testify about the reliability of the process itself, but rather to explain the likelihood of error by a voiceprint examiner. He said he would not trust the testimony of a voiceprint examiner until his accuracy had been tested in field conditions. No such tests have been done, he said.

Hecker, who was called on the critical issue of whether scientists consider voiceprint identifications valid, also cited the problem of untested examiners and noted further complications that pop up in field situations.

Other variables untested by Tosi that could have a critical effect on voiceprint identification include distortion, background noise, limitations in recording devices and voice differences caused by stress or disguise.

He said under cross-examination by Deputy Dist. Atty. Vernon F. Smith that he has "no objections to the voiceprint method per se," but he said he was concerned about its application where the untested variables exist.

He said some of the problems don't exist in the Chapter tapes. However, pointing to what he said were distortions in the voiceprints patterns made from tapes of the bomb threat, Hecker said, "I wouldn't even work up the case."

Unlike Hecker, who is an understudy in the International Association of Voiceprint Identification, Lt. Ernest W. Nash of the Michigan State Police, a founder of the group, held the tapes were good enough to pick Chapter as the caller from among the voices of 18 telephone installers.

Chapter was charged last September after Nash fingered him and was fired from his job with the phone company as a result.

Robbery Suspect To Stand Trial

A Novato man accused of the armed robbery of a San Anselmo grocery store has been bound over to Marin Superior Court to stand trial.

David John Brower Jr., 22, was ordered to appear in the higher court Wednesday. He is charged with theft of $130 from Bill and Beth's Grocery Store, 1513 San Anselmo Avenue July 2.

Glass Exhibit Set For Park

The event will feature exhibits of stained glass with entertainment by chamber music groups.

Don L. Dimitratos, Director of Parks and Recreation, said that artists interested in exhibiting may write to the Mill Valley stained glass festival, 30 Bayview Avenue, Mill Valley.

DISMISS

had been driven there by a friend.

The deal offered Miller by Fernsworth — that the officer would vouch for him if he told where he got the LSD —also contributed to his unreliability.

Judge Baty also ruled that it was illegal for six San Jose officers and two from San Anselmo to have occupied the house for four hours before a search warrant was obtained at 10 p.m.

With information from Miller, Fernsworth went to Judge McGuire and obtained the warrant, but he overstated his case and "made it look like Miller knew all about it when in fact he didn't," according to Fred A. Hurvich, Fergerstrom's attorney.

Misrepresenations, Judge Baty cited were:

1. Fernsworth told McGuire that Miller told him the address of the house, which was untrue. Actually, Miller merely pointed out the house he thought was the one, although he said he wasn't sure.

2. Fernsworth made it appear Miller gave him the names of Fergerstrom and Valentino, when actually by that time the house was being occupied by officers, who supplied the names.

3. He didn't tell McGuire of the deal he'd offered Miller.

4. He didn't tell McGuire that the house was being occupied by police.

For all of these reasons, Baty ruled the arrests were illegal.

"I'm sorry to have to do this, gentlemen," Baty told the two defendants yesterday as he ordered their release, "in the light of what I'm satisfied to be your narcotics activities."

Baty said he would suggest that San Anselmo police circulate their photographs to other law enforcement agencies in Marin and keep the two under surveillance for possible future violations.

Hurvich said today he recommended that his client leave Marin.

Sausalito Board Sets Mill Valley Transfers

The Sausalito School District Board last night approved a program that would send 40 pupils from Sausalito to the Mill Valley School District this fall.

The plan, under study for the past nine months by a committee of representatives from both district, must be approved by the Mill Valley School District board before it can be implemented.

Under the program, the students, selected from among sixth and seventh graders at Martin Luther King School in Sausalito, would attend the new Mill Valley Middle School.

"The idea is that Middle School is larger and offers a wider range of programs than is available at Martin Luther King School," said Lawrence A. Lindberg, Sausalito Superintendent.

He reported that 32 pupils already have been selected and their parents have given consent for them to participate in the experiemental program.

Sixty per cent of the youngsters are from Marin City and the balance are from Sausalito and Forts Barry, Baker and Cronkhite, he said.

Lindberg noted that a trailer bill to SB 90, tax shift legislation, will allow the district of residence — Sausalito — to collect average daily attendance monies from the state, although the students would be attending classes in another district.

Mill Valley, he said, would charge a tuition fee, to be paid by Sausalito. The amount of tuition will be set later, if the program is approved by Mill Valley Trustees.

The Sausalito School District Board Also:

EMPLOYMENT — Hired Martha Morrison as clerical aide to replace Constance Chatfield at a salary of $652 per month and Patrick Byrne, mathematics and science teacher, at a salary to be determined.

TRANSFERS — Approved an interdistrict agreement for Monisha and Stephana Johnson to attend the Larkspur School District and for Sara Silver to attend the Mill Valley School District.

CONTRACT — Awarded a contract to Maggiora and Ghillotti Construction Co. to demolish buildings and do grading at the old Bayside School at a cost of $22,917.

PLAYGROUND — Approved the expense of no more than $2,000 for ground work and playground equipment for the Bayside School kindergarten playground.

GIFTED STUDENTS — Authorized up to 40 students to participate in the College of Marin gifted student program and approved the expense of $400 plus $8 per student to cover program costs.

EDUCATION — Approved an early childhood education program proposed by a parents' committee which includes the hiring of an environmental resource teacher for kindergarten and first grade. The plan will be submitted to the state to meet requirements for $18,000 in early childhood education funds.

SUPERINTENDENT — Heard a report from Byron Mauzy, coordinator of the program to recruit and screen candidates for the district superintendency, that 80 applicants have been screened by the professional screening committee. Trustees set a special meeting for 7:30 p.m. Monday to review committee results.

CLOSED — Met in closed session to instruct the district representative regarding salary negotiations with district employees.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. today in district offices when trustees are expected to approve the publication budget for 1973-74.

House said that Nixon would treat the tapes of recordings at his offices as White House documents.

"Being desirous that this matter be decided, if possible, on an amicable basis with the White House," Ervin said, "the committee has decided for the chairman to send a letter to the President asking his cooperation in making available to the committee records and tapes relevant to the matters this committee is authorized to investigation."

Vice Chairman Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said the committee felt obtaining the presidential tapes relating to Watergate —which presumably could corroborate or disprove sworn allegations of Nixon's own involvement in the scandal —was of "monumental importance."

Baker said the letter to Nixon would ask: "1. Who is custodian of the tapes; 2. Who has had access to the tapes; and 3. How do we go about receiving that information and the tapes?"

The Secret Service officials reportedly summoned were Edward L. Morgan, assistant treasury secretary for enforcement, tariff and trade; Clarence (Buck) Lyda, the Secret Service congressional liaison; and Alfred Wong, now deputy director for protective intelligence who was director of the technical services division at the time the division installed the listening devices at Nixon's request.

Wong was also instrumental in finding James W. McCord Jr. —convicted in January for the Watergate bugging —for the job of security chief for Nixon's 1972 campaign.

Kalmbach testified in the morning that he realized two months before the 1972 election that something was wrong about payments to the seven original Watergate defendants, but never tried to warn Nixon about it.

He said he had "complete and implicit trust" in two of Nixon's top aides who had told him to raise the money —John W. Dean III and John D. Ehrlichman —and said he felt the payments reflected a "moral obligation" to help the bugging conspirators.

back to the budget?"

Nelder replied acidly, "This concerns the budget."

"The budget, my foot," Gately shot back.

Egger, in explaining his vote to keep councilmen's salaries, said that no saving would be achieved, because the town would then have to reimburse councilmen for expenses on the trips they are required to make to out-of-town meetings of other agencies.

The approved budget was only $2,000 more than originally proposed by Crowe. No major cuts or additions were made by council members during the seven review sessions.

plan, a fear the plan will pave the way for high density apartments in the Lomita Park area and the belief that the plan will require uprooting of residents without adequate relocation provisions.

Gallardo said he is also concerned because redevelopment never went to a vote of the people and is equivalent to "taxation without representation," land owned by his father and neighbors might be condemned under the plan, and the lack of any youth center in the plan.

He also said he wants the city to recognize the city's minority populations, include Chicanos on the redevelopment work force, begin a "cultural awareness program" for residents of Spanish and Indian backgrounds, consider creation of child care and human needs centers, and appoint Spanish speaking citizens to city boards and commissions.

City councilmen last night listened attentively to Gallardo's concerns, but said many of his requests were matters unrelated to redevelopment agency activities.

Councilmen also said that many of Gallardo's concerns relating to the redevelopment program were confused or unfounded.

City leaders said they did not deal directly with Gallardo during redevelopment negotiations because they believed Godino represented all plaintiffs. "Mr. Gallardo never contacted us," Bielser said.

Gallardo told our councilmen he will consult with friends to determine a course of action and report back to the city. "I am willing to negotiate and will hold out as long as I can," he said. "Once I withdraw from the lawsuit they could promise me the moon."

tion of the legal effect of such a finding by Congress than there would be if legal action by the environmentalists were allowed to run its course.

The Gravel-Stevens amendment, Jackson said, was "very friendly" to the pipeline opponents because it gave them additional grounds on which to sue.

Jackson concluded by reminding his colleagues that they had already approved an amendment urging the courts to act speedily because of the "national urgency" of the project.

"I believe that the courts will heed that message," he said. "In doing so, they do not need a host of new legal ambiguities and new causes of action."

The Senate Monday reaffirmed its decision to prohibit the export of Alaskan oil to Japan or other countries except when found by the President to be "in the national interest."

Low Clouds Will Stay Over Marin

The low, thick clouds and mild temperatures which have covered most of Marin and Southern Sonoma the past two days are predicted to continue through tomorrow by the National Weather Bureau.

Traces of rain were reported yesterday in Tiburon and Sausalito but several other areas had heavy mist and very low clouds.

Mists in Novato and Petaluma required windshield wiper use by commuters this morning.

The weather bureau's forecast called for the heavy clouds to extend well inland and to cause similar conditions tonight and tomorrow morning. High temperatures should be in the 70s with lows in the 50s.

Novato registered the high in the county among reporting stations with a 72-reading while Woodacre was the coolest with a 52-low mark.

charges were "a clear indication that the citizen group has lost faith in their local agency," but insisted the loss of faith was not justified.

The charges resulted instead from "frustration over the slowness of correction" of pollution, they reported. Correcting air pollution "does take considerable time," and odors remain even after emissions have been cut to meet air quality standards, they added.

The report also said the charges resulted "because citizens once aroused continue to think in terms of past insults and do not automatically recognize the degree of improvement."

It concluded with an appeal to the citizens groups "not to read ulterior motives or nefarious intent into every district action."

The complaining groups were the Stop Smog Committee, West Contra Costa Conservation League, North Richmond Citizens Against Unhealthy Air, Contra Costa Shoreline Parks Committee, Benicians for Environmental Action and the Freedom News.

Rebutting charges by the groups, the state board's committee said it found no direct correlation between odor complaints and malfunctions of smog controls. It also dismissed as unfounded the charge the industries increase pollution at night and on weekends when district inspectors are off work.

The committee noted it based its findings on meetings with the citizen groups, district officials and industry, and inspections of district records and of industrial sites in the area.

It acknowledged there were discrepancies between complaints of odors and emission data collected by the district and state, but simply left them as "unexplained."

Despite such complaints, the committee declared, "the odor problem has been substantially reduced in the last few years." It added that the odor problem "is not bad for an area containing many chemical plants and refineries."

The district, it noted, recently adopted "the first definitive odor regulations in the state." They will become effective on Aug. 3, and should go a long way toward reducing odors even more than they have been indirectly through controls on other emissions, the committee said.

It also disputed the charge that up to 4,000 excessive emissions are excused a year under the district's allowance for accidental breakdowns of smog controls. Only about 16 per cent of reported breakdowns cause excess emissions, the committee found, and some of these have been prosecuted.

The report said that 1,107 violation notices were issued by district inspectors during the first six months last year, and that 399 were prosecuted. Of these, about one-third involved accidental breakdowns.

These 399 resulted in $31,650 in fines, it noted — an average of less than $80 each.

The committee also dismissed objections to the district's practice of meeting privately with industry before toughening regulations. It concluded that it found no evidence "that these meetings had any purpose other than the collection of information which would lead to a good regulation."

TRIAL

with two scientists called by the defense yesterday. They said that voiceprint identification in laboratory situations is accurate but argued more study must be done before the technique can be used in court.

Michael H. L. Hecker, a doctoral candidate doing voiceprint research at Stanford Research Institute, called the studies of Professor Oscar Tosi "necessary, but not sufficient to demonstrate reliability for forensic application."

Tosi concluded from a $300,000 study he did at Michigan State University that voiceprint identification could be used accurately in criminal cases. He testified for the prosecution in the nonjury trial of Chapter, 20, of San Anselmo, which began last Wednesday before Judge E.Warren McGuire in Marin Superior Court.

The judge must decide first if voiceprints are considered reliable by scientists in the field, then whether the former telephone installer was the anonymous caller who used a number assigned to installers, and threatened to blow up the Pacific Telephone Co. offices in San Rafael Feb. 1, 1972.

Hecker and Dr. Frank R. Clarke, a specialist in human listening, agreed that Tosi's study was accurate as far as it went, but disagreed with Tosi that his results could be applied to criminal cases.

"My opinion is that it not yet adequate to be used in court because certain things have been left out," Clarke said. "The Tosi study is an important link in a chain one wants to build, but the remaining links are still missing."

Clarke was called not to testify about the reliability of the process itself, but rather to explain the likelihood of error by a voiceprint examiner. He said he would not trust the testimony of a voiceprint examiner until his accuracy had been tested in field conditions. No such tests have been done, he said.

Hecker, who was called on the critical issue of whether scientists consider voiceprint identifications valid, also cited the problem of untested examiners and noted further complications that pop up in field situations.

Other variables untested by Tosi that could have a critical effect on voiceprint identification include distortion, background noise, limitations in recording devices and voice differences caused by stress or disguise.

He said under cross-examination by Deputy Dist. Atty. Vernon F. Smith that he has "no objections to the voiceprint method per se," but he said he was concerned about its application where the untested variables exist.

He said some of the problems don't exist in the Chapter tapes. However, pointing to what he said were distortions in the voiceprints patterns made from tapes of the bomb threat, Hecker said, "I wouldn't even work up the case."

Unlike Hecker, who is an understudy in the International Association of Voiceprint Identification, Lt. Ernest W. Nash of the Michigan State Police, a founder of the group, held the tapes were good enough to pick Chapter as the caller from among the voices of 18 telephone installers.

Chapter was charged last September after Nash fingered him and was fired from his job with the phone company as a result.

Robbery Suspect To Stand Trial

A Novato man accused of the armed robbery of a San Anselmo grocery store has been bound over to Marin Superior Court to stand trial.

David John Brower Jr., 22, was ordered to appear in the higher court Wednesday. He is charged with theft of $130 from Bill and Beth's Grocery Store, 1513 San Anselmo Avenue July 2.

Glass Exhibit Set For Park

The Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department will sponsor a stained glass festival in Boyle Park Aug. 19 from 10 a.m. to early evening.

The event will feature exhibits of stained glass with entertainment by chamber music groups.

Don L. Dimitratos, Director of Parks and Recreation, said that artists interested in exhibiting may write to the Mill Valley stained glass festival, 30 Bayview Avenue, Mill Valley.

DISMISS

had been driven there by a friend.

The deal offered Miller by Fernsworth — that the officer would vouch for him if he told where he got the LSD —also contributed to his unreliability.

Judge Baty also ruled that it was illegal for six San Jose officers and two from San Anselmo to have occupied the house for four hours before a search warrant was obtained at 10 p.m.

With information from Miller, Fernsworth went to Judge McGuire and obtained the warrant, but he overstated his case and "made it look like Miller knew all about it when in fact he didn't," according to Fred A. Hurvich, Fergerstrom's attorney.

Misrepresenations, Judge Baty cited were:

1. Fernsworth told McGuire that Miller told him the address of the house, which was untrue. Actually, Miller merely pointed out the house he thought was the one, although he said he wasn't sure.

2. Fernsworth made it appear Miller gave him the names of Fergerstrom and Valentino, when actually by that time the house was being occupied by officers, who supplied the names.

3. He didn't tell McGuire of the deal he'd offered Miller.

4. He didn't tell McGuire that the house was being occupied by police.

For all of these reasons, Baty ruled the arrests were illegal.

"I'm sorry to have to do this, gentlemen," Baty told the two defendants yesterday as he ordered their release, "in the light of what I'm satisfied to be your narcotics activities."

Baty said he would suggest that San Anselmo police circulate their photographs to other law enforcement agencies in Marin and keep the two under surveillance for possible future violations.

Hurvich said today he recommended that his client leave Marin.

Secret Nixon Tapes Could Bare Truth Of Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Every word spoken by or to President Nixon since the spring of 1971 in his Oval Office in the White House or his hideaway office next door has been tape recorded—and the Senate Watergate Committee wants to play the tapes. (See another story, page 1.)

The recordings could either confirm that John W. Dean III tipped off Nixon to the Watergate cover-up as early as September, 1972, or disprove Dean's sworn testimony and go a long way toward reestablishing Nixon's credibility. A Gallup poll says 71 per cent of the public rejects Nixon's denial of Watergate complicity.

So far, White House officials aren't saying whether Nixon will release the tapes. But he already has laid down a firm policy of refusing to release White House papers touching on Watergate despite the prospect the senators may seek to subpoena them.

The existence of the procedure for taping every conversation in Nixon's office was one of Washington's best kept secrets.

The disclosure may touch off a diplomatic storm—testimony before the committee indicates the White House has taped and filed even the most confidential conversations between Nixon and visiting foreign dignitaries.

His phone calls—if made over phones in the Oval Office, his hideaway office in the Executive Office Building next door to the White House, the Lincoln sitting room in the residential part of the White House or at his desk in Camp David—were similarly taped.

Alexander P. Butterfield, deputy assistant to the President until last March 14 and administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration since then, disclosed the existence of the taping devices yesterday as a "surprise witness" before the Senate committee.

He swore that the recordings were made solely "for posterity" —to be stored in the Nixon library which will one day record the Nixon era of the American presidency.

Only Nixon and a handful of others knew—a few aides, led by H. R. Haldeman, Butterfield's boss, and the Secret Service agents who installed and operated the devices.

But Kalmbach's testimony contradicted the cover-up denials offered under oath by Dean, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and John D. Ehrlichman, former close aide to Nixon.

Ehrlichman has sworn in a deposition given in connection with a civil lawsuit filed by the Democratic party that he knew nothing of the cover-up until March 21, the same day Nixon says he learned.

But Kalmbach said last July 26 he went to Ehrlichman and ask3d him to look him in the eye and say it was "proper" for him to be raising cash from Republican contributors for the original seven Watergate defendants without telling how the money was being used.

"And did he look you in the eye?" asked Samuel Dash, chief committee counsel.

"Yes, he did," Kalmbach said. "...He said, 'Herb, John Dean does have the authority. It is proper and you are to go forward."

He also pictured Dean as a key figure in the payoffs and Mitchell as involved in raising funds to buy the defendants' silence.

Last week, from the same seat occupied by Kalmbach, Mitchell swore under oath he played no such role.

The Senate committee, when it meets privately tomorrow, is certain to demand that Nixon release the tape recordings made during Dean's confrontations with Nixon in September, 1972, and March and April, 1973.

Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., said the committee will have to take precautions "to make sure that the tapes weren't doctored."

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., said he favored subpoenaing the tapes if the White House resists giving them up—even though he opposes a subpoena for the papers Nixon has refused to surrender.

Dash, a law professor and author of "The Eavesdroppers," a study on electronic surveillance, told reporters the Supreme Court has ruled it is not illegal for one party to record a conversation without the knowledge of other participants.

Federal Communications Commission spokesmen said it was a violation of tariff rules—a civil but not criminal violation—to tape telephone calls without sounding a periodic beeper. But he says he knows of no instance where that ruling has been enforced.

Gerald Warren, deputy White House press secretary, ducked reporters' questions about whether the administration would voluntarily send the tapes to Capitol Hill.

Dean has testified that in meetings in Nixon's two offices —occurring after the tape recorders were installed—he told Nixon of his own complicity in the cover-up and that of Ehrlichman and Haldeman. Once, he has testified, he told Nixon all three were "indictable" yet the President did nothing.

At another meeting, he testified, Nixon told Haldeman it was "no problem" after Dean estimated it would cost $1 million to buy off the Watergate defendants.

At yet another meeting, Dean has testified, Nixon confessed conferring with another aide about granting executive clemency to E. Howard Hunt, one of the defendants.

J. Fred Buzhardt, White House lawyer in charge of Watergate matters, wrote the committee to confirm that "the President's meetings and conversations in the White House have been recorded since the spring of 1971."

The letter was written after the committee made ready to subpoena Haldeman aide Lawrence Higby to confirm Butterfield's account.

"I am advised that this system, which is still in use, is similar to that employed by the last administration and which had been discontinued from 1969 until the spring of 1971," Buzhardt wrote.

A Secret Service spokesman said, however, that if such a system existed during the Johnson administration it was not installed by the Secret Service.

Lawyer Joseph Califano, who was special assistant for domestic affairs to the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, said Johnson could record telephone calls but denied he taped conversations. "The White House was not wired for sound...he was death on bugging," Califano said.

Butterfield testified that tiny lights on three 10 inch by 10 inch black "locator boxes" indicated Nixon's location.

The moment he walked into his Oval Office or Executive Office Building office Butterfield or another aide, Dwight Chapin, would activate the tape recorders. The wheels would start spinning as soon as a sound was then heard.

He said the tapes have not been transcribed and are in storage.

Under questioning from Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., Butterfield said the President's guests were not told they were being taped.

"A congressman or governor...or a senator or Mr. private citizen?" asked Talmadge.

"No," Butterfield said.

He said Nixon was "totally oblivious or certainly uninhibited" by the devices.

WHITE HOUSE BUGS — According to former White House deputy assistant Alexander P. Butterfield, highly sophisticated electronic equipment records President Richard M. Nixon's conversations and telephone calls in a number of White House rooms. Butterfield told the Senate Watergate Committee yesterday that among the rooms bugged are the Oval Room office, the Lincoln sitting room and family quarters. (UPI Telephoto)

Rent Subsidy Plea Fails In Tiburon

Tiburon city employees last night won some new fringe benefits but got turned down by the city council in their request for $100-a-month rent subsidies for employees living within the "Tiburon Peninsula sphere of influence area."

Councilmen also postponed until an Aug. 2 meeting decision on the employees' request for 8 per cent cost-of-living salary increases.

The employees were granted increased vacation time for those with less than 10 years' service, a group life insurance plan and additional survivor benefits to the retirement coverage.

They failed to get approval of a request that the city pay 90 per cent of the cost of a dental insurance plan.

In other action, the councilmen learned from City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer that $28,827 interest that has accumulated in the city's open space fund can be used to make bond redemption payments.

Balmer said this income will allow a tax rate of 95.5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation instead of the $1.06 rate projected earlier. Tiburon's tax rate this year was 73.5 cents. The jump is due to a $1.25 million bond issue approved last year for purchase of open space.

Role In Key Decisions Denied By Butterfield

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Alexander P. Butterfield is an ex-fighter pilot with movie-star good looks who says his wife's friendship with the wife of H.R. Haldeman helped get him a White House job.

According to the 47-year-old son of a retired admiral, he was a "paper pusher" at the White House and not involved in key decisions.

He has flatly denied to UPI on several occasions that he had any involvement in Watergate. He also denied newspaper reports that he acted as the White House liaison man with the CIA.

Butterfield, a tall, open-faced ex-Air Force colonel, candidly admitted he had "a lot to learn" about the FAA when he took over the job as administrator last March 14, ending a 20-year military career. Because the law says the $42,500-a-year FAA post can only be held by civilians, he had to resign from military retirement rolls, forfeiting some $10,000 in retirement pay plus benefits in order to be eligible.

He studied at UCLA at the same time as Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, President Nixon's former top aides, but he says he did not know either of the men at that time.

He later met Haldeman because of his wife's friendship with Mrs. Haldeman, and in 1969 Haldman approved him as a White House aide, Butterfield said.

ALEXANDER P. BUTTERFIELD
Just a 'paper pusher'

Butterfield was named a deputy assistant to Nixon Jan. 21, 1969, retaining his military commission and dealing principally with administrative matters involving the White House. He remained in the White House until March when he was named FAA administrator to replace John H. Shafer who resigned.

Butterfield is also known as a close friend of Egil Krogh, who set up the "plumbers" unit in the White House.

McGovern Condemns Nixon's Bugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern called the White House practice of taping conversations with President Nixon an "invasion of privacy," but Sen. Barry Goldwater said he saw nothing wrong with it.

Their comments set the boundaries yesterday for reaction to testimony at the Senate Watergate committee hearings that taping White House conversations was routine.

"I do not think it's improper for the President to record conversations for historical purposes," Goldwater, said. "I myself have a similar device on my telephone, for record and archies purposes.

Goldwater also said he was not surprised by the tapings. He said "long before Watergate" he met with Nixon at the White House and the next day "Jack Anderson had such a complete transcript of our conversation (in his column) that he must have had a recording of it."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he wanted to "think over" the implications of bugging presidential conversations. Most other Democrats voiced their displeasure at the practice.

Sen. Hugh Scott, the Republican leader, gave a terse "no comment, no comment at all" when asked what he thought of his conversation with Nixon being recorded.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., who as Republican National Chairman had many political conversations with the President, said he had no knowledge of the recordings.

"I'm glad I always nodded" (instead of speaking out) when talking to the President," Dole said jokingly.

McGovern, who was defeated by Nixon in last year's presidential race, said "I was startled at the preoccupation at capturing every word on tape."

Calling the practice an "invasion of privacy," McGovern said he had no reason to believe the practice had been carried out under any previous administration.

Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst, in London, voiced astonishment when told of the taping. "No kidding!" he exclaimed.

Robert H. Finch, former Nixon Cabinet member and counselor, said he was "literally astonished — I'm incredulous."

AFL-CIO President George Meany let it be known through a spokesman that he found the taping "almost beyond belief" and that he never had "the slightest idea" that his talks with the President were recorded.

"God bless the blunderers at the Watergate," Meany was quoted by an aide. "If they hadn't been so clumsy, America would never have known this was going on."

House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., said, "if this kind of thing did go on, it was an outrage, almost beyond belief."

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, House Republican leader, said he was not aware of the recording practice but had no objections to it. "I have never said anything to any President that could not be a matter of public record," he said.

Pilot Is Lauded On Bomb Refusal

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The Connecticut House yesterday commended Capt. Donald E. Dawson, an Air Force pilot who refused to fly a B52 mission over Cambodia, for his service in flying other war missions.

Dawson, 26, of Danbury, Conn., faces possible court martial. He said he refused to fly the mission on moral grounds and because he felt the destructive power of B52s was unnecessary to the fighting in Cambodia.

The resolution said Dawson exhibited "a high level of commitment and service on multiple missions over Laos and South Vietnam."

Coast Commission Faces Major Legal Challenge

The first major legal challenge to the North Central Coast Regional Commission will be posed Thursday when it comes up against the huge Sea Ranch development on the Sonoma coast.

The immediate issue is an application to build a single-family home between Shoreline Highway and the ocean, but the broad issue is the power of the commission to prevent such construction.

The commission's staff has recommended denial of the permit on the ground it would significantly interfere with vistas from the highway. The commission already set the precedent for denial by rejecting an application for a similar project on the Sonoma coast, but that involved a small subdivision without the resources available to the Sea Ranch to mount a legal challenge.

The commission will meet at 3 p.m. in the supervisors chambers of the Marin Civic Center.

Secret Nixon Tapes Could Bare Truth Of Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Every word spoken by or to President Nixon since the spring of 1971 in his Oval Office in the White House or his hideaway office next door has been tape recorded—and the Senate Watergate Committee wants to play the tapes. (See another story, page 1.)

The recordings could either confirm that John W. Dean III tipped off Nixon to the Watergate cover-up as early as September, 1972, or disprove Dean's sworn testimony and go a long way toward reestablishing Nixon's credibility. A Gallup poll says 71 per cent of the public rejects Nixon's denial of Watergate complicity.

So far, White House officials aren't saying whether Nixon will release the tapes. But he already has laid down a firm policy of refusing to release White House papers touching on Watergate despite the prospect the senators may seek to subpoena them.

The disclosure may touch off a diplomatic storm—testimony before the committee indicates the White House has taped and filed even the most confidential conversations between Nixon and visiting foreign dignitaries.

His phone calls—if made over phones in the Oval Office, his hideaway office in the Executive Office Building next door to the White House, the Lincoln sitting room in the residential part of the White House or at his desk in Camp David—were similarly taped.

Alexander P. Butterfield, deputy assistant to the President until last March 14 and administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration since then, disclosed the existence of the taping devices yesterday as a "surprise witness" before the Senate committee.

He swore that the recordings were made solely "for posterity" —to be stored in the Nixon library which will one day record the Nixon era of the American presidency.

Only Nixon and a handful of others knew—a few aides, led by H. R. Haldeman, Butterfield's boss, and the Secret Service agents who installed and operated the devices.

But Kalmbach's testimony contradicted the cover-up denials offered under oath by Dean, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and John D. Ehrlichman, former close aide to Nixon.

Ehrlichman has sworn in a deposition given in connection with a civil lawsuit filed by the Democratic party that he knew nothing of the cover-up until March 21, the same day Nixon says he learned.

But Kalmbach said last July 26 he went to Ehrlichman and ask3d him to look him in the eye and say it was "proper" for him to be raising cash from Republican contributors for the original seven Watergate defendants without telling how the money was being used.

"And did he look you in the eye?" asked Samuel Dash, chief committee counsel.

"Yes, he did," Kalmbach said. "...He said, 'Herb, John Dean does have the authority. It is proper and you are to go forward."

He also pictured Dean as a key figure in the payoffs and Mitchell as involved in raising funds to buy the defendants' silence.

Last week, from the same seat occupied by Kalmbach, Mitchell swore under oath he played no such role.

The Senate committee, when it meets privately tomorrow, is certain to demand that Nixon release the tape recordings made during Dean's confrontations with Nixon in September, 1972, and March and April, 1973.

Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., said the committee will have to take precautions "to make sure that the tapes weren't doctored."

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., said he favored subpoenaing the tapes if the White House resists giving them up—even though he opposes a subpoena for the papers Nixon has refused to surrender.

Dash, a law professor and author of "The Eavesdroppers," a study on electronic surveillance, told reporters the Supreme Court has ruled it is not illegal for one party to record a conversation without the knowledge of other participants.

Federal Communications Commission spokesmen said it was a violation of tariff rules—a civil but not criminal violation—to tape telephone calls without sounding a periodic beeper. But he says he knows of no instance where that ruling has been enforced.

Gerald Warren, deputy White House press secretary, ducked reporters' questions about whether the administration would voluntarily send the tapes to Capitol Hill.

Dean has testified that in meetings in Nixon's two offices —occurring after the tape recorders were installed—he told Nixon of his own complicity in the cover-up and that of Ehrlichman and Haldeman. Once, he has testified, he told Nixon all three were "indictable" yet the President did nothing.

At another meeting, he testified, Nixon told Haldeman it was "no problem" after Dean estimated it would cost $1 million to buy off the Watergate defendants.

At yet another meeting, Dean has testified, Nixon confessed conferring with another aide about granting executive clemency to E. Howard Hunt, one of the defendants.

J. Fred Buzhardt, White House lawyer in charge of Watergate matters, wrote the committee to confirm that "the President's meetings and conversations in the White House have been recorded since the spring of 1971."

The letter was written after the committee made ready to subpoena Haldeman aide Lawrence Higby to confirm Butterfield's account.

"I am advised that this system, which is still in use, is similar to that employed by the last administration and which had been discontinued from 1969 until the spring of 1971," Buzhardt wrote.

A Secret Service spokesman said, however, that if such a system existed during the Johnson administration it was not installed by the Secret Service.

Lawyer Joseph Califano, who was special assistant for domestic affairs to the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, said Johnson could record telephone calls but denied he taped conversations. "The White House was not wired for sound...he was death on bugging," Califano said.

Butterfield testified that tiny lights on three 10 inch by 10 inch black "locator boxes" indicated Nixon's location.

The moment he walked into his Oval Office or Executive Office Building office Butterfield or another aide, Dwight Chapin, would activate the tape recorders. The wheels would start spinning as soon as a sound was then heard.

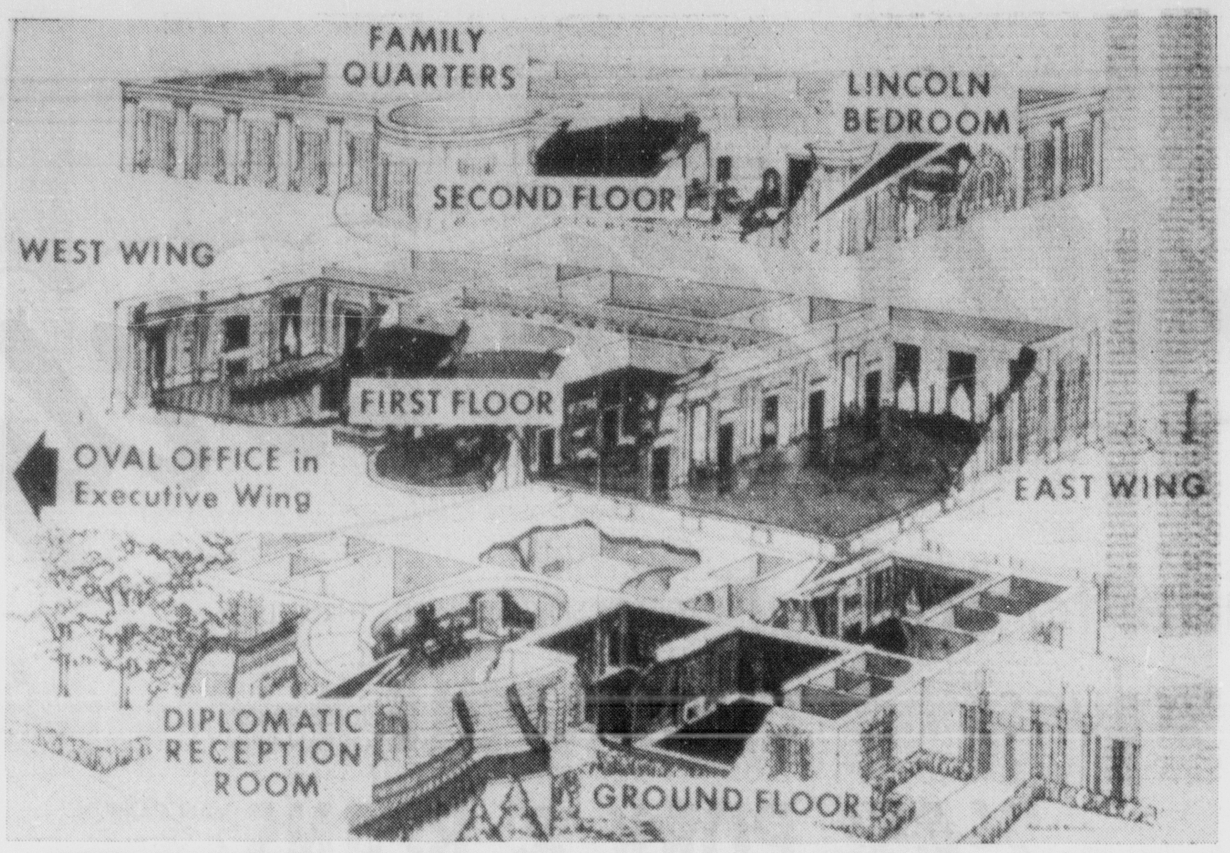
He said the tapes have not been transcribed and are in storage.

Under questioning from Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., Butterfield said the President's guests were not told they were being taped.

"A congressman or governor...or a senator or Mr. private citizen?" asked Talmadge.

"No," Butterfield said.

He said Nixon was "totally oblivious or certainly uninhibited" by the devices.



WHITE HOUSE BUGS — According to former White House deputy assistant Alexander P. Butterfield, highly sophisticated electronic equipment records President Richard M. Nixon's conversations and telephone calls in a number of White House rooms. Butterfield told the Senate Watergate Committee yesterday that among the rooms bugged are the Oval Room office, the Lincoln sitting room and family quarters. (UPI Telephoto)

Rent Subsidy Plea Fails In Tiburon

Tiburon city employees last night won some new fringe benefits but got turned down by the city council in their request for $100-a-month rent subsidies for employees living within the "Tiburon Peninsula sphere of influence area."

Councilmen also postponed until an Aug. 2 meeting decision on the employees' request for 8 per cent cost-of-living salary increases.

The employees were granted increased vacation time for those with less than 10 years' service, a group life insurance plan and additional survivor benefits to the retirement coverage.

They failed to get approval of a request that the city pay 90 per cent of the cost of a dental insurance plan.

In other action, the councilmen learned from City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer that $28,827 interest that has accumulated in the city's open space fund can be used to make bond redemption payments.

AUTO BARGAINING BEGINS

While negotiators for both sides looked on, United Auto Workers president Leonard Woodcock (left) leaned over the 8-foot-wide, 54-foot-long bargaining table to shake hands with General Motors vice president George Morris Jr. yesterday in Detroit. The handshake began 1973 contract talks between the union and the "Big Three" auto companies. Woodcock moved to Ford Motor Co. today to open negotiations with the No. 2 auto company. Contract with the top three auto makers expires Sept. 14. (UPI Telephoto)

Hashish Plot Is Denied By DeRenzy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Alex de Renzy, millionaire erotic film maker, returned from Vancouver yesterday and denied he was involved in a scheme to smuggle hashish into Canada.

De Renzy, a former resident of San Rafael, eight men and six women sailed into San Francisco Bay aboard de Renzy's 185- foot converted U.S. Navy subchaser, the Marysville.

"We've been accused of all kinds of garbage, but we're absolutely innocent," said de Renzy, 38.

Later the entire crew boarded a plane to fly back to Vancouver for a court appearance today, at which de Renzy predicted all charges will be dropped.

Canadian authorities seized the Marsyville on June 30 on the basis of a tip that the vessel was involved in a conspiracy to smuggle a large quantity of hashish into Canada.

De Renzy said a Canadian destroyer seized his ship "50 miles off the Canadian coast in international waters. It was six in the morning and they boarded us with machine guns out."

However, authorities could find no drugs aboard the Marysville.

"They searched us for a solid week," de Renzy said, "and they couldn't find a speck of dope—not a speck.",

About 800 pounds of hashish and 200 pounds of marijuana was later found hidden on a beach on Vancouver Island, but de Renzy insisted the drugs were not his.

"That was a hundred miles away," he said.

De Renzy said he and his friends were returning from a nine-month voyage "to Singapore and back" on which they made "adventure" movies and were bothered by authorities everywhere.

"We didn't sail into a single port that we weren't searched. They saw we were hippies, they knew we were a dope ship. This happened in the Philippines, it happened in Hilo, in Hawaii. Then the Canadians."

WITH GOVERNMENT APPROVAL

Boston Strippers Take It Off

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Strippers in Boston took it all off—everything but their earrings—as burlesque returned to the city last night for the first time in 12 years.

Joseph Savino, manager of the theater, said the opening night crowd of about 700 to 800 persons consisted of couples of all ages.

"I think that's pretty good for mid-July, but in the long run I just don't know," Savino said.

"If we could keep the quality up, we can do well."

It was all legal, despite the total nudity, with management of the Pilgrim Theater getting approval from government agencies before dropping X-rated movies in favor of live burlesque.

The only thing authorities might have objected to would be a lewd performance, a consideration that might have toned down the bumps and grinds.

The "banned in Boston" image is fading out. Burlesque never was outlawed. It just died out after the old Howard Theater burned down 12 years ago.

Boston has its pornography stores and local authorities apparently have not acted under the June 21 U.S. Supreme Court ruling allowing community standards to prevail. The manager of a grocery which includes a dirty book section said he was not even aware of the court decision and was not concerned about it.

Spokesmen for two of the nation's leading girlie magazines said yesterday authorities in seven states had been harassing distributors of their magazines.

Penthouse said its magazine was withdrawn under pressure in Harrison County, Miss.; Albermarle County, Va.; Ft. Smith, Ark.; Lexington, Ky., and Macon and Columbus, Ga. Playboy listed similar problems in Harrison County, Miss.; Hopewell, Va.; Prattville, Ala.; Macon, Ga.; and Ashland, Ohio.

Playboy joined Penthouse in announcing a policy to defend vendors arrested for selling the publication. Playboy will "study each case on its merits and definitely will take positive legal action where warranted to help distributors and to protect our First Amendment rights to freedom of communication," a spokesman said. Penthouse anounced a similar policy Sunday.

A pornography case in Ashland, Ohio, ended when a grand jury refused to indict the owner of a store where 342 pounds of magazines where seized. The charges against the owner of Nardini's Confectionary were stopped and Ashland police said they planned no further action against the sale of the magazines, including Playboy and Penthouse.

In Toledo, Ohio, 10 persons filed suit claiming their rights were violated when allegedly obscene material was seized from stores. They asked that a state law allowing arrests in pornography cases be declared unconstitutional.

In Prattville, Ala., Autauga County Sheriff Robert Turner said that Penthouse and Playboy had not been singled out as obscene. He said his men had bought a group of magazines at newsstands to compare them with Alabama law.

"We're going to go by the book and the law of Alabama," Turner said. "It'll be up to a judge and jury to decide if they are obscene."

He said he had told newsstand owners his department had found certain magazines in violation of the law. "Most of the owners have been helpful to us in going through their own newsstands and removing the magazines," he said.

In Chicago, a Cook County grand jury indicted six theater executives and three theaters on obscenity charges for showing "Deep Throat." The movie was shown last March at the Town Underground Theater. The state's attorney's office said there was evidence the other two theaters, the Newberry and Image, had a "financial connection" with the Town.

Lawyer Asks Attica Bugging Information

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — An attorney for 40 of the 59 defendants indicted by a special grand jury investigating the 1971 Attica prison riot has asked that the state be ordered to turn over to the defense all material in the case obtained by electronic surveillance.

Donald L. Jelinek, in filing a discovery motion in State Supreme Court in Buffalo yesterday said the material and other information was necessary in order to prepare a defense.

Much of the material Jelinek requested for is in the files of State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz.

Jelinek also asked for all statements, written or oral, made to any defendants, witnesses or law enforcement personnel; the names, address and pictures of all prisoners, state officials and law enforcement personnel who were at the prison during the riot; a list of names and addresses of witnesses who appeared before the special Wyoming county grand jury; and a list of witnesses the state intends to call at the trial.

He said he had reason to believe the state tapped the conversation of an attorney in New York City representing one of the defendants.

"We ask for nothing more than a fair trial and we can't have one without the type of information the attorney general has in his files," he said.

Moore reserved decision on the motion pending the filing of written arguments by both sides.

Jelinek also filed a motion asking for dismissal of the 37 indictments handed up by the Wyoming County grand jury. No date for argument on the motion was set.

Senator Sees Much Trade With China

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., said yesterday that trade relations with China may be small in the early stages, but would be pursued vigorously by the United States.

"One of the problems in trading with the Chinese is they have almost a horror of having a national debt," said Magnuson, who led a congressional delegation on a two-week tour of China. He said the tour of six Chinese cities and four agricultural communes was "highly succesful" and that he believes Congress will extend most-favored nation trade status to China.

Count Continues For Next Skylab

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The Apollo command ship and the Saturn 1B launch rocket are proceeding smoothly through the long countdown toward the launching of a second crew of Skylab astronauts on a space exploration mission July 28.

AUTO BARGAINING BEGINS

While negotiators for both sides looked on, United Auto Workers president Leonard Woodcock (left) leaned over the 8-foot-wide, 54-foot-long bargaining table to shake hands with General Motors vice president George Morris Jr. yesterday in Detroit. The handshake began 1973 contract talks between the union and the "Big Three" auto companies. Woodcock moved to Ford Motor Co. today to open negotiations with the No. 2 auto company. Contract with the top three auto makers expires Sept. 14. (UPI Telephoto)

Hashish Plot Is Denied By DeRenzy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Alex de Renzy, millionaire erotic film maker, returned from Vancouver yesterday and denied he was involved in a scheme to smuggle hashish into Canada.

De Renzy, a former resident of San Rafael, eight men and six women sailed into San Francisco Bay aboard de Renzy's 185- foot converted U.S. Navy subchaser, the Marysville.

"We've been accused of all kinds of garbage, but we're absolutely innocent," said de Renzy, 38.

Later the entire crew boarded a plane to fly back to Vancouver for a court appearance today, at which de Renzy predicted all charges will be dropped.

Canadian authorities seized the Marsyville on June 30 on the basis of a tip that the vessel was involved in a conspiracy to smuggle a large quantity of hashish into Canada.

De Renzy said a Canadian destroyer seized his ship "50 miles off the Canadian coast in international waters. It was six in the morning and they boarded us with machine guns out."

However, authorities could find no drugs aboard the Marysville.

"They searched us for a solid week," de Renzy said, "and they couldn't find a speck of dope—not a speck.",

About 800 pounds of hashish and 200 pounds of marijuana was later found hidden on a beach on Vancouver Island, but de Renzy insisted the drugs were not his.

"That was a hundred miles away," he said.

De Renzy said he and his friends were returning from a nine-month voyage "to Singapore and back" on which they made "adventure" movies and were bothered by authorities everywhere.

"We didn't sail into a single port that we weren't searched. They saw we were hippies, they know we were a dope ship. This happened in the Philippines, it happened in Hilo, in Hawaii. Then the Canadians."

Boston Strippers Take It Off

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Strippers in Boston took it all off—everything but their earrings—as burlesque returned to the city last night for the first time in 12 years.

Joseph Savino, manager of the theater, said the opening night crowd of about 700 to 800 persons consisted of couples of all ages.

"I think that's pretty good for mid-July, but in the long run I just don't know," Savino said. "If we could keep the quality up, we can do well."

It was all legal, despite the total nudity, with management of the Pilgrim Theater getting approval from government agencies before dropping X-rated movies in favor of live burlesque.

The only thing authorities might have objected to would be a lewd performance, a consideration that might have toned down the bumps and grinds.

The "banned in Boston" image is fading out. Burlesque never was outlawed. It just died out after the old Howard Theater burned down 12 years ago.

Boston has its pornography stores and local authorities apparently have not acted under the June 21 U.S. Supreme Court ruling allowing community standards to prevail. The manager of a grocery which includes a dirty book section said he was not even aware of the court decision and was not concerned about it.

Spokesmen for two of the nation's leading girlie magazines said yesterday authorities in seven states had been harassing distributors of their magazines.

Penthouse said its magazine was withdrawn under pressure in Harrison County, Miss.; Albermarle County, Va.; Ft. Smith, Ark.; Lexington, Ky., and Macon and Columbus, Ga. Playboy listed similar problems in Harrison County, Miss.; Hopewell, Va.; Prattville, Ala.; Macon, Ga.; and Ashland, Ohio.

Playboy joined Penthouse in announcing a policy to defend vendors arrested for selling the publication. Playboy will "study each case on its merits and definitely will take positive legal action where warranted to help distributors and to protect our First Amendment rights to freedom of communication," a spokesman said. Penthouse announced a similar policy Sunday.

A pornography case in Ashland, Ohio, ended when a grand jury refused to indict the owner of a store where 342 pounds of magazines where seized. The charges against the owner of Nardini's Confectionary were stopped and Ashland police said they planned no further action against the sale of the magazines, including Playboy and Penthouse.

In Toledo, Ohio, 10 persons filed suit claiming their rights were violated when allegedly obscene material was seized from stores. They asked that a state law allowing arrests in pornography cases be declared unconstitutional.

In Prattville, Ala., Autauga County Sheriff Robert Turner said that Penthouse and Playboy had not been singled out as obscene. He said his men had bought a group of magazines at newsstands to compare them with Alabama law.

"We're going to go by the book and the law of Alabama," Turner said. "It'll be up to a judge and jury to decide if they are obscene."

He said he had told newsstand owners his department had found certain magazines in violation of the law. "Most of the owners have been helpful to us in going through their own newsstands and removing the magazines," he said.

In Chicago, a Cook County grand jury indicted six theater executives and three theaters on obscenity charges for showing "Deep Throat." The movie was shown last March at the Town Underground Theater. The state's attorney's office said there was evidence the other two theaters, the Newberry and Image, had a "financial connection" with the Town.

Lawyer Asks Attica Bugging Information

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — An attorney for 40 of the 59 defendants indicted by a special grand jury investigating the 1971 Attica prison riot has asked that the state be ordered to turn over to the defense all material in the case obtained by electronic surveillance.

Donald L. Jelinek, in filing a discovery motion in State Supreme Court in Buffalo yesterday said the material and other information was necessary in order to prepare a defense.

Jelinek also asked for all statements, written or oral, made to any defendants, witnesses or law enforcement personnel; the names, address and pictures of all prisoners, state officials and law enforcement personnel who were at the prison during the riot; a list of names and addresses of witnesses who appeared before the special Wyoming county grand jury; and a list of witnesses the state intends to call at the trial.

He said he had reason to believe the state tapped the conversation of an attorney in New York City representing one of the defendants.

"We ask for nothing more than a fair trial and we can't have one without the type of information the attorney general has in his files," he said.

Moore reserved decision on the motion pending the filing of written arguments by both sides.

Jelinek also filed a motion asking for dismissal of the 37 indictments handed up by the Wyoming County grand jury. No date for argument on the motion was set.

Senator Sees Much Trade With China

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., said yesterday that trade relations with China may be small in the early stages, but would be pursued vigorously by the United States.

"One of the problems in trading with the Chinese is they have almost a horror of having a national debt," said Magnuson, who led a congressional delegation on a two-week tour of China. He said the tour of six Chinese cities and four agricultural communes was "highly succesful" and that he believes Congress will extend most-favored nation trade status to China.

Count Continues For Next Skylab

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The Apollo command ship and the Saturn 1B launch rocket are proceeding smoothly through the long countdown toward the launching of a second crew of Skylab astronauts on a space exploration mission July 28.

Cuts Are Sought In Street Repair

The Mill Valley City Council last night asked the city staff to find ways to cut spending for street repairs to make up for lower than expected federal and state funds for storm damage repair.

The council was told that the state Office of Emergency Services had lopped about 40 per cent off the city request for $466,878 to repair streets damaged by last winter's rains.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham reported that state and federal agencies would provide $271,756 for 15 repair projects, leaving the city to come up with $195,122.

The council asked the city manager to try to appeal the government cuts and asked the city engineer to look for ways to trim the cost of the street repairs. Both were to report back at a special meeting July 24.

In spite of the cuts, the council decided to seek bids immediately to stem the Vista Linda Drive slide. That slippage is threatening two homes and has forced residents to drive on a fire trail to and from their homes.

City Engineer Jesper Strandgaard said most of the cuts made by federal officials were for funds to repair slides from hills onto roads.

"They'll pay to take away the dirt," he said, "but not to put up a wall to keep it from sliding down again in the future."

Strandgaard said funds were also easier to get for sinking or washed out streets.

In the case of Vista Linda, he said the government will pay only $77,834 of an estimated cost of $151,812.

He said he might be able to trim this estimate for Vista Linda to $137,000.

At first council members were going to continue action on Vista Linda until the July 24 meeting, but 10 or 15 audience members objected.

"You stand the possibility of losing two homes if you wait until the rains come," said Nancy Boggs of 303 Vista Linda Drive. "You're very derelict in not moving now."

Vista Linda residents objected that any postponement in seeking bids might delay the repairs until October.

"The city was out there as soon as that slide developed," answered Councilman Robert E. Capron. "Would you have us spend up to $70,000 when we might not have to or which we could get back from the federal government if we only wait?"

But after Strandgaard assured him that changes could still be made in plans after the call for bids, he moved that the city begin action on Vista Linda, and the motion was approved unanimously.

State and federal law require that construction of the projects begin by Oct. 1.

Mill Valley Council Approves Car Wash

Atlantic-Richfield Co. talked the Mill Valley City Council last night into agreeing to a car wash on the Safeway parking lot on Miller Avenue.

The council split 3-to-2 on an appeal of a planning commission order to drop the car wash from plans to remodel the Safeway store across the street from Tamalpais High School.

T. T. Clausen, real estate representative for the gas company, said the car wash would be hidden behind a five-foot-high earthen wall and heavy planting which would also help muffle the noise of blowers.

The planning commission had argued that the noise would bother the Community Church Retirement Center across the street.

Councilman Robert E. Capron moved to deny the appeal because a car wash "is grossly inconsistent with the character of this town."

"If it has the success of the newly opened car wash on the other side of Highway 101, we'd have seven to 14 cars waiting to be washed lining up every morning," he said. "The amount of space used for cars is grossly inadequate."

But Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker argued that he was tired of the present supermarket lot "with two abandoned gas stations, a second rate medical building and a crappy looking Safeway."

He said that without the car wash the remodeling would probably be abandoned. Safeway has promised Arco the car wash in return for permission to build a new store on the site of an old Arco station.

Only Councilman Robert E. Burton backed Capron.

The council agreed, however, to return the plans to the planning commission for suggestions on modifying the outline of the Safeway building to make it look less massive.

Safeway plans to build a new store while operating the old at its present site. A medical office complex along Camino Alto will be remodeled and enlarged. The car wash would be at the Camino Alto-Miller Avenue corner of the lot.

The city council also overturned planning commission refusal to let a delicatessen owner move his business across a parking lot to a new location on East Blithedale Avenue.

Ray Offenbach, who now operates the delicatessen inside the Mill Valley Food Mart at 238 East Blithedale, wants to move to an abandoned auto sales office at 244 East Blithedale, where he would also have space for outdoor tables.

Planning commissioners argued that the delicatessen would cause heavy traffic on Blithedale.

Councilman Capron commented that congestion would get worse if the auto dealer service center next door ever lost the lease on its parking lot.

Offenbach presented a petition signed by 100 supporters as well as several supporting letters.

Councilmen finally agreed unanimously to grant him a use permit, but said it will expire whenever the auto dealer's parking lot is lost. They also insisted that a better circulation pattern be developed for the parking lot.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed James T. Ruby of 100 Eldridge Avenue to the library board and Marriott Carlsen of 4 Bayview Avenue to the dog control committee.

DOGS — Set up an area at the Mill Valley Yacht Harbor as a dog reserve where animals can be exercised without adhering to the new city leash law.

GENERAL PLAN — Urged citizens to apply for positions on a special citizen committee which will help prepare a new general plan.

BONDS — Voted to issue $275,000 in 1973 fire protection bonds, which were approved for the building of a new firehouse in East Mill Valley.

Council To Eye Budget

The Mill Valley City Council will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at city hall to consider its proposed 1973-74 budget of $2,857,646.

According to City Mgr. William H. Cunningham, this could be the city's final budget hearing. It will be the first at which councilmen will add or subtract items from the spending originally proposed by Cunningham.

The proposed spending is up $459,880 from the 1972-73 budget.

Police Criticize Fairfax Pay Vote

Charging that the Fairfax Town Council "put policemen in the garbage heap," negotiators for the Fairfax Police Officers' Association last night angrily refused to endorse the council's proffered pay settlement. (Another Fairfax Town Council story, page 1.)

On a 3-2 vote, the council awarded all sworn public safety officers a 2.5 per cent mid-year wage hike, and a 2.5 per cent fringe benefit boost. These increases are in addition to the blanket 5 per cent cost-of-living increase given to all city employees.

The firemen agreed to the council's compromise plan, but police spokesmen, who had asked for a 10 per cent wage hike, refused to approve the settlement.

In discussion of its proposal, the council was divided, with Councilman Frank J. Egger and Mayor E. Ross Parkerson in favor, and Councilmen Lee Nelder and Robert R. Souza opposed. Councilman Albert E. Gately, the apparently undecided swing vote, paused for about 15 seconds in thought before delivering his affirmative ballot.

Despite their disatisfaction, police service to the town will not be affected, the officers association said in an open letter to the town council. Policemen are not allowed by law to strike, the letter read, and therefore their failure to approve the raise granted is only a protest against council indifference.

Richard H. Breiner, an attorney for the police group, told the council that keeping police and fire negotiations until last on the budget review calendar was unfair. He said "You have put policemen in the garbage heap and said, 'Here's what's left' " of the unappropriated revenue.

Several councilmen objected to Breiner's criticism, replying that discussion of police and fire salaries was slated for early in the budget review but was unavoidably delayed.

Breiner said that should not matter. He quoted a letter to the editor in yesterday's Independent-Journal from Gratia E. Landley of Fairfax: "Every budget has some 'fat' in it, and it strikes me that law enforcement personnel should not have to subsist on bare bones."

Breiner called for an overhaul of some of the previously reviewed departmental budgets, to scrape up money to give police a fair wage settlement. Souza said that he had reviewed the spending program again, and could not find the alleged fat.

In that case, Breiner replied, council priorities should dictate that law enforcement needs come before those of other departments. Breiner said that more than 80 per cent of Fairfax's patrolmen were first-year men, indicating that the force fails to keep patrolmen after they have served their apprenticeship. A Fairfax patrolman's salary is about $28 per month lower than the county average, Breiner continued.

Parkerson said, "This is a town that can't come up to what everyone else is paying — it's a fact of life."

Gately agreed. "I just don't know where we're going to get the money without a tax increase."

Breiner said that if the townspeople were aware of the facts in the case, they would even support a tax increase to keep the quality of their police force high. "The benefits to the city would be well-worth the amount," he said.

Although councilmen agreed they should not be obligated to keep the town's pay up to county averages, later in the meeting they used county average statistics to justify 11th-hour wage boosts to several clerical employees.

In protesting the council's wage settlement, the officers association outlined a program of four projects for which it would work in the coming year.

1. Writing public information letters.
2. Working for state legislation regarding binding arbitration for public safety employees in wage negotiations.
3. Working to obtain ordinances within the town of Fairfax to improve the positions of the police officers;
4. Campaigning for town council candidates who will be more sympathetic to the needs of Fairfax town employees.

Decade-Old Murder Returns To Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Geza de Kaplany was told in 1961 that he was dying of lymph cancer, a diagnosis "that just destroyed me. I didn't want to die."

De Kaplany's 25-year-old showgirl-model wife, Hajna, was fatally injured on Aug. 28, 1962, when acid was splashed over a large part of her body.

The Hungarian-born doctor said the cumulative effects of the diagnosis of his own illness, apparently faulty, "and my sorrow over my wife's horrible fate ... completely demoralized me and disrupted my normal frame of mind."

De Kaplany said that after he was charged with killing his wife, his then attorney E. F. Devilbliss, continually tried to get him to change his plea from innocent to guilty. He changed his plea after the prosecution introduced into the trial in Santa Clara County a large photograph "of my wife, lying nude in the morgue, horribly acid mutilated."

Devilbliss, he said, told him, "There is a lynch mob waiting for you out there. You're as guilty as hell. You haven't got a prayer. The jury is going to convict you no matter what."

After he changed his plea, he was found sane at the time of the crime and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

De Kaplany was back in court yesterday to relate wyat he said were the circumstances of his conviction more than a decade ago.

His new attorney, Joseph Malkin of Los Angeles, asked U.S. District Court Judge William T. Sweigert to grant a writ of habeas corpus that would give de Kaplany his freedom. The hearing continues today.

Malkin argued that the trial judge failed to hold a hearing to determine de Kaplany's competence to stand trial; the defendant's guilty plea was not a voluntary, knowing, intelligent act; de Kaplany was ineffectively represented by his attorney, and there was massive and prejudicial publicity that denied him due process of law.

Deputy Attorney General Karl Mayer said that de Kaplany was "very aware and competent" at the time of his plea.

"And now, 10 years later, we are trying to second guess laudable efforts by the counsel on the part of de Kaplany," Mayer said.

Paris Ignores Atom Test Protests

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — French sources said today that growing international opposition to French nuclear tests in the South Pacific will only harden Paris' decision to go ahead with its planned series of atmospheric explosions.

France was reported ready to start the series of atmospheric tests on Mururoa atoll, 650 miles southeast of Tahiti, at any time. Warships were reported ready for the orders from Paris to set off the first blast.

The New Zealand Navay frigate Otago, one of several protest ships in the atoll area, today reported "intense air activity" over the area, a New Zealand Defense Ministry spokesman in Wellington said.

The spokesman said the ship at some stages had up to three aircraft, all believed to be French military, on the radar screen at the same time.

Correspondents on the ship reported that the air activity increased speculation the test may be imminent. The weather was clear and satisfactory for the blast to go ahead.

The Defense Ministry spokesman said France would probably not proceed with the test, however, without giving the usual 24-hour final notice to ships and aircraft.

Meanwhile, there were more protests yesterday in Rome, Santiago, Chile, and Paris itself.

French authorities refused to say when the tests would start. Officials said the first word would come "from abroad," presumably when countries monitoring the tests announce the first explosion.

To set the stage for the testing, which began in the South Pacific in 1966, France decreed a 72-mile danger zone around Mururoa and ordered all ships to leave the area.

Officials said France had the right to expel ships refusing to go.

The protest vessels are part of the international uproar over the tests, which began with Australian and New Zealand claims that the tests could damage the health of their populations. France denied this.

But newspapers published a letter sent today by Polynesian opposition leaders Francis Sanford and Pouvanah A. Oopa to President Georges Pompidou to protest the tests. Pompidou, the letter said, should let islanders vote on whether it wants its territory used for nuclear testing.

In diplomatic moves, Chile accused France of violating international law by conducting the tests and sent Paris an official protest. France, like China, has not signed the treaty barring atmospheric testing.

Gold Sales Studied As Cure For Dollar

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar sank lower in European markets today and a West German banking official said the central banks of the United States and other Western countries might start selling gold on the free market to prop it up.

"It's a down trend for the dollar," said a currency dealer in Stockholm.

"There doesn't seem to be any reason," said a Paris dealer. "The dollar is just not stable these days."

With no central bank support reported in any country, the American currency opened lower on most European markets today, and in a half-day's trading dropped lower still with the exceptions of Paris and London.

The dollar's value moved slightly upward in Paris to about 4.035 francs from the morning opening of 3.96 francs, and to $2.54825 in London from the morning pound price of $2.5497.

It dropped in Brussels to 34.715 Belgian francs, nearly one per cent below the morning opening of 36.10 francs, fell to 2.326 West German marks, down from 2.335 this morning, and dropped in Amsterdam and Stockholm.

Dr. Otmar Emminger, Vice President of the West German central bank, told the Bonn newspaper Handelsblatt he thought the selling of gold by central banks could end the speculation which recently has driven the dollar down and gold up to levels unimaginable only a half year ago.

Emminger's remarks, all paraphrased, none directly quoted, were the lead story in today's Handelsblatt.

"Anyone who still wants to speculate on the gold market ought first to read Dr. Emminger's remarks carefully," the Handelsblatt said of the interview.

"Dr. Emminger considers it probable that even before the working out of an international monetary reform, possibly in a relatively short time, the central banks will be allowed to sell gold from their monetary reserves on the free market," Handelsblatt said.

"If it comes to that, Emminger went on, action reflecting the situation would be for the United States to sell gold on the market for dollars, and then take them out of circulation," Handelsblatt said.

"Thus two flies could be killed with a single swatter. First, such an action would contribute to support of the dollar, and second, it would have a cooling effect on the speculative overheating of the gold market.

Gold prices on the big London bullion market opened at $120.25 an ounce, up from a $119.75 close yesterday. The British pound sold for $2.5497 versus $2,5470 yesterday.

The financial dollar in Paris traded at 3.96 French francs, down from 4.09 francs, while dollars traded at 2.3350 West German marks, down from 2.3595 marks yesterday in Frankfurt.

Dealers said yesterday traders were awaiting possible central bank action to support the dollar before moving into the market in a big way. That led to a quiet day yesterday on the European markets.

But the dollar moved up in Tokyo yesterday, demonstrating the instability of the currency, and it rose again today in the Japanese capital. It changed hands at 265.10 yen today, compared with 265.05 yesterday.

London dealers said the official Bank of Japan had to step into the market yesterday to sell dollars to prevent the dollar's price rising too much.

Raiders' Family Day Is July 28

The Oakland Raiders' eighth annual Family Day will be held Saturday, July 28, and not last Saturday, as incorrectly reported in Thursday's Independent-Journal.

Clinics and demonstrations on various phases of offensive and defensive play will be conducted, and players will be available afterwards for interviews, autographs and picture-taking. The program is free to the public. Site is the Raiders' training camp in Santa Rosa.

More Anger On Bombing Than Bugs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, sees more grounds for impeachment of President Nixon for the unannounced 1970 bombing of Cambodia than in the Watergate bugging.

"This is certainly more grounds than what they have dredged up on Watergate," Saxbe said yesterday when told of the administration's confirmation of the bombings.

"I think this is a further evidence that the administration was telling them (the military) to do this," he said. "I am not ready now to blame it on the military. I think they were getting their orders from the commander-in-chief and therefore the commander-in-chief should have to answer for it..

"If the charge is serious enough, there's impeachment. I think that if it is disclosed there was deceit in this and other things, that nothing short of that (impeachment) is going to satisfy them (congressmen)."

The Mechanicsburg Republican refused further comment, "because I would be on the jury if there is impeechment."

Saxbe said he was certain the Cambodia bombing would end by the Aug. 15 deadline agreed to by Nixon and Congress.

"If they don't, there's going to be plenty of hell raised," he said.

1,400-Plus Cambodia Raids Covered, Pentagon Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon said today more than 1,400 secret bombing raids were flown in Cambodia, beginning in March 1969.

A Defense Department spokesman, Jerry W. Friedheim, disclosed at the same time that falsified records were used to hide B52 strikes in Laos prior to March of 1970. He did not elaborate on the dimensions of that activity.

Friedheim said the exact numbers on the strikes in Cambodia still were classified, but that the raids ran in the hundreds for 14 months.

Friedheim also said some members of Congress were told about the bombing, while others who inquired about it were kept in the dark. One of those kept uninformed was Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Friedheim said documents were forwarded through the official chain of command to make it appear —inaccurately —that the Cambodian raids had been against targets in South Vietnam, but that the correct information was delivered though secret channels to top Pentagon officials.

The Pentagon acknowledged the secret raids in Cambodia for the first time yesterday.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said the strikes were kept from the public because of the sensitive diplomatic situation at the time, when Cambodia was a "neutral" country under the rule of Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The Pentagon announcement came after former Air Force Maj. Hal M. Knight, 37, testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee that he processed 20 to 24 B52 raids for Cambodia in the months before the May, 1970, U.S. invasion of Cambodia, which formally put the country in the Indochina war.

Schlesinger said the raids were "fully authorized" by officials in Washington. He said the purpose of the cover-up was to protect "the sensitive operational and diplomatic situation."

Both Sens. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., and Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said they knew the raids were going on at the time.

"I was one of many who knew there were raids going on," Goldwater said.

Goldwater said the raids were conducted at the request of Prince Sihanouk.

The raids apparently were directed at Vietnamese Communist base camps in western Cambodia along the border with South Vietnam.

Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said he did not know about the raids and would continue an inquiry to find out who originated the orders for falsifying the records.

Paris Ignores Atom Test Protests

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — French sources said today that growing international opposition to French nuclear tests in the South Pacific will only harden Paris' decision to go ahead with its planned series of atmospheric explosions.

France was reported ready to start the series of atmospheric tests on Mururoa atoll, 650 miles southeast of Tahiti, at any time. Warships were reported ready for the orders from Paris to set off the first blast.

The New Zealand Navay frigate Otago, one of several protest ships in the atoll area, today reported "intense air activity" over the area, a New Zealand Defense Ministry spokesman in Wellington said.

The spokesman said the ship at some stages had up to three aircraft, all believed to be French military, on the radar screen at the same time.

Correspondents on the ship reported that the air activity increased speculation the test may be imminent. The weather was clear and satisfactory for the blast to go ahead.

The Defense Ministry spokesman said France would probably not proceed with the test, however, without giving the usual 24-hour final notice to ships and aircraft.

Meanwhile, there were more protests yesterday in Rome, Santiago, Chile, and Paris itself.

French authorities refused to say when the tests would start. Officials said the first word would come "from abroad," presumably when countries monitoring the tests announce the first explosion.

To set the stage for the testing, which began in the South Pacific in 1966, France decreed a 72-mile danger zone around Mururoa and ordered all ships to leave the area.

Officials said France had the right to expel ships refusing to go.

The protest vessels are part of the international uproar over the tests, which began with Australian and New Zealand claims that the tests could damage the health of their populations. France denied this.

But newspapers published a letter sent today by Polynesian opposition leaders Francis Sanford and Pouvanah A. Oopa to President Georges Pompidou to protest the tests. Pompidou, the letter said, should let islanders vote on whether it wants its territory used for nuclear testing.

In diplomatic moves, Chile accused France of violating international law by conducting the tests and sent Paris an official protest. France, like China, has not signed the treaty barring atmospheric testing.

Gold Sales Studied As Cure For Dollar

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar sank lower in European markets today and a West German banking official said the central banks of the United States and other Western countries might start selling gold on the free market to prop it up.

"It's a down trend for the dollar," said a currency dealer in Stockholm.

"There doesn't seem to be any reason," said a Paris dealer. "The dollar is just not stable these days."

With no central bank support reported in any country, the American currency opened lower on most European markets today, and in a half-day's trading dropped lower still with the exceptions of Paris and London.

The dollar's value moved slightly upward in Paris to about 4.035 francs from the morning opening of 3.96 francs, and to $2.54825 in London from the morning pound price of $2.5497.

It dropped in Brussels to 34.715 Belgian francs, nearly one per cent below the morning opening of 36.10 francs, fell to 2.326 West German marks, down from 2.335 this morning, and dropped in Amsterdam and Stockholm.

Dr. Otmar Emminger, Vice President of the West German central bank, told the Bonn newspaper Handelsblatt he thought the selling of gold by central banks could end the speculation which recently has driven the dollar down and gold up to levels unimaginable only a half year ago.

Emminger's remarks, all paraphrased, none directly quoted, were the lead story in today's Handelsblatt.

"Anyone who still wants to speculate on the gold market ought first to read Dr. Emminger's remarks carefully," the Handelsblatt said of the interview.

"Dr. Emminger considers it probable that even before the working out of an international monetary reform, possibly in a relatively short time, the central banks will be allowed to sell gold from their monetary reserves on the free market," Handelsblatt said.

"If it comes to that, Emminger went on, action reflecting the situation would be for the United States to sell gold on the market for dollars, and then take them out of circulation," Handelsblatt said.

"Thus two flies could be killed with a single swatter. First, such an action would contribute to support of the dollar, and second, it would have a cooling effect on the speculative overheating of the gold market.

Gold prices on the big London bullion market opened at $120.25 an ounce, up from a $119.75 close yesterday. The British pound sold for $2.5497 versus $2,5470 yesterday.

The financial dollar in Paris traded at 3.96 French francs, down from 4.09 francs, while dollars traded at 2.3350 West German marks, down from 2.3595 marks yesterday in Frankfurt.

Dealers said yesterday traders were awaiting possible central bank action to support the dollar before moving into the market in a big way. That led to a quiet day yesterday on the European markets.

But the dollar moved up in Tokyo yesterday, demonstrating the instability of the currency, and it rose again today in the Japanese capital. It changed hands at 265.10 yen today, compared with 265.05 yesterday.

London dealers said the official Bank of Japan had to step into the market yesterday to sell dollars to prevent the dollar's price rising too much.

More Anger On Bombing Than Bugs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, sees more grounds for impeachment of President Nixon for the unannounced 1970 bombing of Cambodia than in the Watergate bugging.

"This is certainly more grounds than what they have dredged up on Watergate," Saxbe said yesterday when told of the administration's confirmation of the bombings.

"I think this is a further evidence that the administration was telling them (the military) to do this," he said. "I am not ready now to blame it on the military. I think they were getting their orders from the commander-in-chief and therefore the commander-in-chief should have to answer for it..

"If the charge is serious enough, there's impeachment. I think that if it is disclosed there was deceit in this and other things, that nothing short of that (impeachment) is going to satisfy them (congressmen)."

The Mechanicsburg Republican refused further comment, "because I would be on the jury if there is impeechment."

Saxbe said he was certain the Cambodia bombing would end by the Aug. 15 deadline agreed to by Nixon and Congress.

"If they don't, there's going to be plenty of hell raised," he said.

1,400-Plus Cambodia Raids Covered, Pentagon Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon said today more than 1,400 secret bombing raids were flown in Cambodia, beginning in March 1969.

A Defense Department spokesman, Jerry W. Friedheim, disclosed at the same time that falsified records were used to hide B52 strikes in Laos prior to March of 1970. He did not elaborate on the dimensions of that activity.

Friedheim said the exact numbers on the strikes in Cambodia still were classified, but that the raids ran in the hundreds for 14 months.

Friedheim also said some members of Congress were told about the bombing, while others who inquired about it were kept in the dark. One of those kept uninformed was Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Friedheim said documents were forwarded through the official chain of command to make it appear —inaccurately —that the Cambodian raids had been against targets in South Vietnam, but that the correct information was delivered though secret channels to top Pentagon officials.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said the strikes were kept from the public because of the sensitive diplomatic situation at the time, when Cambodia was a "neutral" country under the rule of Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The Pentagon announcement came after former Air Force Maj. Hal M. Knight, 37, testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee that he processed 20 to 24 B52 raids for Cambodia in the months before the May, 1970, U.S. invasion of Cambodia, which formally put the country in the Indochina war.

Schlesinger said the raids were "fully authorized" by officials in Washington. He said the purpose of the cover-up was to protect "the sensitive operational and diplomatic situation."

Both Sens. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., and Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said they knew the raids were going on at the time.

"I was one of many who knew there were raids going on," Goldwater said.

Goldwater said the raids were conducted at the request of Prince Sihanouk.

The raids apparently were directed at Vietnamese Communist base camps in western Cambodia along the border with South Vietnam.

Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said he did not know about the raids and would continue an inquiry to find out who originated the orders for falsifying the records.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR June G. Clarke (left) of the Clarke Home Nursing Service in San Rafael discusses health care in the home, while Audrey R. Alber, director of nurses, packs the necessary items in the nurse's bag in preparation for a home visit.

CARE IN THE HOME

Alternative To Hospitals

By BETTY FROST

With hospital costs continually increasing, only acutely ill patients can remain in the hospital long. What kind of care can Marin patients find when they are convalescing or if they are chronically ill?

In 1961, Mrs. Richard Clarke, a former resident of Mill Valley, who now lives in Tiburon, thought about that problem, and started the Clarke Home Nursing Service, with offices in San Rafael. Last year she added the Clarke Homemaker Service to assist families through times of emergency.

"Many patients find hospital care impersonal and frightening," Mrs. Clarke said. "With greater efficiency in institutions the human element slips out. I foresee more care in the home. Many government packages now being considered in legislation include home care as a part of health team services."

The nursing service is available on referral from private physicians, and under the programs of Medicare, MediCal and the Veterans Administration.

The visits of the nurses are no longer in four hour blocks, Audrey R. Alber, director of nurses, explained. The nurses go into homes for one or two hours. Besides giving the care ordered by doctors, the nurses teach the patients and the family members how to care for the patient.

"WE CAN teach the patients to change their own dressings, to give their own insulin injections, and explain to the family why it is important to keep the patient moving, how to adapt equipment for home care and how to set up the sick room most efficiently."

Mrs. Clarke revealed that the nurses do not wear uniforms anymore. They have a very practical white terry cloth apron which is easy to launder. The traditional nurse's bag is also light weight now and the equipment carried is often disposable. This limits the chance of infection and is easier to carry.

There are 10 nurses, eight aides and one physical therapist consultant on the staff.

The aides, who do wear uniforms, handle the homemaker service calls.

"This service was established after considerable research to fill a gap," the executive director said. She indicated it is useful when the mother of several small children is ill herself, or to give the elderly spouse a little break when caring for a chronically ill husband or wife. The homemaker program provides help with bathing, meal preparation, light cleaning and laundry, and assists with keeping the household running.

The nursing service in San Rafael is affiliated with the California Association of Home Health Agencies and the National Association of Home Health Agencies. It is certified by the Social Security Administration as a Home Health Agency and licensed by the State Department of Health Care Services.

They have an on-going inservice training program to which experts in the Bay Area are invited to talk to staff members. They continually discuss changes in procedures and new techniques.

June Clarke's husband, Richard is in the advertising business. Their grown sons are Kenneth, who lives in Kenwood (Sonoma County), and Richard, who is a gradaute student at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

TWELVE YEARS ago she felt her family responsibilities were less, and that she wanted to do something more satisfying that volunteer work.

"At that time there was no visiting nurse group in Marin County," Mrs. Clarke explained, and seeing the need, she founded her home nursing service.

She had attended the University of Redlands and received the registered nurse degree from Mercy College of Nursing in San Diego. She studied public health nursing at California State University, San Diego. Mrs. Clarke enlisted in the Army Nurse Corps, and served in Hawaii during World War II, attaining the rank of captain. She was employed by the San Diego Public Health Department as a district field nurse and has been a general duty nurse at Ross General Hospital.

'Handsome' Folks See Ceilings

I-J Special Report

CHICAGO — If you want your children to grow into attractive adults, be sure they sleep on their backs, says Sally Ames, sleep consultant to a mattress company in Chicago.

The advice is based on a five-year study by a Colorado Springs dental researcher who found that sleeping on the stomach or side can cause crooked teeth, facial malformations, and poor posture.

To prevent such problems in your children, says the study report, place them on their backs at bedtime and check on them periodically to be certain they remain in that position.

CARE IN THE HOME

Alternative To Hospitals

By BETTY FROST

With hospital costs continually increasing, only acutely ill patients can remain in the hospital long. What kind of care can Marin patients find when they are convalescing or if they are chronically ill?

In 1961, Mrs. Richard Clarke, a former resident of Mill Valley, who now lives in Tiburon, thought about that problem, and started the Clarke Home Nursing Service, with offices in San Rafael. Last year she added the Clarke Homemaker Service to assist families through times of emergency.

"Many patients find hospital care impersonal and frightening," Mrs. Clarke said. "With greater efficiency in institutions the human element slips out. I foresee more care in the home. Many government packages now being considered in legislation include home care as a part of health team services."

The nursing service is available on referral from private physicians, and under the programs of Medicare, MediCal and the Veterans Administration.

The visits of the nurses are no longer in four hour blocks, Audrey R. Alber, director of nurses, explained. The nurses go into homes for one or two hours. Besides giving the care ordered by doctors, the nurses teach the patients and the family members how to care for the patient.

"WE CAN teach the patients to change their own dressings, to give their own insulin injections, and explain to the family why it is important to keep the patient moving, how to adapt equipment for home care and how to set up the sick room most efficiently."

Mrs. Clarke revealed that the nurses do not wear uniforms anymore. They have a very practical white terry cloth apron which is easy to launder. The traditional nurse's bag is also light weight now and the equipment carried is often disposable. This limits the chance of infection and is easier to carry.

There are 10 nurses, eight aides and one physical therapist consultant on the staff.

The aides, who do wear uniforms, handle the homemaker service calls.

"This service was established after considerable research to fill a gap," the executive director said. She indicated it is useful when the mother of several small children is ill herself, or to give the elderly spouse a little break when caring for a chronically ill husband or wife. The homemaker program provides help with bathing, meal preparation, light cleaning and laundry, and assists with keeping the household running.

The nursing service in San Rafael is affiliated with the California Association of Home Health Agencies and the National Association of Home Health Agencies. It is certified by the Social Security Administration as a Home Health Agency and licensed by the State Department of Health Care Services.

They have an on-going inservice training program to which experts in the Bay Area are invited to talk to staff members. They continually discuss changes in procedures and new techniques.

June Clarke's husband, Richard is in the advertising business. Their grown sons are Kenneth, who lives in Kenwood (Sonoma County), and Richard, who is a gradaute student at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

TWELVE YEARS ago she felt her family responsibilities were less, and that she wanted to do something more satisfying that volunteer work.

"At that time there was no visiting nurse group in Marin County," Mrs. Clarke explained, and seeing the need, she founded her home nursing service.

She had attended the University of Redlands and received the registered nurse degree from Mercy College of Nursing in San Diego. She studied public health nursing at California State University, San Diego. Mrs. Clarke enlisted in the Army Nurse Corps, and served in Hawaii during World War II, attaining the rank of captain. She was employed by the San Diego Public Health Department as a district field nurse and has been a general duty nurse at Ross General Hospital.

'Handsome' Folks See Ceilings

I-J Special Report

CHICAGO — If you want your children to grow into attractive adults, be sure they sleep on their backs, says Sally Ames, sleep consultant to a mattress company in Chicago.

The advice is based on a five-year study by a Colorado Springs dental researcher who found that sleeping on the stomach or side can cause crooked teeth, facial malformations, and poor posture.

To prevent such problems in your children, says the study report, place them on their backs at bedtime and check on them periodically to be certain they remain in that position.

Married Man Works And Lives Away, But He Eats At Home

RAP:

I've been married eight months and I may not make it to nine! Before we were married, Tom spent all his time with me. He lived at home and his parents never saw him, except when he came in to eat and sleep.

Well, I guess I'm taking the place of his folks now, because I only see him at suppertime (sometimes) and when he comes in late after being with the guys all weekend. He works out of town (bunks with two other fellows) and is only home on Saturdays and Sundays. But he's never at our home.

He says I shouldn't complain because I have all week to bum around while he's gone. But I'd like to do a few things together, or just be together.

I decided to show him how it felt so I wasn't home when he came in late Saturday night (I didn't tell him I was with my sister). He called me names and said if I ever "went out on him" again, he'd leave me. But he doesn't see he's doing the same thing to me.

I think he's so used to treating "home" as someplace to "land" and take off from that he doesn't realize he's got a wife and not a mother. He's always telling me how she never complained and he could count on her being there whenever he got home.

Is there any hope for this marraige? — MIGHT AS WELL BE SINGLE

MAWBS:

Maybe your man hasn't shaken down to married life yet because, working away from home all week, he's "single" five days out of seven, and therefore doesn't get much practice.

Have you considered moving to his work location? A full time wife might make a husband of him. If not, then perhaps he's the type who should have no wife at all. — HELEN NOTE FROM SUE: And if you've got a guy who only wants a mother not a wife, don't waste your life on him.

DEAR RAP:

Is it too late to get extra copies of your questionnaire on the Generation Rap Teen Survey (about parents and other things)? Several of my friends would like to be included. — D.T.M.

D.:

Extra copies of our Teen Questionnaire are available. Send a long stamped self-addressed envelope with your request to Helen and Sue Bottel, care of this newspaper. — RAP

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

When your good friend works as a waitress, and you bring friends to the restaurant (your treat), do you tip your personal friend?

What if your personal friend is a waiter and you're a girl? Do you tip him?

Several of the people I know at college wait tables at this hotel dining room where you're supposed to tip at least 15 percent. If I don't, they might think I was cheap and if I do they might be offended. Which? — EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED:

Show me the college student who gets offended by money! Waiting tables is your friend's job and part of her (his) pay comes through tips. If anything, leave a little more than usual! — SUE

DEAR EMB.:

If this bothers you, or you think it might bother your friends, choose another restaurant. But really, it shouldn't be a problem, among real friends. — HELEN

NOTE FROM SUE: Don't get your waitress or waiter friends in trouble by acting too friendly and taking up valuable time. The boss frowns on that.

Intrauterine Device Is Defended

NEW YORK — Three million American women using intrauterine devices (IUD's) can breathe easily, according to informed medical authorities. Recent scare headlines about the safety of the IUD, which emanated from House subcommittee hearings in Washington, are being called unscientific and groundless by experts in the field.

Among the first to speak out on the matter was Dr. Ervin E. Nichols, associate director of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists in Chicago. Dr. Nichols called the testimony in Washington "ill considered and unsubstantiated."

Dr. Nichols pointed out that there are "superb statistical data as to the effectiveness" of the IUD, which he called second only to the pill in effectiveness.

Dr. Samuel Breslow, head of family planning at Perth Amboy, N.J. General Hospital, also disagrees that IUD's are unsafe. After 12 years and 4,000 IUD prescriptions, he said, his medical group has never had any serious problems.

Pantyhose Colors Will Be Popular

For fall, color in both opaque and sheer pantyhouse will be popular and will coordinate with clothes. The newest kind of matching will be shoes and hose of the same shade.

Newest colors are dark reds and greens, with gray, dark brown and navy also favored.

A NICE reminder of an earlier time: You can live modern and still enjoy the quality of Early Americana. These steel-supported seating pieces by Flexsteel Industries combine the best features of the 200-year knowhow of American furniture makers.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

Americana Decor Features The Colonial Mixed With Modern

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

With the 200th anniversary of American independence just three years away, there's a lot of research going on in the design studios of furniture and accessory manufacturers. By 1976, everyone will be into the act of showing interpretations or direct reproductions of American Colonial concepts.

Not all of those concepts are dated, as anyone who collects American Colonial pieces will testify. Cabinetmakers of the era usually based their work on established classic forms they remembered from Europe. But they always added something distinctive or pertinent to their new American lifestyle.

One of the finest sources of reference material for that early period is the Index of American Design, maintained by the Smithsonian Institution. And it's an experience just to flip through the publications showing household objects from the period.

You don't have to be a purist to enjoy a bit of Americana in your home. Right now many of us are living with 20th-Century Americana — a crazy mix of Early American pieces and modern technology. Our kitchens and living rooms are probably the best examples of this mix.

In our living rooms we may sit on chairs we call Early American, even though they are supported by sophisticated steel frames. One such example is the room shown today. It has the cozy, comfortable look we associate with the family room of 200 years ago.

The sofa and chairs are from Flexsteel's Nantucket collection, featuring the tufted ease of high-back construction. The nubby tweed fabrics have that homespun look, yet they are actually woven of olefin fibers. And while the overall look is Americana revisited, note the plump, weltless seat cushions — a design idea we've observed in modern seating concepts.

It's hard to create this comfortable look in many of today's boxy apartments and simple houses. So we asked the design co-ordinator for Flexsteel Industries how to make a visual bridge between the Colonial furnishings and modern interior walls and floor surfaces.

"First, review the existing furnishings. Check the garage or storage area to see if you have stashed some oldies but goodies. Some of those older items might find new uses," said Branson.

"CONSIDER AN arrangement of furniture that provides closer personal contact. Add a fireplace — even a modern free-standing one. Perhaps the walls could be given a new surface covering (something like a smokey pine) and beams might be added to walls and ceilings."

Branson suggests that if the apartment or home owner objects to built-in beams, you might use lightweight plastic beams. They look great and are easy to install and remove.

A braid rug always seems to add particular charm to such a room, and even Oriental rugs can be used if fabrics are not too much on the country side. Accessories can be totally oriented to the former era, with lamps of brass, porcelain or wood.

Daisies Plus Melons For Cool Dining

To add cool refreshment and sparkling eye appeal to your outdoor dining, try serving chilled fruit in a watermelon basket trimmed with daisies, suggests the Society of American Florists.

Make the basket by cutting a large, whole watermelon diagonally toward the center from each end and about half-way up. Leave a two-inch strip uncut in the middle to form a handle. Next, cut downward on both sides of the handle and put aside the two excess pieces of watermelon. Hollow out all of the red watermelon fruit both from the basket and the two spare pieces.

Cover the basket handle with daisies. Florist wire makes the job easy. You may want to cut scallops in the rim of the basket for an added decorative touch.

Form the watermelon fruit into small bite-sized balls and pile in one end of the basket. Save the excess fruit for replenishing the basket later. Into the other end of the basket, pile fresh, red strawberries. Fill the center with bite-sized balls of canteloupe and arrange all three piles of fruit so they meet.

Place the filled basket in the refrigerator until time to serve, then use it as a centerpiece on a cool green tablecloth. Arrange additional daisies on the table cloth completely encircling the basket.

Sleeping Doesn't Mix With Smoke

I-J Special Report

CHICAGO — Next to a good mattress, quitting smoking is a good way to get to sleep faster and sleep better, according to research done at the University of California at Los Angeles.

The study revealed that chronic smokers dreamed very little and seldom achieved deep sleep. Almost as soon as they quit smoking, they fell asleep quicker, slept longer, and had a normal, more restful sleep.

Early Nurse Had Very Rough Days

After a day of cleaning the chimney, fetching coal, trimming candlewicks and bathing a typhoid patient, Elizabeth Wilcox Beckwith might have been granted an evening off for "courting purposes." If, that is, she never smoked, never had her hair done at a beauty parlor or otherwise gave her superiors good reason to suspect her moral character.

Mrs. Beckwith was one of the earliest graduates of a hospital school of nursing. Since that time — she and millions of other girls (and an increasing number of men) have graduated from hospital-based schools of nursing, ready in the words of Florence Nightingale, to "carry out medical and surgical orders."

I decided to show him how it felt so I wasn't home when he came in late Saturday night (I didn't tell him I was with my sister). He called me names and said if I ever "went out on him" again, he'd leave me. But he doesn't see he's doing the same thing to me.

I think he's so used to treating "home" as someplace to "land" and take off from that he doesn't realize he's got a wife and not a mother. He's always telling me how she never complained and he could count on her being there whenever he got home.

Is there any hope for this marraige? — MIGHT AS WELL BE SINGLE

MAWBS:

Maybe your man hasn't shaken down to married life yet because, working away from home all week, he's "single" five days out of seven, and therefore doesn't get much practice.

Have you considered moving to his work location? A full time wife might make a husband of him. If not, then perhaps he's the type who should have no wife at all. — HELEN NOTE FROM SUE: And if you've got a guy who only wants a mother not a wife, don't waste your life on him.

DEAR RAP:

Is it too late to get extra copies of your questionnaire on the Generation Rap Teen Survey (about parents and other things)? Several of my friends would like to be included. — D.T.M.

D.:

Extra copies of our Teen Questionnaire are available. Send a long stamped self-addressed envelope with your request to Helen and Sue Bottel, care of this newspaper. — RAP

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

When your good friend works as a waitress, and you bring friends to the restaurant (your treat), do you tip your personal friend?

What if your personal friend is a waiter and you're a girl? Do you tip him?

Several of the people I know at college wait tables at this hotel dining room where you're supposed to tip at least 15 percent. If I don't, they might think I was cheap and if I do they might be offended. Which? — EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED:

Show me the college student who gets offended by money! Waiting tables is your friend's job and part of her (his) pay comes through tips. If anything, leave a little more than usual! — SUE

DEAR EMB.:

If this bothers you, or you think it might bother your friends, choose another restaurant. But really, it shouldn't be a problem, among real friends. — HELEN

NOTE FROM SUE: Don't get your waitress or waiter friends in trouble by acting too friendly and taking up valuable time. The boss frowns on that.

Intrauterine Device Is Defended

NEW YORK — Three million American women using intrauterine devices (IUD's) can breathe easily, according to informed medical authorities. Recent scare headlines about the safety of the IUD, which emanated from House subcommittee hearings in Washington, are being called unscientific and groundless by experts in the field.

Among the first to speak out on the matter was Dr. Ervin E. Nichols, associate director of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists in Chicago. Dr. Nichols called the testimony in Washington "ill considered and unsubstantiated."

Dr. Nichols pointed out that there are "superb statistical data as to the effectiveness" of the IUD, which he called second only to the pill in effectiveness.

Dr. Samuel Breslow, head of family planning at Perth Amboy, N.J. General Hospital, also disagrees that IUD's are unsafe. After 12 years and 4,000 IUD prescriptions, he said, his medical group has never had any serious problems.

A NICE reminder of an earlier time: You can live modern and still enjoy the quality of Early Americana. These steel-supported seating pieces by Flexsteel Industries combine the best features of the 200-year knowhow of American furniture makers.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

With the 200th anniversary of American independence just three years away, there's a lot of research going on in the design studios of furniture and accessory manufacturers. By 1976, everyone will be into the act of showing interpretations or direct reproductions of American Colonial concepts.

Not all of those concepts are dated, as anyone who collects American Colonial pieces will testify. Cabinetmakers of the era usually based their work on established classic forms they remembered from Europe. But they always added something distinctive or pertinent to their new American lifestyle.

One of the finest sources of reference material for that early period is the Index of American Design, maintained by the Smithsonian Institution. And it's an experience just to flip through the publications showing household objects from the period.

You don't have to be a purist to enjoy a bit of Americana in your home. Right now many of us are living with 20th-Century Americana — a crazy mix of Early American pieces and modern technology. Our kitchens and living rooms are probably the best examples of this mix.

MODERN WASHING machines, dishwashers, electric can openers, ice-cube makers, trash compactors are all living contentedly with maple dinette sets, gingham curtains and place mats.

In our living rooms we may sit on chairs we call Early American, even though they are supported by sophisticated steel frames. One such example is the room shown today. It has the cozy, comfortable look we associate with the family room of 200 years ago.

The sofa and chairs are from Flexsteel's Nantucket collection, featuring the tufted ease of high-back construction. The nubby tweed fabrics have that homespun look, yet they are actually woven of olefin fibers. And while the overall look is Americana revisited, note the plump, weltless seat cushions — a design idea we've observed in modern seating concepts.

It's hard to create this comfortable look in many of today's boxy apartments and simple houses. So we asked the design co-ordinator for Flexsteel Industries how to make a visual bridge between the Colonial furnishings and modern interior walls and floor surfaces.

"First, review the existing furnishings. Check the garage or storage area to see if you have stashed some oldies but goodies. Some of those older items might find new uses," said Branson.

"CONSIDER AN arrangement of furniture that provides closer personal contact. Add a fireplace — even a modern free-standing one. Perhaps the walls could be given a new surface covering (something like a smokey pine) and beams might be added to walls and ceilings."

Branson suggests that if the apartment or home owner objects to built-in beams, you might use lightweight plastic beams. They look great and are easy to install and remove.

A braid rug always seems to add particular charm to such a room, and even Oriental rugs can be used if fabrics are not too much on the country side. Accessories can be totally oriented to the former era, with lamps of brass, porcelain or wood.

Daisies Plus Melons For Cool Dining

To add cool refreshment and sparkling eye appeal to your outdoor dining, try serving chilled fruit in a watermelon basket trimmed with daisies, suggests the Society of American Florists.

Make the basket by cutting a large, whole watermelon diagonally toward the center from each end and about half-way up. Leave a two-inch strip uncut in the middle to form a handle. Next, cut downward on both sides of the handle and put aside the two excess pieces of watermelon. Hollow out all of the red watermelon fruit both from the basket and the two spare pieces.

Cover the basket handle with daisies. Florist wire makes the job easy. You may want to cut scallops in the rim of the basket for an added decorative touch.

Form the watermelon fruit into small bite-sized balls and pile in one end of the basket. Save the excess fruit for replenishing the basket later. Into the other end of the basket, pile fresh, red strawberries. Fill the center with bite-sized balls of canteloupe and arrange all three piles of fruit so they meet.

Place the filled basket in the refrigerator until time to serve, then use it as a centerpiece on a cool green tablecloth. Arrange additional daisies on the table cloth completely encircling the basket.

Sleeping Doesn't Mix With Smoke

I-J Special Report

CHICAGO — Next to a good mattress, quitting smoking is a good way to get to sleep faster and sleep better, according to research done at the University of California at Los Angeles.

The study revealed that chronic smokers dreamed very little and seldom achieved deep sleep. Almost as soon as they quit smoking, they fell asleep quicker, slept longer, and had a normal, more restful sleep.

Altadena Wedding For Marin Duo

Heidi Helen Schugt of San Rafael and Col. Robert W. Armstrong of Costa Mesa exchanged vows June 30 at Altadena Community Church in Altadena.

Heidi is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Dieter Schugt of San Rafael and Robert is the son of Mrs. William Armstrong of San Rafael.

The bride chose Mrs. Linda Moody of Costa Mesa as her matron of honor and Willene Van Blair of Altadena was her bridesmaid.

William Moody of Costa Mesa was best man and the bride's brother Derek Schugt was an usher at the wedding.

Heidi was graduated from San Rafael High School. She is the sister of Spencer Schugt of San Rafael and the granddaughter of C.W. Van Blair of Danville and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schugt of Fullerton.

Robert was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and is with the Marine Corps in Santa Ana. He is the grandson of Dr. and Mrs. W.P. Goddard of Bolinas. He is the brother of John and Wilson Armstrong of San Rafael.

The bride's uncle, Rev. Bruce Van Blair, performed the service followed by a reception in the church.

The newlyweds will live in Costa Mesa after a wedding trip to Big Bear Lake.

Early Nurse Had Very Rough Days

After a day of cleaning the chimney, fetching coal, trimming candlewicks and bathing a typhoid patient, Elizabeth Wilcox Beckwith might have been granted an evening off for "courting purposes." If, that is, she never smoked, never had her hair done at a beauty parlor or otherwise gave her superiors good reason to suspect her moral character.

Mrs. Beckwith was one of the earliest graduates of a hospital school of nursing. Since that time — she and millions of other girls (and an increasing number of men) have graduated from hospital-based schools of nursing, ready in the words of Florence Nightingale, to "carry out medical and surgical orders."

Inventors Going Strong

By LUCIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — You think American inventiveness went out with the McCormick reaper, the Morse telegraph, and Birds Eye frozen food?

Don't you believe it! The government is granting patents these days at the unslackening rate of 1,600 a week.

Every Tuesday the U.S. Department of Commerce's Patent Office puts out a thick book the size of a college catalog complete with diagrams and explanations. One glance is enough to show that U.S. ingenuity in the 1970's is not confined to technical screws and valves, as one might suspect.

Patents, prohibiting others from making, selling, or using your invention for a 17-year period without your consent, are being issued on everything from new varieties of honey-locust trees and yogurt-making designs to clam openers and car-top camper-boats.

Since the first patent by a special act of the Massachusetts General Court went to Samuel Winslow in 1641 for a novel way of making salt, close to 3.7 million patents have been issued. About one million of these were granted in just the last 15 years.

"I can think of several things not on the market . . . Whether it would pay me to fool around with them or not is the question," says Maurice B. Pittman, a truck driver from Memphis, Tenn., who has drawn two U.S. patents on his inventions in the last two years.

One is a kitchen gadget to use in soft-boiling eggs. The other is a wiper for rear-view mirrors on trucks. The latter is a graphic case of the old adage that necessity is the mother of invention. "There was a definite need," says Pittman.

For today's inventor, applying for a patent is not cheap in time or money. Filing fees, which supply about 65 per cent of the Patent Office's $56 million annual budget, run close to $200 if the patent is granted. The inventor usually invests another $100 or so in a preliminary search to make sure the invention has not already been patented.

The patent attorneys who do this job, poring over the records and diagrams in the huge technical library of the Patent Office in Arlington, Va., admit the scouting gets tougher every year. Not only do they have to check out all categories of U.S. patents — and the right category itself is often job enough to find — but there are 8 to 9 million foreign patents which must also be scanned.

Even if its like is nowhere to be found, the invention additionally must be "novel," as Patent Commissioner Robert Gottschalk points out, useful, and something which is not "obvious" to those skilled in that particular field. About one-fifth of the applications received each year are rejected for one of these many reasons.

The inventor must be patient while the Patent Office examiners, skilled in a wide variety of mechanical and chemical fields, conduct their own internal search to be sure there is no duplication.

On the average it takes two years between filing and the actual granting of a patent. Thanks to the intervention of President Nixon, those with inventions aimed at lessening environmental problems can request special speedy treatment and occasionally receive affirmative word in six to eight months from the date they file.

One innovation expected to help inventors protect their product rights internationally is a new patent cooperation treaty which the President sent to the Senate for ratification Sept. 12. Among other things, it would centralize and standardize patent application procedures around the globe. As things stand, a man's patent applies only in the countries where he has filed and received acknowledgement of it.

What happens if two inventors get a bright idea at the same time?

Search rights for the inventors do not extend to pending applications, but in most countries he who files first with the government is the victor. The United States, along with one or two other countries, follows the unusual practice instead of granting the patent to the man who invented rather than filed first. Thus, it is important to keep detailed records to offer as evidence.

Certainly an increasing share of America's inventions are dreamed up by big business researchers. But roughly one-fifth of the patents granted these days still go to independent inventors such as Tennessee's Pittman. About half of the patents which do go to companies go to small ones.

In return for the exclusivity advantage of a patent, the inventor in effect shares the details of his invention with the world. Anyone may purchase a copy of a patent for 50 cents and the Department of Commerce fills an astounding 22,000 such orders a day.

However, even with such publicity, promotion and merchandising of the invention remains a major problem for most patent holders. When the government's Tuesday booklet comes out, the inventor usually gets 20 to 30 letters from those eager to take on the promotion chores for him. Not all are legitimate operators, and the Patent Office officials urge patent holders to check out the names with the Better Business Bureau.

In any case, practical use aside, inventiveness in America continues at a rapid pace, and Patent Office officials now predict that the four millionth U.S. patent will be granted sometime in 1976.

EILEEN POZZI
Fair sweetheart

Sweetheart Picked At Sonoma Fair

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Eileen Pozzi, 18, of Tomales was named FFA sweetheart last night at the opening of the Sonoma County Fair.

Miss Pozzi, who already holds the state sweetheart title, was selected from a field of eight candidates by members of Future Farmers of America.

Cathie Whitney of Sonoma took second place and Juanita Soares of Santa Rosa was third.

Miss Pozzi graduated in June from Tomales High School where she was editor of the yearbook, a member of the band and student representative to the Shoreline School District Board. She has been a 4-H member for eight years and was named to the Marin County 4-H All Stars.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pozzi and will reign over FFA events for the remainder of the fair.

Mullin Case Prosecutor In Hospital

SANTA CRUZ (UPI) — The prosecutor in the mass murder trial of Herbert W. Mullin underwent an emergency appendectomy last night, but jury selection in the case proceeded today without him.

While Dist. Atty. Peter Chang was confined to a hospital, Asst. Dist. Atty. Art Donner, who already was involved in the case, took his place in a unique, secret jury selection process with which the California Supreme Court declined yesterday to interfere.

"The public's right to know had to give a little because of the nature of the case and the questions being asked," said Superior Court Judge Charles Franich after the decision that upheld the closed-door sessions being used for the first time in the state.

The court denied a petition by Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger without comment in San Francisco.

Younger had gone to the state's highest court after the California Court of Appeal had turned down his request for an order to allow the public and news media into proceedings in Judge Franich's 20-by-20 foot chamber.

The reason, he explained, was the nature of questions to prospective jurors about their attitudes to homosexuality and mental illness.

Twelve prospective jurors have been seated after the first week of questioning behind closed doors, but some face further examination. Alternates also remain to be chosen.

New Look Is Asked At Gun Trap Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger has asked the state Supreme Court to reconsider a lower court's ruling that a Marin County man was legally correct in setting a spring gun that wounded a burglar.

His petition, filed yesterday, held that the state Court of Appeal was wrong in overturning the conviction of Donald L. Ceballos of San Anselmo.

After a gun trap he had rigged in his garage injured a 16-year-old burglar, Ceballos was convicted on assault with a deadly weapon in February of 1971 and sentenced to three weekends in jail by Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, but the sentence was delayed pending the appeal.

The shooting occurred when the 16-year-old youth and a companion tried to break into Ceballos's garage in May of 1970, three days after an unsuccessful burglary attempt and two months after a burglar took $350 in tools from the secluded home.

The youth was shot in the mouth by a .22-caliber gun which Ceballos had set up to operate on a spring.

Court of Appeal judges ruled that since the young burglar was committing a felony, the use of a spring gun in Ceballos' garage was justified.

They also noted that state law prohibits the use of such devices against animals.

Clifford K. Thompson, deputy attorney general who filed the motion for Younger, wrote that under the Court of Appeals decision, "one may not set a trap gun to kill an animal but human beings may be fair game.

"It is a strange law that prefers weasels to people, one that should be modified on the side of humanity."

Thompson asked the Supreme Court to decide whether a person may take a life to protect property, use "deadly force" to prevent a burglary that doesn't endanger human life, or use a deadly device to protect property.

New Governor Is For Ecology

DENVER (UPI) — John Vanderhoff was sworn in yesterday as the new governor of Colorado and said he will emphasize conservation of the state's natural resources during his administration.

"Our desires are infinite but our resources finite," Vanderhoof said. "Our best energies must be devoted to continued new gains on the conservation front."

Vanderhoof, 51, a Glenwood Springs banker, succeeds John A. Love who resigned last month to direct the nation's energy policy for President Nixon.

Data Sales Replacing Computer Time Buying

By FREDERICK H. GUIDRY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WALTHAM, Mass. — "People don't buy computer time anymore. They buy data bases and products," said John M. Thompson in partial explanation of the surge of business at Interactive Data Corporation (IDC).

Actually, IDC does sell computer time on the fringes of its main operation in order to keep its IBM 360/67 as busy as possible. But Thompson, marketing vice-president, was stressing the things he takes a keen delight in selling.

Back in 1969, IDC staked out the investment community as the territory it would most like to serve, and by the end of that year had revenues of $2 million. By the end of 1972 these had grown to $10 million. Although the firm experienced losses at first, it has been profitable every month since June, 1971. IDC is privately owned, but may go public sometime this year.

At present, between 60 and 70 per cent of IDC's business is with the financial world — banks, trusts, mutual funds, brokerage firms. The other customers are chiefly interested in time-sharing applications in engineering, commercial, and scientific fields.

IDC's concentration on economics and the stock market dates back to its origin as the Interactive Data Services Division of the brokerage firm of White, Weld & Co. in December, 1968, Interactive Data Corporation was formed by merger of this division with Computer Communications Center, a specialist in time-sharing systems.

One of IDC's basic resources is a huge data bank from which the firm or its clients can draw historical or up-to-date information on the economy, individual companies, and stock prices. With the computer's strong mathematical capabilities, the data can be analyzed for trends in complex ways that formerly were uneconomical or even humanly impossible.

The data base includes daily price and volume information on all New York and American Stock Exchange common stocks and more than 1,800 over-the-counter issues. It includes 60 annual items from balance sheets and income statements of 1,800 industrial companies and 100 utilities for the past 20 years.

Also included are more than 6,000 economic variables drawn from national income and product accounts, reports on activity in 425 manufacturing sectors, monetary statistics, etc.

Such figures enable an IDC customer, for example, to compile a quick report on comparative growth rates of automobile companies and the economy as a whole. Or to locate all companies in the electronics industry with given growth in earnings per share, return on equity, and price-earnings ratio.

Among nonfinancial users of IDC's computer are an airline, which does online scheduling of routes and crews, and a television station, which decides what movies to screen and when to get the most mileage out of a $2 million block-film purchase.

"This costs the television station $500 a month," Thompson said, "which is nothing compared with the margin of error in making a $2 million decision."

One of the things IDC constantly points out is the ease of communication it has built into its computer programs. "These days you have to make data available to the executive directly. Otherwise he has to call up his data-processing division and get an analyst, who in turn has to get a programmer, and each time there is a loss of time as well as the possibility of misunderstanding," the IDC executive said. "Ideally, the executive should be able to walk across his office to a computer terminal and ask a question directly."

Church Receives Actress's Gift

NYACK, N.Y. (UPI) — Actress Helen Hayes has given more than $13,000 to restore a 140-year-old church in Cold Springs, N.Y., it was announced yesterday.

A Nyack restoration group has purchased the Tuscan-styled Chapel of Our Lady from the New York Archdiocese. The church has been abandoned since 1906.

"I saw this poor little derelict church and it was a house of God forgotten by man...It broke my heart," Miss Hayes said.

The group will need more than $300,000 to complete its restoration project.

Inventors Going Strong

By LUCIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — You think American inventiveness went out with the McCormick reaper, the Morse telegraph, and Birds Eye frozen food?

Don't you believe it! The government is granting patents these days at the unslackening rate of 1,600 a week.

Every Tuesday the U.S. Department of Commerce's Patent Office puts out a thick book the size of a college catalog complete with diagrams and explanations. One glance is enough to show that U.S. ingenuity in the 1970's is not confined to technical screws and valves, as one might suspect.

Patents, prohibiting others from making, selling, or using your invention for a 17-year period without your consent, are being issued on everything from new varieties of honey-locust trees and yogurt-making designs to clam openers and car-top camper-boats.

Since the first patent by a special act of the Massachusetts General Court went to Samuel Winslow in 1641 for a novel way of making salt, close to 3.7 million patents have been issued. About one million of these were granted in just the last 15 years.

"I can think of several things not on the market . . . Whether it would pay me to fool around with them or not is the question," says Maurice B. Pittman, a truck driver from Memphis, Tenn., who has drawn two U.S. patents on his inventions in the last two years.

One is a kitchen gadget to use in soft-boiling eggs. The other is a wiper for rear-view mirrors on trucks. The latter is a graphic case of the old adage that necessity is the mother of invention. "There was a definite need," says Pittman.

For today's inventor, applying for a patent is not cheap in time or money. Filing fees, which supply about 65 per cent of the Patent Office's $56 million annual budget, run close to $200 if the patent is granted. The inventor usually invests another $100 or so in a preliminary search to make sure the invention has not already been patented.

The patent attorneys who do this job, poring over the records and diagrams in the huge technical library of the Patent Office in Arlington, Va., admit the scouting gets tougher every year. Not only do they have to check out all categories of U.S. patents — and the right category itself is often job enough to find — but there are 8 to 9 million foreign patents which must also be scanned.

Even if its like is nowhere to be found, the invention additionally must be "novel," as Patent Commissioner Robert Gottschalk points out, useful, and something which is not "obvious" to those skilled in that particular field. About one-fifth of the applications received each year are rejected for one of these many reasons.

The inventor must be patient while the Patent Office examiners, skilled in a wide variety of mechanical and chemical fields, conduct their own internal search to be sure there is no duplication.

On the average it takes two years between filing and the actual granting of a patent. Thanks to the intervention of President Nixon, those with inventions aimed at lessening environmental problems can request special speedy treatment and occasionally receive affirmative word in six to eight months from the date they file.

One innovation expected to help inventors protect their product rights internationally is a new patent cooperation treaty which the President sent to the Senate for ratification Sept. 12. Among other things, it would centralize and standardize patent application procedures around the globe. As things stand, a man's patent applies only in the countries where he has filed and received acknowledgement of it.

What happens if two inventors get a bright idea at the same time?

Search rights for the inventors do not extend to pending applications, but in most countries he who files first with the government is the victor. The United States, along with one or two other countries, follows the unusual practice instead of granting the patent to the man who invented rather than filed first. Thus, it is important to keep detailed records to offer as evidence.

Certainly an increasing share of America's inventions are dreamed up by big business researchers. But roughly one-fifth of the patents granted these days still go to independent inventors such as Tennessee's Pittman. About half of the patents which do go to companies go to small ones.

In return for the exclusivity advantage of a patent, the inventor in effect shares the details of his invention with the world. Anyone may purchase a copy of a patent for 50 cents and the Department of Commerce fills an astounding 22,000 such orders a day.

However, even with such publicity, promotion and merchandising of the invention remains a major problem for most patent holders. When the government's Tuesday booklet comes out, the inventor usually gets 20 to 30 letters from those eager to take on the promotion chores for him. Not all are legitimate operators, and the Patent Office officials urge patent holders to check out the names with the Better Business Bureau.

In any case, practical use aside, inventiveness in America continues at a rapid pace, and Patent Office officials now predict that the four millionth U.S. patent will be granted sometime in 1976.

EILEEN POZZI
Fair sweetheart

Sweetheart Picked At Sonoma Fair

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Eileen Pozzi, 18, of Tomales was named FFA sweetheart last night at the opening of the Sonoma County Fair.

Miss Pozzi, who already holds the state sweetheart title, was selected from a field of eight candidates by members of Future Farmers of America.

Miss Pozzi graduated in June from Tomales High School where she was editor of the yearbook, a member of the band and student representative to the Shoreline School District Board. She has been a 4-H member for eight years and was named to the Marin County 4-H All Stars.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pozzi and will reign over FFA events for the remainder of the fair.

Mullin Case Prosecutor In Hospital

SANTA CRUZ (UPI) — The prosecutor in the mass murder trial of Herbert W. Mullin underwent an emergency appendectomy last night, but jury selection in the case proceeded today without him.

While Dist. Atty. Peter Chang was confined to a hospital, Asst. Dist. Atty. Art Donner, who already was involved in the case, took his place in a unique, secret jury selection process with which the California Supreme Court declined yesterday to interfere.

"The public's right to know had to give a little because of the nature of the case and the questions being asked," said Superior Court Judge Charles Franich after the decision that upheld the closed-door sessions being used for the first time in the state.

The court denied a petition by Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger without comment in San Francisco.

Younger had gone to the state's highest court after the California Court of Appeal had turned down his request for an order to allow the public and news media into proceedings in Judge Franich's 20-by-20 foot chamber.

The reason, he explained, was the nature of questions to prospective jurors about their attitudes to homosexuality and mental illness.

Twelve prospective jurors have been seated after the first week of questioning behind closed doors, but some face further examination. Alternates also remain to be chosen.

New Look Is Asked At Gun Trap Ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger has asked the state Supreme Court to reconsider a lower court's ruling that a Marin County man was legally correct in setting a spring gun that wounded a burglar.

His petition, filed yesterday, held that the state Court of Appeal was wrong in overturning the conviction of Donald L. Ceballos of San Anselmo.

After a gun trap he had rigged in his garage injured a 16-year-old burglar, Ceballos was convicted on assault with a deadly weapon in February of 1971 and sentenced to three weekends in jail by Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, but the sentence was delayed pending the appeal.

The shooting occurred when the 16-year-old youth and a companion tried to break into Ceballos's garage in May of 1970, three days after an unsuccessful burglary attempt and two months after a burglar took $350 in tools from the secluded home.

The youth was shot in the mouth by a .22-caliber gun which Ceballos had set up to operate on a spring.

Court of Appeal judges ruled that since the young burglar was committing a felony, the use of a spring gun in Ceballos' garage was justified.

They also noted that state law prohibits the use of such devices against animals.

Clifford K. Thompson, deputy attorney general who filed the motion for Younger, wrote that under the Court of Appeals decision, "one may not set a trap gun to kill an animal but human beings may be fair game.

"It is a strange law that prefers weasels to people, one that should be modified on the side of humanity."

Thompson asked the Supreme Court to decide whether a person may take a life to protect property, use "deadly force" to prevent a burglary that doesn't endanger human life, or use a deadly device to protect property.

New Governor Is For Ecology

DENVER (UPI) — John Vanderhoff was sworn in yesterday as the new governor of Colorado and said he will emphasize conservation of the state's natural resources during his administration.

"Our desires are infinite but our resources finite," Vanderhoof said. "Our best energies must be devoted to continued new gains on the conservation front."

Vanderhoof, 51, a Glenwood Springs banker, succeeds John A. Love who resigned last month to direct the nation's energy policy for President Nixon.

Data Sales Replacing Computer Time Buying

By FREDERICK H. GUIDRY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WALTHAM, Mass. — "People don't buy computer time anymore. They buy data bases and products," said John M. Thompson in partial explanation of the surge of business at Interactive Data Corporation (IDC).

Actually, IDC does sell computer time on the fringes of its main operation in order to keep its IBM 360/67 as busy as possible. But Thompson, marketing vice-president, was stressing the things he takes a keen delight in selling.

Back in 1969, IDC staked out the investment community as the territory it would most like to serve, and by the end of that year had revenues of $2 million. By the end of 1972 these had grown to $10 million. Although the firm experienced losses at first, it has been profitable every month since June, 1971. IDC is privately owned, but may go public sometime this year.

At present, between 60 and 70 per cent of IDC's business is with the financial world — banks, trusts, mutual funds, brokerage firms. The other customers are chiefly interested in time-sharing applications in engineering, commercial, and scientific fields.

IDC's concentration on economics and the stock market dates back to its origin as the Interactive Data Services Division of the brokerage firm of White, Weld & Co. in December, 1968, Interactive Data Corporation was formed by merger of this division with Computer Communications Center, a specialist in time-sharing systems.

One of IDC's basic resources is a huge data bank from which the firm or its clients can draw historical or up-to-date information on the economy, individual companies, and stock prices. With the computer's strong mathematical capabilities, the data can be analyzed for trends in complex ways that formerly were uneconomical or even humanly impossible.

The data base includes daily price and volume information on all New York and American Stock Exchange common stocks and more than 1,800 over-the-counter issues. It includes 60 annual items from balance sheets and income statements of 1,800 industrial companies and 100 utilities for the past 20 years.

Also included are more than 6,000 economic variables drawn from national income and product accounts, reports on activity in 425 manufacturing sectors, monetary statistics, etc.

Such figures enable an IDC customer, for example, to compile a quick report on comparative growth rates of automobile companies and the economy as a whole. Or to locate all companies in the electronics industry with given growth in earnings per share, return on equity, and price-earnings ratio.

Among nonfinancial users of IDC's computer are an airline, which does online scheduling of routes and crews, and a television station, which decides what movies to screen and when to get the most mileage out of a $2 million block-film purchase.

"This costs the television station $500 a month," Thompson said, "which is nothing compared with the margin of error in making a $2 million decision."

One of the things IDC constantly points out is the ease of communication it has built into its computer programs. "These days you have to make data available to the executive directly. Otherwise he has to call up his data-processing division and get an analyst, who in turn has to get a programmer, and each time there is a loss of time as well as the possibility of misunderstanding," the IDC executive said. "Ideally, the executive should be able to walk across his office to a computer terminal and ask a question directly."

Church Receives Actress's Gift

NYACK, N.Y. (UPI) — Actress Helen Hayes has given more than $13,000 to restore a 140-year-old church in Cold Springs, N.Y., it was announced yesterday.

A Nyack restoration group has purchased the Tuscan-styled Chapel of Our Lady from the New York Archdiocese. The church has been abandoned since 1906.

"I saw this poor little derelict church and it was a house of God forgotten by man...It broke my heart," Miss Hayes said.

The group will need more than $300,000 to complete its restoration project.

Governor's New House Hits Snag

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund Brown Jr. has won the first skirmish in a legal fight with the Reagan administration to block an archeological dig and construction of a proposed new governor's mansion on the site of an Indian cemetery.

As the mansion emerged as a political issue, state Architect John Worsley voiced concern that a court battle could delay both start and completion of the $1.3 million new home for California governors.

Meantime, Gov. Ronald Reagan's office labelled Brown's law suit an "obvious political ploy to gain publicity" for his expected bid next year for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Brown won the first skirmish in Superior Court Monday when the state Department of Parks and Recreation announced it would not dig for relics of the prehistoric Maidu Indians at the mansion siet until the court gave its approval.

IMPACT REPORT

The 36-year-old son of the former Californ a governor had sought a temporary order restraining the state-sponsored archeological dig until an environmental impact report on the excavation was filed and accepted.

The suit also sought to prevent the state from "engaging in any acts in furtherance of the construction of a governor's mansion" on an 11- acre Carmichael site overlooking the American River which once served as a village and burial ground for the Maidus.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard D. Martland, defending both Reagan and several state agencies, declared in court that the Department of Parks and Recreation would not go ahead with the dig "until the court says it is OK to dig."

Superior Court Judge B. Abbott Goldberg said on that basis he was likely to deny Brown's request for a restraining order but said he would assign the case for a show cause hearing to settle the issue of requiring an environmental impact report on the dig tself.

About 30 archeology students and professors had planned to begin the dig Monday under terms of a $110,000 bill to finance the excavation.

"If the governor's mansion is built on this site, the building will stand for all to see as a shameful monument to the white man's callous disregard for Indian traditions," Brown told a news conference.

INDIANS JOIN

Under questioning, Brown said he initiated the suit and was joined by two American Indians as co-plaintiffs. He said the mansion should be built near the Capitol in downtown Sacramento.

Brown maintained the state had failed to file reports assessing the potential adverse environmental impact of the dig. State officials, however, contended that the dig was "essential" to preparation of such a report on construction of the mansion.

Construction of the rambling Early California-style mansion, to which Reagan has assigned a top priority during his remaining months in office, had been expected to start late this year and be finished early in 1975 shortly after his successor takes office. successor

"A protracted legal proceeding could very well delay it," said Worsley. "It's kind of foolish to say don't do an archeological survey until you do an environmental impact report, when the archeological survey is part of that report," he said.

He said state officials didn't believe an environmental impact report on the mansion itself was required, but plan to do one anyway. Brown said he filed the suit in his official role as director of the state Archives and as secretary of the California Heritage Preservation Commission. Records indicate Brown attended one of eight commission meetings in the past two and a half years.

Earlier, in response to a questionaire issued by a Sacramento County supervisor to all potential gubernatorial candidates, Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, and Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Antioch, declared themselves opposed to the Carmichael site for a mansion and urged it be relocated downtown.

The site was deeded to the state by a group of Reagan's suppoters who fell short in a public subscription drive of raising enough funds to finance both a site and a mansion.

Police Think Killer Must Be 'Freak'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A "freak" roaming San Francisco may be responsible, police say, for the deaths of four young women whose nude bodies were found in school yards or parks.

Homicide inspectors noted yesterday that all four had been strangled within the past six weeks.

The most recent victim, found Sunday behind a high school gymnasium, was identified from fingerprints as Nanny Patricia Gidley, 24, an X-ray technician from Mountain Home, Idaho.

Officers quoted an aunt of the victim as saying she came to San Francisco last Thursday to attend the wedding of a friend.

The identification was possible because motel employes told officers the victim's description matched that of a guest who hadn't been seen since spending a night there Thursday.

Fingerprints on the luggage matched that of the victim.

Miss Gidley was wearing only a fish-shaped earring when her body was found. The coroner said the discovery was less than 24 hours after she was killed.

Homicide inspector John McKenna said it was the fourth such slaying in the past two months. There was no indication that any of the victims were sexually abused.

But none of the victims lived in the same area, and all had different backgrounds, McKenna said.

"The only way to connect this is if we have some kind of freak who travels the whole city," he said.

"We have four victims, three of whom we know a little about. The murders began on May 29th. Of the four girls the method of death was fairly similar—all died of manual asphyxiation. In each case the cause of death was such that it appears they were killed elsewhere, then dumped in public places."

The body of Rosa Vasquez was found May 29 in Golden Gate Park by a pass ng motorist.

Yvonne Quiantang, 15, was discovered strangled and nude in a Bayview district lot two weeks later.

The nude body of Anoela Thomas, 16, of Belton, Texas was found July 2, in the Benjamin Franklin Junior High School play yard.

France Hits U. S. Farm Crop Curbs

BRUSSELS (UPI) — France insisted today that the European Common Market take immediate action to protect its food supplies from "American aggression."

French Agriculture Minister Jacques Chirac said farm ministers of the nine Common Market nations meeting here should take steps to achieve agricultural self-sufficiency. The partial U.S. embargo on soybean exports, he said, showed the danger of depending on "the whims of foreigners" for vital supplies.

The agricultural ministers are in the second day of a two-day meeting.

The meeting was dominated by the U.S. export limits. American diplomats said the Europeans over-ordered from American farmers and the limits would have little effect. But the Europeans said the United States provides 60 per cent of protein needs for European livestock and the limits would hurt European pork, poultry, beef and dairy products. 8

The ministers gave the Common Market's executive commission authority to tax exports of European wheat and barley or ban them altogether if world prices of the commodities rise 2 per cent above European prices. But Chirac demanded more.

Common Market spokesmen and other ministers quoted him as telling the meeting that the "American aggression" on world farm markets indicated the need for Europe to protect itself by becoming self-sufficient. He suggested immediate efforts to increase production of such soya substitutes as skim powdered milk.

While adoption of the skim milk measures appeared likely, other ministers tried to calm Chirac's anger. Britain's Joseph Godber warned against "too much panic" in responding to the American moves.

Police Think Killer Must Be 'Freak'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A "freak" roaming San Francisco may be responsible, police say, for the deaths of four young women whose nude bodies were found in school yards or parks.

Homicide inspectors noted yesterday that all four had been strangled within the past six weeks.

The most recent victim, found Sunday behind a high school gymnasium, was identified from fingerprints as Nanny Patricia Gidley, 24, an X-ray technician from Mountain Home, Idaho.

Officers quoted an aunt of the victim as saying she came to San Francisco last Thursday to attend the wedding of a friend.

The identification was possible because motel employes told officers the victim's description matched that of a guest who hadn't been seen since spending a night there Thursday.

Fingerprints on the luggage matched that of the victim.

Miss Gidley was wearing only a fish-shaped earring when her body was found. The coroner said the discovery was less than 24 hours after she was killed.

Homicide inspector John McKenna said it was the fourth such slaying in the past two months. There was no indication that any of the victims were sexually abused.

But none of the victims lived in the same area, and all had different backgrounds, McKenna said.

"The only way to connect this is if we have some kind of freak who travels the whole city," he said.

"We have four victims, three of whom we know a little about. The murders began on May 29th. Of the four girls the method of death was fairly similar— all died of manual asphyxiation. In each case the cause of death was such that it appears they were killed elsewhere, then dumped in public places."

The body of Rosa Vasquez was found May 29 in Golden Gate Park by a pass ng motorist.

Yvonne Quliantang, 15, was discovered strangled and nude in a Bayview district lot two weeks later.

The nude body of Anoela Thomas, 16, of Belton, Texas was found July 2, in the Benjamin Franklin Junior High School play yard.

France Hits U. S. Farm Crop Curbs

BRUSSELS (UPI) — France insisted today that the European Common Market take immediate action to protect its food supplies from "American aggression."

French Agriculture Minister Jacques Chirac said farm ministers of the nine Common Market nations meeting here should take steps to achieve agricultural self-sufficiency. The partial U.S. embargo on soybean exports, he said, showed the danger of depending on "the whims of foreigners" for vital supplies.

The agricultural ministers are in the second day of a two-day meeting.

The meeting was dominated by the U.S. export limits. American diplomats said the Europeans over-ordered from American farmers and the limits would have little effect. But the Europeans said the United States provides 60 per cent of protein needs for European livestock and the limits would hurt European pork, poultry, beef and dairy products 8

The ministers gave the Common Market's executive commission authority to tax exports of European wheat and barley or ban them altogether if world prices of the commodities rise 2 per cent above European prices. But Chirac demanded more.

Common Market spokesmen and other ministers quoted him as telling the meeting that the "American aggression" on world farm markets indicated the need for Europe to protect itself by becoming self-sufficient. He suggested immediate efforts to increase production of such soya substitutes as skim powdered milk.

While adoption of the skim milk measures appeared likely, other ministers tried to calm Chirac's anger. Britain's Joseph Godber warned against "too much panic" in responding to the American moves.

ART REVIEW

Profusion Of Plants Is Mystical

By ADA GARFINKEL

Controlled randomness is an apt description for the profusion of vegetation and plant life occurring in the etchings and engravings of Stephanie Ingram Scott.

In a three-artist show in Sausalito's Metes and Bounds Gallery, Miss Scott's black-and-white prints are intimate views of places and things she knows and loves. These include a variety of old-fashioned flowers in assorted pots, cups, and tincans, and various locales important in her life.

However prosaic this may sound, her sureness of touch and visual inventiveness create experiences of a high order in which dots give shape to forms and tones, and lines are not only the boundaries of knots, clots, clumps, and tendrils of shrubs and vines, but are also the bearers of mystical energy.

"Napier Lane," a suffocatingly, tangled overgrowth of moss and vines barely allowing visibility to the enshrouded cottage, could be from Miss Scott's native Georgia. But "The Spaghetti Factory Garden," presents a rarely seen view of this well-known site, in the catch-as-catch-can garden with its barrels and bathtub and planters overflowingly alive with growing things spurting toward the sun.

Miss Scott's exhibit also includes eight landscape watercolors. While these lack the technical sureness of the prints, the artist, whose graphic work was included in the 1973 Smithsonian Institute Traveling Exhibition of Contemporary Prints, draws upon primitive sources — one thinks of Rousseau and early Kandinsky — but asserts her own views in full-bodied colors, and stylized, halating cloud formations — not unlike a fleecy, cirrus, but personal pantheon.

Photographer George Sykes focuses both on intimate close-ups and on the long-range view in his variety of colored shots of noted wilderness areas across the country — the Sierra Nevada range and the Wind River Mountain range in Wyoming are but two.

A documentary film-maker and mountain climber, Sykes' sensitivity in his close-up views — a filigreed, bone-dry leaf entangled like a parasite on an alien branch, or reeds and wild brasses bathed in silvery, golden, or understated sepia tones — are pictorial delights.

Similarly, a segment of rocks under a thin, lacy pattern of fractured ice, or the network of slender aspen rendered like an abstract-expressionist painting.

One of Sykes' most striking distance shots is of a flat-topped golden cliff sandwiched between an equidistant blue band of sky and a rich brown foreground range cast in shadow.

Craftsman January Jensen relies upon the mythic precedents of the American Southwest in the design of his jewelry and leatherwork, both of which are admirably handcrafted. A fringed Indian wedding dress of soft white leather is uniquely lovely.

This exhibit will continue until Aug. 17 and may be seen Mnday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The gallery is located at 215 Second Street.

District Plans Water Education

The Marin Municipal Water District board will decide what it wants in the way of an educational program to urge district customers to conserve water at a special meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the district office in Corte Madera.

The board has already tentatively agreed to seek a consulting firm to put together an educational program, according to Clerin W. Zumwalt, manager of land management.

The board will also consider adoption of a preliminary budget for 1973-74 and selection of a financial consultant for a November bond issue.

Directors will also make plans for a special meeting with representatives of the North Marin County Water District and the Marin County Board of Supervisors to discuss mutual concerns. The session is scheduled for 9 a.m. Thursday in the supervisors chambers at the Civic Center.

The Water Shortage Is Questioned

The Marin Council for Civic Affairs has established a committee to study the alleged water shortage in the Marin Municipal Water District to determine if the shortage is real or simply a device to control the county's growth.

The group will evaluate the district's current water yield and its water consumption and review a recently-completed consultants report on water supply and water supply projects.

Preliminary results of the committee's study show that water consumption in the Marin Municipal service area has generally increased due to increased population and increased per capita water use, according to chairman Betty Forry.

Other committee members are Henry Arian, Joan Boessenecker, Martin Bullard, Phillip K. Buskirk, Hugh Dougherty, and George Ellman.

The district board's contention that Marin Municipal is facing a threatened water shortage led the board to declare a moratorium on new water connections.

He has played with major orchestras in Europe, the United States, Canada, Japan and South America.

The third and final performance of the summer series on Sept. 9, will feature the San Francisco Ballet.

San Rafael Protests Bridge District Lot

Failure of the Golden Gate Bridge District to provide an environmental impact report on an enlarged bus base facility on Jacoby Street drew the wrath of the San Rafael City Council last night. (See other San Rafael City Council stories, page 1.)

Councilmen told Vice Mayor John A. Miskimen to write a letter of protest to the district after learning that expansion of the district's East San Rafael facility has started without submission of an impact report.

District engineer Robert Shields assured the council last April 25 that the district would provide such a report before proceeding with plans to add 15 acres to the facility, councilmen recalled.

The expansion will enable the agency to park up to 300 buses on the site, now accommodating 120 buses on 10 acres.

Councilmen, while noting that state law exempts the district from compliance with local planning regulations, directed City Atty. Fred C. Robbins to find out what the city can do about filling operations already underway on the site.

Councilmen also said the city planning commission will review plans for the new construction.

Despite Mayor C. Paul Bettini's membership on the district board, the relationship of the city and the agency has been strained because the big commute buses cause thousands of dollars worth of street damage annually.

The San Rafael City Council also:

CLAIM — Denied a claim for $30,000 by gardener Elmer Haynes, who has said he was abused by police when apparently mistaken for a prowler last May.

TERRA LINDA — Put over to 8 p.m. Aug. 6 a public hearing on the Terra Linda Valley Open Space Assessment District.

GREENFIELD AVENUE — Denied an appeal by Pixco, Inc., of a unanimous planning commission decision denying rezoning from residential to administrative professional of a parcel at 14 Greenfield Avenue. Neighbors argued that plans for an office building at the site were out of character with the neighborhood.

APPEALS — Abolished a 60-day time limit in which the council was required to act on hearings of appeals of planning commission actions, or zoning changes recommended by the commission, saying such matters may be continued without regard to a time span. The commission had urged the council be limited to an 180-day period in which to act on such matters.

NORTHGATE EAST — Adopted an ordinance rezoning the site of Arthur R. Nicolaisen's Northgate East development to planned community, a routine action allowing plans for a restaurant and office building to proceed.

SURVIVAL — Put over to 8 p.m. Aug. 6 a request by Survival Inc. for a city subsidy.

BID — Awarded a $20,857 contract to M and H Construction, low bidder, for structural repairs to the San Rafael Library.

NOTICES — Awarded contracts for pubiication of legal notices to the Independent-Journal and to Marin Suburban Newspapers Inc., publisher of the Terra Linda News, since both papers submitted identical bids of $2.25 per column inch for the first insertion, and $1.75 per inch for subsequent insertions. A lower bid by the Marin County Court Reporter was rejected because councilmen said the paper had limited circulation.

JOINT POWERS — Said the city will pay $8,000 and the county $12,000 in joint funding of the senior citizens program of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council.

TIME — Extended to July 20 the contract completion deadline of the Fifth Avenue and D Street parking lot project, and the Freitas Park tennis court project.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Aug. 6.

Doctor Says Diabetic Life Can't Be Normal

BRUSSELS (UPI) — An American specialist said today it's nonsense to claim diabetics should be able to lead a normal life.

Dr. Leo Krall told the annual congress of the International Diabetes Federation someone who has to think continually about diet, blood tests and insulin shots can't live like others.

"The oft-repeated platitude that the diabetic should be able to lead a normal life is nonsense." said Krall, who is on the staffs of the Joslin clinic and New England Deaconess Hospital of Boston, Mass.

In Krall's view, treatment goals should be to keep the patient functioning as closely as possible to normal level and to keep body physiology and chemistry with n normal limits.

—Lack of awareness on the part of the physician, who usually looks only for the classic diabetic symptoms of polyuria, polydipsia and polyphagia.

—Unwillingness of most people to limit their diet.

—Difficulty of using insulin well in treatment of severe or unstable diabetes.

Krall said, however, certain groups of patients who are intelligent and extremely well motivated have done very well and highly specialized groups such as airline pilots have shown an ability to achieve marked remissions, sometimes with diet alone.

Dr. James Field of the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine, the panel chairman, also endorsed strict treatment and said the risk of hypoglycemia was the lesser of two evils.

The Everly Brothers Break Up

BUENA PARK, Calif. (UPI) — The Everly Brothers, whose country-rock harmonizing was a fixture in the pop music world for two decades, have broken up.

Don Everly told friends last week that "I'm tired of being an Everly Brother," and that his appearance Saturday night with his brother Phil at Knotts Berry Farm would be their last together.

The Everlys had been singing together since they were children, and though their albums were not as popular in the past, they were still a draw at night clubs and concerts, relying heavily on the nostalgic appeal to audiences in their 30s of the Everly hits of the 1950s—such as "Wake Up Little Susie, "Bye Bye Love," "All I have to Do is Dream." Bob Dylan, the Beatles and others have said they were greatly influenced by the Everly rhythms.

Halfway through the first of three scheduled shows Saturday, Knott's Berry Farm entertainment director Bill Hollingshead cut short the performance, saying Don was giving an erratic, below par performance.

Don did the two later shows by himself. "I turned out to be a little more emotional than I had thought," he said later.

Smog Board To Consider Auto Limits

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials will meet on Thursday to consider limits on car use in the region.

The session of the Air Pollution Control District's transportation committee will begin at 9:30 a.m. in district offices, 939 Ellis Street.

The aim of the committee will be to propose limits less stringent than those planned by the federal Environmental Protection Agency, which said two weeks ago an 84 per cent cut in mileage driven was needed by 1977.

The committee will report its recommendations to the full board Thursday when it meets at 1:30 p.m. The budget and finance committee will meet at 1:20 p.m.

Woman Accepts Ride; Assaulted

An 18-year-old woman has reported being raped last week by a man who offered her a ride to San Francisco, according to Marin Sheriff's Deputies.

Deputies said yesterday that the woman reported she was waiting at a bus stop in front of Sabella's Restaurant in Mill Valley Friday evening when a man in a car pulled up and asked directions to San Francisco. After talking with him for awhile, the woman accepted a ride with him.

But instead of taking her to her San Francisco home, she said, he pulled off Highway 101 at Fort Barry and forced her to accompany him to an abandoned bunker overlooking the Golden Gate, where he assaulted her, then drove her to San Francisco.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's illness has forced Pakistani President Zulfiquar Ali Bhutto to postpone his visit to the United States.

Bhutto was to start the visit today. The White House said yesterday the conference between Nixon and Bhutto has been rescheduled for Sept. 11.

Woman Accepts Ride; Assaulted

An 18-year-old woman has reported being raped last week by a man who offered her a ride to San Francisco, according to Marin Sheriff's Deputies.

Deputies said yesterday that the woman reported she was waiting at a bus stop in front of Sabella's Restaurant in Mill Valley Friday evening when a man in a car pulled up and asked directions to San Francisco. After talking with him for awhile, the woman accepted a ride with him.

But instead of taking her to her San Francisco home, she said, he pulled off Highway 101 at Fort Barry and forced her to accompany him to an abandoned bunker overlooking the Golden Gate, where he assaulted her, then drove her to San Francisco.

Pianist To Be Guest On Sunday

Featured works will include Four Impromptus, Opus 90, Fantasy in C Major, Opus 15 (Wanderer) and Sonata in A Major.

He has played with major orchestras in Europe, the United States, Canada, Japan and South America.

His only Bay Area appearance was with the San Francisco Symphony in 1972.

The third and final performance of the summer series on Sept. 9, will feature the San Francisco Ballet.

San Rafael Protests Bridge District Lot

Failure of the Golden Gate Bridge District to provide an environmental impact report on an enlarged bus base facility on Jacoby Street drew the wrath of the San Rafael City Council last night. (See other San Rafael City Council stories, page 1.)

Councilmen told Vice Mayor John A. Miskimen to write a letter of protest to the district after learning that expansion of the district's East San Rafael facility has started without submission of an impact report.

District engineer Robert Shields assured the council last April 25 that the district would provide such a report before proceeding with plans to add 15 acres to the facility, councilmen recalled.

The expansion will enable the agency to park up to 300 buses on the site, now accommodating 120 buses on 10 acres.

Councilmen, while noting that state law exempts the district from compliance with local planning regulations, directed City Atty. Fred C. Robbins to find out what the city can do about filling operations already underway on the site.

Councilmen also said the city planning commission will review plans for the new construction.

Despite Mayor C. Paul Bettini's membership on the district board, the relationship of the city and the agency has been strained because the big commute buses cause thousands of dollars worth of street damage annually.

The San Rafael City Council also:

CLAIM — Denied a claim for $30,000 by gardener Elmer Haynes, who has said he was abused by police when apparently mistaken for a prowler last May.

TERRA LINDA — Put over to 8 p.m. Aug. 6 a public hearing on the Terra Linda Valley Open Space Assessment District.

GREENFIELD AVENUE — Denied an appeal by Pixco, Inc., of a unanimous planning commission decision denying rezoning from residential to administrative professional of a parcel at 14 Greenfield Avenue. Neighbors argued that plans for an office building at the site were out of character with the neighborhood.

APPEALS — Abolished a 60-day time limit in which the council was required to act on hearings of appeals of planning commission actions, or zoning changes recommended by the commission, saying such matters may be continued without regard to a time span. The commission had urged the council be limited to an 180-day period in which to act on such matters.

NORTHGATE EAST — Adopted an ordinance rezoning the site of Arthur R. Nicolaisen's Northgate East development to planned community, a routine action allowing plans for a restaurant and office building to proceed.

SURVIVAL — Put over to 8 p.m. Aug. 6 a request by Survival Inc. for a city subsidy.

BID — Awarded a $20,857 contract to M and H Construction, low bidder, for structural repairs to the San Rafael Library.

NOTICES — Awarded contracts for publication of legal notices to the Independent-Journal and to Marin Suburban Newspapers Inc., publisher of the Terra Linda News, since both papers submitted identical bids of $2.25 per column inch for the first insertion, and $1.75 per inch for subsequent insertions. A lower bid by the Marin County Court Reporter was rejected because councilmen said the paper had limited circulation.

JOINT POWERS — Said the city will pay $8,000 and the county $12,000 in joint funding of the senior citizens program of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council.

TIME — Extended to July 20 the contract completion deadline of the Fifth Avenue and D Street parking lot project, and the Freitas Park tennis court project.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Aug. 6.

ADVENTURE WRITER — Author Howard Pease — whose books for young people combined the excitement they liked and the intellectual stimulation parents and teachers favored — keeps his typewriter at the ready though he no longer turns out the literary fare that for years were a staple of growing up. A longtime teacher, as well as author, he is presently working at his Homestead Valley home on a book on fiction writing.

MORAN'S CREATOR

Children's Adventure Novelist Living Quietly In Mill Valley

By REBECCA LARSEN

Those who once followed the adventures of the Hardy Boys or Rover Boys may also remember Tod Moran, the seafaring hero of a dozen teen-age novels.

Moran was the creation of crusty, outspoken Howard Pease, 78, who now lives in Homestead Terrace, a low-rent housing development for senior citizens in Homestead Valley.

Pease first discovered he could write for young people while serving in an ambulance corps in France during World War I. "I visited Bluebeard's castle and wrote a story for my two nephews called, 'Little Francois and Barbebleu'."

A principal in the nephews' school liked the story so well he had it read in eight classes and his career was launched.

After the war, Pease went to Stanford University to study history and wrote his first book, "The Gypsy Caravan," a series of stories about children in the middle ages.

That book was turned down by several publishers.

But "The Tattooed Man," a book about a voyage he had taken through the Panama Canal as a wiper in the engine room of an old cargo boat was an instant success.

During his college years, Pease took several breaks from school to sign on for sailing jobs on ships to gather material for his writing.

Pease believes his books sold well because they combined the excitement of popular books like the Rover Boys with enough intellectual stimulation to please parents and teachers.

"My idea was to write a book fast enough paced to hold kids' interest but literary enough to be put on school shelves."

"Librarians didn't like the Rover Boys and Nancy Drew because the children in those books were usually smarter than adults, the prose was very inadequate, and they always followed the same formula."

"I tried to make my writing more realistic. My books weren't Horatio Alger-type stories at all. They didn't always have happy endings."

His idea clicked. "The Jinx Ship" became his most successful book, selling more than 100,000 copies. Besides the Tod Moran mysteries, he wrote 10 other books. Some of his novels have been reprinted in as many as nine foreign languages.

While putting out his early books, Pease was a schoolteacher in Antioch, Los Altos and San Francisco.

He gave up teaching to write full-time for 20 years in the 1940s and 1950s, but "got sick of doing the books" in the years he was turning them out annually.

Most of his stories, Pease said, were based on personal experinece.

"A psychiatrist once told me that I was the hero of all my stories."

For instance, in "The Tattooed Man," Tod Moran sets out to help his brother, a young man down on his luck and not quite as bright as Tod.

In real life, said Pease, he was always being compared unfavorably with his brother Lawrence, a high school principal. "So I guess I was envious and trying to make myself superior to my brother in the story."

"The Heart of Danger" is a World War II story about a Jewish violinist who loses his playing arm in a concentration camp and becomes a composer after the war.

Pease said the character is a composite of a violin prodigy he once knew, a Jewish teen-ager he had heard about and he himself. Pease played the violin until he was 29 and then gave it up to devote more time to writing.

There were other personal experiences in "Thunderbolt House," his favorite book, which centers on a family who inherit a fortune and a San Francisco mansion in the early 1900s. They move from Stockton to San Francisco and end up losing everything in the 1906 earthquake.

Pease said he got the idea for the story after hearing about friends who had received a similar financial windfall. "I asked myself what my family would have done with that kind of money and I realized that we would probably have moved from Stockton to San Francisco and been caught in the earthquake, too," he said.

The silver-haired, square-jawed Pease, who once owned several homes and could afford to winter in Tahiti has fallen on hard times since his literary successes and now settles for a second floor studio apartment with a tiny kitchen and a trading stamp-size deck in Homestead Terrace.

"You have to be almost broke to get in here, you know?" said Pease, settling down in a comfortable chair with several stacks of his books nearby.

Like many older persons, he has watched the cost-of-living eat up his income. "In 1945 and 1946, I was making $11,000 per year, which was probably equal to $25,000 today," he said. "But when inflation started in the 1950s, my books never kept up in prices."

"Around 1960 I wrote my last two books, and they didn't sell as well."

Pease's financial situation worsened when his second wife died in the 1960s, and left him with huge medical bills. (He has outlived three wives.)

A native of Stockton, Pease has lived in several Northern California cities, including Menlo Park, Palo Alto, Livermore and Los Altos. A few years ago, he moved to a San Francisco apartment, but after his health declined, his son Philip, a history teacher at Redwood High School and a Tiburon resident, talked him into moving to Marin County.

Pease, whose health is still poor — has settled down now to reading, working on a book on fiction writing and socializing with fellow Homestead Terrace tenants. He has served as president of the tenants' association.

Last week he and fellow terrace residents talked the Mill Valley City Council into promising to rebuild a sidewalk from their development down to Miller Avenue, so that seniors could walk to town more easily.

Pease said he likes his current home but sometimes wishes it were closer to city-style excitement. "If I could only pick this place up and put it down on the corner of Jones and Sutter," he said wistfully.

Coverage Argued Of Moratorium

The Corte Madera Town Council last night failed to agree on whether the controversial Madera del Presidio development was exempted when the council enacted a building moratorium last summer. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 1.)

Town clerk Betty Behel said Councilman Robert J. Flahive thought the development wasn't excluded, with Councilman Herber C. Leney "inclined to agree" with him. Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff said he did mean to exempt the project.

Because Mayor Holmes S. Norville and councilman Edward W. Colthurst were absent, said Mrs. Behel, the council decided to wait until its Aug. 6 meeting to make a decision.

Town atty. Albert Bianchi had advised the council that the moratorium wouldn't bar building of the giant project on the hillside east of 101 "if an exemption was intended."

New plans for the hotly contested project have been submitted to the town, changing it from a 128-lot townhouse subdivision to a three lot condominium. However, said Bianchi, the only difference is:

"A townhouse project is one where each individual owns the small plot of land directly under his unit and an interest in the common areas along with everyone else. In a condominium, each owner owns the "air space" in which his unit is located, and an interest in the common areas."

Mrs. Behel said the three councilmen present thought they ought to find out what Norville and Colthurst's intentions were when the moratorium ordinance was enacted.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

OPEN SPACE — Continued a public hearing on an open space element for the general plan to Aug. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall, and instructed staff to make minor changes in the ordinance introducing the element.

PLANNED UNIT — Referred back to staff a proposed amendment to the town's code adding a "planned unit development overlay zone" because the wording was confusing.

MEMORIAL TREE — Accepted four flowering cherry trees to be planted in Town Park in memory of Jan Rubin.

SENIOR CITIZENS — Signed an agreement with the county for a senior citizens' recreation program; the county pays the whole $2,000 cost, the town provides the facilities, staff and equipment.

REDEVELOPMENT — Set a public hearing for Sept. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall on a proposed amendment to the town's redevelopment plan, deleting the words "and commercial uses" from the land surrounding Ernest W. Hahn Inc.'s proposed shopping center.

CHRISTMAS TREE HILL — Directed Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels and fire department representatives to attend the planning commission's special meeting with Christmas Tree Hill residents on July 24 at 7:30 p.m. at town hall.

TAMAL VISTA — Agreed to let the Edgewater Inn pay its $4,580.46 for widening Tamal Vista Boulevard in three installments of $1,526.82.

TENNIS COURTS — Awarded the contract for landscaping the Granada School tennis court site to the TMT Comapny, Lafayette, low bidder of three at $12,329.84.

RING MOUNTAIN — Decided to ask the planning commission and homeowners' associations if they wanted to nominate someone to serve on a proposed ad hoc planning commission for the Ring Mountain area on the Tiburon Ridge.

Transit Board Splits On Bus Service Issue

Marin County Transit District directors today deadlocked on whether to pay an additional $136,000 to the Golden Gate Bridge District for local bus service.

The transit board's deadlock came about when two of the five directors present — Gary T. Giacomini and Arnold M. Baptiste — refused to go more than another $50,000. Since the funds must come from reserves, a four-fifths vote is required — six of the seven directors.

Directors then agreed to delay the meeting to later this afternoon so that two absent directors, Edward W. Colthurst and Kenneth L. Anderson can attend.

At that time, it is expected the transit board will adopt a $715,000 budget for fiscal 1973-74, which will include the additional funds for the bridge district.

By approving the additional funds at the time the budget is adopted, only a majority vote of four is needed.

The cost of local service jumped $136,000 more than last February's estimate of $606,000 after the bridge district reported heavy patronage on transbay buses by Marinites who board and get off within the county.

The bridge district, in presenting the county with the larger than expected bill last month, said state law requires the county to pay for this service as well as purely local bus service.

The transit board last week offered to pay the bridge district $50,000 of the additional amount provided that in the future the county not be asked to subsidize local passengers on transbay buses.

The argument presented then and today by directors Giacomini and Baptiste is that the cost of running transbay buses will remain the same whether local passengers ride them or not.

The bridge district board countered on Friday that the county should pay $50,000 for last fiscal year and the remaining $86,000 this fiscal year.

No additional costs would be added for local passengers on transbay buses this fiscal year, the bridge board compromised.

Directors Michael Wornum and Robert A. Roumiguiere agreed today with Director Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. that the "offer is reasonable."

They said a take-it-or-leave-it position on the $50,000 might force the bridge district to stop carrying some 600,000 local passengers per year on transbay buses that are patronized primarily by commuters.

Baptiste and Giacomini flatly refused to go more than $50,000 extra saying the county probably should not be subsidizing local passengers on transbay buses at all.

They argued that the bridge district will receive about $1.2 million in Marin gas tax revenues for transit and that amount should be taken into consideration when talking about cost sharing.

Giacomini at one point suggested the county move to withhold the gas tax funds and consider setting up its own intracounty bus system.

His idea drew a warning from Ray W. Foreaker Jr., general manager of the transit district, that it would be far more costly for the county to operate a bus system than to contract with the bridge district.

Tam High Publication Budget Set

The Tamalpais High School District board last night adopted a 1973-74 publication budget of $11,730,742, up from this year's total of $10,902,863.

District business manager Frank Cassou said the spending program will probably require a tax rate of $2.11 per $100 assessed valuation, down from the current levy of $2.135. He attributed the drop to an 11.3 per cent increase in assessed valuation in the district's taxing area this year.

The actual spending included in the budget is $10,348,828 with $1,381,914 in district reserves.

Of the total, $8,840,864 will be raised from local property taxes.

The "expense of education" listed in the budget is $10,095,555, including $7,284,863 for instruction, $399,365 for administration, and $1,011,200 for fixed charges that include annuity retirement and health and welfare funds.

Cassou said the board, with President Jerrold M. Ladar absent, adopted the budget unanimously, and set a public hearing for final adoption for Aug. 6 at 8 p.m. at the Redwood High School faculty lounge.

Merchants Plan Warning System

Businessmen at the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce meeting yesterday discussed forming a telephone-warning network to tip each other off when bad checks are being passed or when shoplifters are plaguing their stores.

According to Carol B. Healey, secretary-manager of the chamber, director Norman B. Black said he would give details of the plan at the Aug. 6 meeting on a telephone alert plan for Mill Valley.

Mrs. Healy also reported to the chamber on a recent survey of whether city businessmen want to see the city owned bus depot devoted to a commercial or a public service use. She said there were 20 votes for each choice.

Novato Man Dies After Cycle Crash

Frederick Charles Geiger, 25, of 72 Western Drive, Novato, died early today in Novato General Hospital of injuries received Sunday in a traffic accident.

He is the 19th traffic fatality in Marin County this year compared to 16 at this time last year.

According to police, Geiger was northbound on Tamalpais Avenue on a motorcycle at 11:18 p.m. Sunday when he went through a stop sign on Center Road and hit broadside a car driven east on Center Road by Philip John Longstreet, 22, of San Bruno, police reported.

A passenger in the car, Olga Longstreet, 42, of San Bruno, was to see her own doctor for minor injuries, according to police reports.

San Quentin Locked Up Following Two Stabbings

Most of San Quentin's 2,400 inmates remained locked in their cells today in the wake of two more stabbings at the institution yesterday, part of the continued violence which has left two men dead in the past six weeks.

Prison spokesman William D. Nyberg said the lockup will definitely continue through today and possibly through tomorrow or "until things simmer down and we can be assured there will be no more stabbings if we open up the cells."

Approximately 2,000 convicts were locked up following the stabbings of James D. Robinson and Lewis Henry, both reported in satisfactory condition today in the prison hospital.

Robinson, 25, convicted of robbery and grand theft in Los Angeles County, was stabbed in the neck, face and shoulder about 11:05 a.m. as he sat in the south dining room. Two homemade stiletto type" knives with eight-inch blades were found near the scene and one man is now in custody in connection with the attack, Nyberg said.

Two hours later, Lewis Henry, 23, convicted of robbery and illegal use of firearms in San Diego County, suffered numerous stab wounds in the neck, ear, hand and chest in the prison's East Block.

Nyberg said Henry was one of the suspects in the attack on Robinson and that his stabbing might have been in retaliation for the earlier incident. Henry is a Chicano and Robinson is a black.

On Saturday Velton Watkins, 58, convicted of first-degree murder in San Joaquin County, died after he was stabbed in the neck about 2 p.m. while walking in the prison's lower yard.

Edward S. Lopez, 30, died May 30 of massive skull fractures and brain damage. Officials said he had been hit over the head with a blunt instrument, stabbed four times and possibly garroted as well.

Raise List Is Extended By Council

Salary increases averaging 5 per cent were approved last night by the Rohnert Park City Council.

The raises included 60 per cent of the city employees and matched the 5 per cent increases given two weeks ago to other employees represented by the Sonoma County Organization of Public Employees.

City Clerk Kathryn Logue said the contract agreement also permits time-and-a-half pay for overtime work for all employees except department heads.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan received a 4.8 per cent increase to bring his salary to $1,950 per month. Callinan said the new salary classifications will be tabulated and added to the 1973-74 budget for a final presentation next month.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

WELL — Awarded a $51,099 contract to Bartley Pump Co. for a new water well on Southwest Boulevard.

SIGN — Granted a reprieve to the "Welcome to Rohnert Park" sign after residents protested the council decision to remove it from Highway 101. The council asked the chamber of commerce to make a recommendation on the sign next month.

POLICE — Rejected the request of Cotati Police Chief Thomas Gray to reduce the $1,000 per month dispatching charge to $750 per month. Gray said Cotati would begin doing its own clerical work, but council said that dispatching costs have increased.

DONATION — Agreed to give $150 to Hannele Damon of Rohnert Park who will represent Sonoma and Marin counties in the Miss California contest. The funds will be used for clothing.

DEDICATION — Announced the new overpass of Highway 101 will be dedicated on July 26 at 11 a.m.

Alternatives On Floods Discussed

Two methods of dealing with flood waters were discussed last night by the Novato Environment Quality Committee: to dredge Novato Creek from Highway 27 to its mouth in San Pablo Bay or to buy the land in the flood plain and use it for a ponding area.

Supervisor Arnold Baptiste outlined the plans for the committee, according to administrative assistant Rodney Brown.

The drawback of the dredging plan is the cost of more than $1 million and that it would have to be done every four or five years because of silting of the stream. The cost of buying land in the flood plain and putting in dikes and pumps had not been figured, Brown said.

The committee also discussed creating an outdoor ecological site in the Scottsdale area. The city, he said, can request state financing from the sale of special license plates.

The committee decided that it should consult with the school teachers first on the plans for an ecological study area before going ahead with the plans, said Brown.

Marin Jail Inmates Back Sheriff's Plea

Marin County Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, turned down by the board of supervisors in his request to fill three vacancies, has received support from an unexpected quarter — the county jail's inmates.

In a petition to the county grand jury, signed by virtually all of the male inmates, the men claimed that understaffing at the jail causes delays, inconveniences and irregularities in schedules and activities.

"The relieving of pressure on the staff will undoubtedly prevent frustrations from building on both sides," the petition, bearing 86 names, said.

Clothing and bedding are distributed on an irregular basis, as are medications, the inmates said. Telephone facilities also are not available on a regular basis and there is an "inability to maintain a proper recreation program," the inmates claimed.

Further, they said, men sometimes remain locked in attorney visiting rooms from one-half to two hours after completing interviews with lawyers.

Last week Mountanos told the supervisors that he needs to fill three vacancies he earlier had promised to keep open in order to absorb deputies when the new department of corrections takes over the honor farm.

Mountanos said the positions, vacant because officers left with disabilities, needed to be filled to keep a smooth operation until the January take-over of the honor farm by the new department.

Two of the three vacancies were in the jail. The inmates claimed that "unreasonable pressure is now being placed upon the deputies now staffing the three daily shifts" at the jail.

The supervisors, however, refused to allow three additional men to be hired, saying Mountanos had promised to reduce his department by 10 persons by January through attrition. They said they didn't want to hire people who would have to be fired at that time.

Jail officials said that the population of the jail is running at about 90 men and 16 women currently. "When the jail gets crowded and there is understaffing," a jailer said the complaints of the inmates are justified.

The inmates asked that the grand jury "review the request for three additional deputies presented to the board of supervisors."

Tiburon Owner Denied Lot Split

A Tiburon resident who wanted to split his lot into two parcels last night failed to win approval from the city board of adjustments.

According to Philemon V. Scott, development administrator, the board unanimously rejected the variance application of Richard F. Shimer because one of the new lots at 1770 Vistazo West would have been substandard with not enough area in relation to its slope.

About five residents from the area came to the meeting to protest the possible split on the grounds that it would add to congestion in the area, Scott said.

ADVENTURE WRITER — Author Howard Pease — whose books for young people combined the excitement they liked and the intellectual stimulation parents and teachers favored — keeps his typewriter at the ready though he no longer turns out the literary fare that for years were a staple of growing up. A longtime teacher, as well as author, he is presently working at his Homestead Valley home on a book on fiction writing.

MORAN'S CREATOR

By REBECCA LARSEN

Those who once followed the adventures of the Hardy Boys or Rover Boys may also remember Tod Moran, the seafaring hero of a dozen teen-age novels.

Moran was the creation of crusty, outspoken Howard Pease, 78, who now lives in Homestead Terrace, a low-rent housing development for senior citizens in Homestead Valley.

Pease first discovered he could write for young people while serving in an ambulance corps in France during World War I. "I visited Bluebeard's castle and wrote a story for my two nephews called, 'Little Francois and Barbebleu'."

A principal in the nephews' school liked the story so well he had it read in eight classes and his career was launched.

After the war, Pease went to Stanford University to study history and wrote his first book, "The Gypsy Caravan," a series of stories about children in the middle ages.

That book was turned down by several publishers.

But "The Tattooed Man," a book about a voyage he had taken through the Panama Canal as a wiper in the engine room of an old cargo boat was an instant success.

During his college years, Pease took several breaks from school to sign on for sailing jobs on ships to gather material for his writing.

Pease believes his books sold well because they combined the excitement of popular books like the Rover Boys with enough intellectual stimulation to please parents and teachers.

"My idea was to write a book fast enough paced to hold kids' interest but literary enough to be put on school shelves."

"Librarians didn't like the Rover Boys and Nancy Drew because the children in those books were usually smarter than adults, the prose was very inadequate, and they always followed the same formula."

"I tried to make my writing more realistic. My books weren't Horatio Alger-type stories at all. They didn't always have happy endings."

His idea clicked. "The Jinx Ship" became his most successful book, selling more than 100,000 copies. Besides the Tod Moran mysteries, he wrote 10 other books. Some of his novels have been reprinted in as many as nine foreign languages.

While putting out his early books, Pease was a schoolteacher in Antioch, Los Altos and San Francisco.

He gave up teaching to write full-time for 20 years in the 1940s and 1950s, but "got sick of doing the books" in the years he was turning them out annually.

Most of his stories, Pease said, were based on personal experinece.

"A psychiatrist once told me that I was the hero of all my stories."

For instance, in "The Tattooed Man," Tod Moran sets out to help his brother, a young man down on his luck and not quite as bright as Tod.

In real life, said Pease, he was always being compared unfavorably with his brother Lawrence, a high school principal. "So I guess I was envious and trying to make myself superior to my brother in the story."

"The Heart of Danger" is a World War II story about a Jewish violinist who loses his playing arm in a concentration camp and becomes a composer after the war.

Pease said the character is a composite of a violin prodigy he once knew, a Jewish teen-ager he had heard about and he himself. Pease played the violin until he was 29 and then gave it up to devote more time to writing.

There were other personal experiences in "Thunderbolt House," his favorite book, which centers on a family who inherit a fortune and a San Francisco mansion in the early 1900s. They move from Stockton to San Francisco and end up losing everything in the 1906 earthquake.

Pease said he got the idea for the story after hearing about friends who had received a similar financial windfall. "I asked myself what my family would have done with that kind of money and I realized that we would probably have moved from Stockton to San Francisco and been caught in the earthquake, too," he said.

The silver-haired, square-jawed Pease, who once owned several homes and could afford to winter in Tahiti has fallen on hard times since his literary successes and now settles for a second floor studio apartment with a tiny kitchen and a trading stamp-size deck in Homestead Terrace.

"You have to be almost broke to get in here, you know?" said Pease, settling down in a comfortable chair with several stacks of his books nearby.

Like many older persons, he has watched the cost-of-living eat up his income. "In 1945 and 1946, I was making $11,000 per year, which was probably equal to $25,000 today," he said. "But when inflation started in the 1950s, my books never kept up in prices."

"Around 1960 I wrote my last two books, and they didn't sell as well."

Pease's financial situation worsened when his second wife died in the 1960s, and left him with huge medical bills. (He has outlived three wives.)

A native of Stockton, Pease has lived in several Northern California cities, including Menlo Park, Palo Alto, Livermore and Los Altos. A few years ago, he moved to a San Francisco apartment, but after his health declined, his son Philip, a history teacher at Redwood High School and a Tiburon resident, talked him into moving to Marin County.

Pease, whose health is still poor — has settled down now to reading, working on a book on fiction writing and socializing with fellow Homestead Terrace tenants. He has served as president of the tenants' association.

Last week he and fellow terrace residents talked the Mill Valley City Council into promising to rebuild a sidewalk from their development down to Miller Avenue, so that seniors could walk to town more easily.

Pease said he likes his current home but sometimes wishes it were closer to city-style excitement. "If I could only pick this place up and put it down on the corner of Jones and Sutter," he said wistfully.

Novato Man Dies After Cycle Crash

Frederick Charles Geiger, 25, of 72 Western Drive, Novato, died early today in Novato General Hospital of injuries received Sunday in a traffic accident.

He is the 19th traffic fatality in Marin County this year compared to 16 at this time last year.

According to police, Geiger was northbound on Tamalpais Avenue on a motorcycle at 11:18 p.m. Sunday when he went through a stop sign on Center Road and hit broadside a car driven east on Center Road by Philip John Longstreet, 22, of San Bruno, police reported.

A passenger in the car, Olga Longstreet, 42, of San Bruno, was to see her own doctor for minor injuries, according to police reports.

Tam High Publication Budget Set

The Tamalpais High School District board last night adopted a 1973-74 publication budget of $11,730,742, up from this year's total of $10,902,863.

District business manager Frank Cassou said the spending program will probably require a tax rate of $2.11 per $100 assessed valuation, down from the current levy of $2.135. He attributed the drop to an 11.3 per cent increase in assessed valuation in the district's taxing area this year.

The actual spending included in the budget is $10,348,828 with $1,381,914 in district reserves.

Of the total, $8,840,864 will be raised from local property taxes.

The "expense of education" listed in the budget is $10,095,555, including $7,284,863 for instruction, $399,365 for administration, and $1,011,200 for fixed charges that include annuity retirement and health and welfare funds.

Cassou said the board, with President Jerrold M. Ladar absent, adopted the budget unanimously, and set a public hearing for final adoption for Aug. 6 at 8 p.m. at the Redwood High School faculty lounge.

Coverage Argued Of Moratorium

The Corte Madera Town Council last night failed to agree on whether the controversial Madera del Presidio development was exempted when the council enacted a building moratorium last summer. (Another Corte Madera Town Council story, page 1.)

Town clerk Betty Behel said Councilman Robert J. Flahive thought the development wasn't excluded, with Councilman Herber C. Leney "inclined to agree" with him. Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff said he did mean to exempt the project.

Because Mayor Holmes S. Norville and councilman Edward W. Colthurst were absent, said Mrs. Behel, the council decided to wait until its Aug. 6 meeting to make a decision.

Town atty. Albert Bianchi had advised the council that the moratorium wouldn't bar building of the giant project on the hillside east of 101 "if an exemption was intended."

New plans for the hotly contested project have been submitted to the town, changing it from a 128-lot townhouse subdivision to a three lot condominium. However, said Bianchi, the only difference is:

"A townhouse project is one where each individual owns the small plot of land directly under his unit and an interest in the common areas along with everyone else. In a condominium, each owner owns the "air space" in which his unit is located, and an interest in the common areas."

Mrs. Behel said the three councilmen present thought they ought to find out what Norville and Colthurst's intentions were when the moratorium ordinance was enacted.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

OPEN SPACE — Continued a public hearing on an open space element for the general plan to Aug. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall, and instructed staff to make minor changes in the ordinance introducing the element.

PLANNED UNIT — Referred back to staff a proposed amendment to the town's code adding a "planned unit development overlay zone" because the wording was confusing.

MEMORIAL TREE — Accepted four flowering cherry trees to be planted in Town Park in memory of Jan Rubin.

SENIOR CITIZENS — Signed an agreement with the county for a senior citizens' recreation program; the county pays the whole $2,000 cost, the town provides the facilities, staff and equipment.

REDEVELOPMENT — Set a public hearing for Sept. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall on a proposed amendment to the town's redevelopment plan, deleting the words "and commercial uses" from the land surrounding Ernest W. Hahn Inc.'s proposed shopping center.

CHRISTMAS TREE HILL — Directed Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels and fire department representatives to attend the planning commission's special meeting with Christmas Tree Hill residents on July 24 at 7:30 p.m. at town hall.

TAMAL VISTA — Agreed to let the Edgewater Inn pay its $4,580.46 for widening Tamal Vista Boulevard in three installments of $1,526.82.

TENNIS COURTS — Awarded the contract for landscaping the Granada School tennis court site to the TMT Comapny, Lafayette, low bidder of three at $12,329.84.

RING MOUNTAIN — Decided to ask the planning commission and homeowners' associations if they wanted to nominate someone to serve on a proposed ad hoc planning commission for the Ring Mountain area on the Tiburon Ridge.

Transit Board Splits On Bus Service Issue

Marin County Transit District directors today deadlocked on whether to pay an additional $136,000 to the Golden Gate Bridge District for local bus service.

The transit board's deadlock came about when two of the five directors present — Gary T. Giacomini and Arnold M. Baptiste — refused to go more than another $50,000. Since the funds must come from reserves, a four-fifths vote is required — six of the seven directors.

Directors then agreed to delay the meeting to later this afternoon so that two absent directors, Edward W. Colthurst and Kenneth L. Anderson can attend.

At that time, it is expected the transit board will adopt a $715,000 budget for fiscal 1973-74, which will include the additional funds for the bridge district.

By approving the additional funds at the time the budget is adopted, only a majority vote of four is needed.

The cost of local service jumped $136,000 more than last February's estimate of $606,000 after the bridge district reported heavy patronage on transbay buses by Marinites who board and get off within the county.

The bridge district, in presenting the county with the larger than expected bill last month, said state law requires the county to pay for this service as well as purely local bus service.

The transit board last week offered to pay the bridge district $50,000 of the additional amount provided that in the future the county not be asked to subsidize local passengers on transbay buses.

The argument presented then and today by directors Giacomini and Baptiste is that the cost of running transbay buses will remain the same whether local passengers ride them or not.

The bridge district board countered on Friday that the county should pay $50,000 for last fiscal year and the remaining $86,000 this fiscal year.

No additional costs would be added for local passengers on transbay buses this fiscal year, the bridge board compromised.

Directors Michael Wornum and Robert A. Roumiguiere agreed today with Director Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. that the "offer is reasonable."

They said a take-it-or-leave-it position on the $50,000 might force the bridge district to stop carrying some 600,000 local passengers per year on transbay buses that are patronized primarily by commuters.

Baptiste and Giacomini flatly refused to go more than $50,000 extra saying the county probably should not be subsidizing local passengers on transbay buses at all.

They argued that the bridge district will receive about $1.2 million in Marin gas tax revenues for transit and that amount should be taken into consideration when talking about cost sharing.

Giacomini at one point suggested the county move to withhold the gas tax funds and consider setting up its own intracounty bus system.

His idea drew a warning from Ray W. Foreaker Jr., general manager of the transit district, that it would be far more costly for the county to operate a bus system than to contract with the bridge district.

Merchants Plan Warning System

Businessmen at the Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce meeting yesterday discussed forming a telephone-warning network to tip each other off when bad checks are being passed or when shoplifters are plaguing their stores.

According to Carol B. Healey, secretary-manager of the chamber, director Norman B. Black said he would give details of the plan at the Aug. 6 meeting on a telephone alert plan for Mill Valley.

Mrs. Healy also reported to the chamber on a recent survey of whether city businessmen want to see the city owned bus depot devoted to a commercial or a public service use. She said there were 20 votes for each choice.

San Quentin Locked Up Following Two Stabbings

Most of San Quentin's 2,400 inmates remained locked in their cells today in the wake of two more stabbings at the institution yesterday, part of the continued violence which has left two men dead in the past six weeks.

Prison spokesman William D. Nyberg said the lockup will definitely continue through today and possibly through tomorrow or "until things simmer down and we can be assured there will be no more stabbings if we open up the cells."

Approximately 2,000 convicts were locked up following the stabbings of James D. Robinson and Lewis Henry, both reported in satisfactory condition today in the prison hospital.

Robinson, 25, convicted of robbery and grand theft in Los Angeles County, was stabbed in the neck, face and shoulder about 11:05 a.m. as he sat in the south dining room. Two homemade stiletto type" knives with eight-inch blades were found near the scene and one man is now in custody in connection with the attack, Nyberg said.

Two hours later, Lewis Henry, 23, convicted of robbery and illegal use of firearms in San Diego County, suffered numerous stab wounds in the neck, ear, hand and chest in the prison's East Block.

Nyberg said Henry was one of the suspects in the attack on Robinson and that his stabbing might have been in retaliation for the earlier incident. Henry is a Chicano and Robinson is a black.

On Saturday Velton Watkins, 58, convicted of first-degree murder in San Joaquin County, died after he was stabbed in the neck about 2 p.m. while walking in the prison's lower yard.

Edward S. Lopez, 30, died May 30 of massive skull fractures and brain damage. Officials said he had been hit over the head with a blunt instrument, stabbed four times and possibly garroted as well.

Raise List Is Extended By Council

Salary increases averaging 5 per cent were approved last night by the Rohnert Park City Council.

The raises included 60 per cent of the city employees and matched the 5 per cent increases given two weeks ago to other employees represented by the Sonoma County Organization of Public Employees.

City Clerk Kathryn Logue said the contract agreement also permits time-and-a-half pay for overtime work for all employees except department heads.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan received a 4.8 per cent increase to bring his salary to $1,950 per month. Callinan said the new salary classifications will be tabulated and added to the 1973-74 budget for a final presentation next month.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

WELL — Awarded a $51,099 contract to Bartley Pump Co. for a new water well on Southwest Boulevard.

SIGN — Granted a reprieve to the "Welcome to Rohnert Park" sign after residents protested the council decision to remove it from Highway 101. The council asked the chamber of commerce to make a recommendation on the sign next month.

POLICE — Rejected the request of Cotati Police Chief Thomas Gray to reduce the $1,000 per month dispatching charge to $750 per month. Gray said Cotati would begin doing its own clerical work, but council said that dispatching costs have increased.

DONATION — Agreed to give $150 to Hannele Damon of Rohnert Park who will represent Sonoma and Marin counties in the Miss California contest. The funds will be used for clothing.

DEDICATION — Announced the new overpass of Highway 101 will be dedicated on July 26 at 11 a.m.

Alternatives On Floods Discussed

Two methods of dealing with flood waters were discussed last night by the Novato Environment Quality Committee: to dredge Novato Creek from Highway 27 to its mouth in San Pablo Bay or to buy the land in the flood plain and use it for a ponding area.

Supervisor Arnold Baptiste outlined the plans for the committee, according to administrative assistant Rodney Brown.

The drawback of the dredging plan is the cost of more than $1 million and that it would have to be done every four or five years because of silting of the stream. The cost of buying land in the flood plain and putting in dikes and pumps had not been figured, Brown said.

The committee also discussed creating an outdoor ecological site in the Scottsdale area. The city, he said, can request state financing from the sale of special license plates.

The committee decided that it should consult with the school teachers first on the plans for an ecological study area before going ahead with the plans, said Brown.

Office Machines Taken By Burglar

Office machines valued at $1,400 have been reported stolen to San Rafael police from Grange Debris Box Rentals, 2031 Francisco Boulevard.

Police said the thief forced open a sliding glass window at the firm sometime between 5:15 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 a.m. yesterday.

Marin Jail Inmates Back Sheriff's Plea

Marin County Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, turned down by the board of supervisors in his request to fill three vacancies, has received support from an unexpected quarter — the county jail's inmates.

In a petition to the county grand jury, signed by virtually all of the male inmates, the men claimed that understaffing at the jail causes delays, inconveniences and irregularities in schedules and activities.

"The relieving of pressure on the staff will undoubtedly prevent frustrations from building on both sides," the petition, bearing 86 names, said.

Clothing and bedding are distributed on an irregular basis, as are medications, the inmates said. Telephone facilities also are not available on a regular basis and there is an "inability to maintain a proper recreation program," the inmates claimed.

Further, they said, men sometimes remain locked in attorney visiting rooms from one-half to two hours after completing interviews with lawyers.

Last week Mountanos told the supervisors that he needs to fill three vacancies he earlier had promised to keep open in order to absorb deputies when the new department of corrections takes over the honor farm.

Mountanos said the positions, vacant because officers left with disabilities, needed to be filled to keep a smooth operation until the January take-over of the honor farm by the new department.

Two of the three vacancies were in the jail. The inmates claimed that "unreasonable pressure is now being placed upon the deputies now staffing the three daily shifts" at the jail.

The supervisors, however, refused to allow three additional men to be hired, saying Mountanos had promised to reduce his department by 10 persons by January through attrition. They said they didn't want to hire people who would have to be fired at that time.

Jail officials said that the population of the jail is running at about 90 men and 16 women currently. "When the jail gets crowded and there is understaffing," a jailer said the complaints of the inmates are justified.

The inmates asked that the grand jury "review the request for three additional deputies presented to the board of supervisors."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Brain Pacemaker Is Used To Stop Muscle Spasms, Epilepsy

The first report of a brain pacemaker appeared in Medical World News. It was developed by Dr. Irving S. Cooper at St. Barnabas Hospital for Chronic Diseases in the Bronx. In medical circles, Dr. Cooper is best known for his surgical treatment of Parkinson's disease back in the '50s. That procedure was replaced, to a certain extent, when L-dopa was introduced as an oral treatment for parkinsonism. The new device is designed to correct certain brain waves that cause intractable convulsions (epilepsy) and disabling spastic or reflex neuromuscular conditions. It is attached to the neocerebellum located in the lower back part of the brain. Results have been encouraging enough to warrant further research, even tho not everyone is helped

FOR EXAMPLE, a brain pacemaker was inserted into the right neocerebellum of a 12-year-old boy with cerebral palsy. Muscle stiffness was so severe (due to muscular spasm), that the youngster was unable to sit up alone. The electrical waves overcame those produced by the brain damage and, according to Dr. Cooper, "the boy can now sit alone, propel a wheelchair unaided, and partially feed himself."

People who have had a stroke and were left with painful muscular spasms also have benefitted. We assume that the abnormal brain waves were originating in scar tissue and the pacemaker modulated the stimulus.

THE BRAIN pacemaker procedure involves a silicon-coated mesh plate with four or eight pairs of platinum disk electrodes. The latter are stimulated via a battery-powered transmitter which is outside the body and tiny enough to fit into a pocket. Different rates are needed for different disorders.

There is a great future for medical electronics. Much has been accomplished but, in my opinion, we have only scratched the surface. From time to time, we read about a variety of electronic devices that help move a prosthesis and paralyzed muscles in the extremities. They also are used to correct certain types of bladder trouble. Perhaps, our researchers will develop electronic eyes for the blind and ears for the hard of hearing.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Histogram

I.S. writes: What is a histogram done for?

REPLY

Histo refers to tissues and a gram is a tracing or written record. Combine these two and we get some sort of a tracing made on tissue. Machines that make such records usually are called electrocardiographs when they are used on heart tissue, electroencephalographs when used to study the brain, and myographs for muscle.

Training the Infant

Mrs. S. writes: I have been putting my 4-month-old son on the potty for a month. Friends tell me I will make him nervous and upset his system by putting him thru this training so young. Please advise if I am doing him any harm?

REPLY

The infant is a bit young, altho, theoretically, bowel training could be started the first week of life. Why not wait until the tyke develops the muscles and nerves that control the opening of the bladder before attempting urinary training? Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on toilet training.

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, July 17, the 198th day of 1973 with 167 to follow

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

Television personality Art Linkletter was born July 17, 1912.

On this day in history:

In 1821, Florida was formally ceded by Spain to the United States.

In 1936, the Spanish Civil War began.

In 1955, Arco, Idaho, a town of 1,300 persons, became the first community in the world to receive all its light and power from atomic energy.

A thought for the day: British statesman Lord John Russell said, "If peace cannot be maintained with honor, it is no longer peace."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Brain Pacemaker Is Used To Stop Muscle Spasms, Epilepsy

The first report of a brain pacemaker appeared in Medical World News. It was developed by Dr. Irving S. Cooper at St. Barnabas Hospital for Chronic Diseases in the Bronx. In medical circles, Dr. Cooper is best known for his surgical treatment of Parkinson's disease back in the '50s. That procedure was replaced, to a certain extent, when L-dopa was introduced as an oral treatment for parkinsonism. The new device is designed to correct certain brain waves that cause intractable convulsions (epilepsy) and disabling spastic or reflex neuromuscular conditions. It is attached to the neocerebellum located in the lower back part of the brain. Results have been encouraging enough to warrant further research, even tho not everyone is helped

FOR EXAMPLE, a brain pacemaker was inserted into the right neocerebellum of a 12-year-old boy with cerebral palsy. Muscle stiffness was so severe (due to muscular spasm), that the youngster was unable to sit up alone. The electrical waves overcame those produced by the brain damage and, according to Dr. Cooper, "the boy can now sit alone, propel a wheelchair unaided, and partially feed himself."

People who have had a stroke and were left with painful muscular spasms also have benefitted. We assume that the abnormal brain waves were originating in scar tissue and the pacemaker modulated the stimulus.

THE BRAIN pacemaker procedure involves a silicon-coated mesh plate with four or eight pairs of platinum disk electrodes. The latter are stimulated via a battery-powered transmitter which is outside the body and tiny enough to fit into a pocket. Different rates are needed for different disorders.

There is a great future for medical electronics. Much has been accomplished but, in my opinion, we have only scratched the surface. From time to time, we read about a variety of electronic devices that help move a prosthesis and paralyzed muscles in the extremities. They also are used to correct certain types of bladder trouble. Perhaps, our researchers will develop electronic eyes for the blind and ears for the hard of hearing.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Histogram

I.S. writes: What is a histogram done for?

REPLY

Histo refers to tissues and a gram is a tracing or written record. Combine these two and we get some sort of a tracing made on tissue. Machines that make such records usually are called electrocardiographs when they are used on heart tissue, electroencephalographs when used to study the brain, and myographs for muscle.

Training the Infant

Mrs. S. writes: I have been putting my 4-month-old son on the potty for a month. Friends tell me I will make him nervous and upset his system by putting him thru this training so young. Please advise if I am doing him any harm?

REPLY

The infant is a bit young, altho, theoretically, bowel training could be started the first week of life. Why not wait until the tyke develops the muscles and nerves that control the opening of the bladder before attempting urinary training? Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on toilet training.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Tuesday, July 17, the 198th day of 1973 with 167 to follow

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

Television personality Art Linkletter was born July 17, 1912.

On this day in history:

In 1821, Florida was formally ceded by Spain to the United States.

In 1936, the Spanish Civil War began.

In 1965, Arco, Idaho, a town of 1,300 persons, became the first community in the world to receive all its light and power from atomic energy.

A thought for the day: British statesman Lord John Russell said, "If peace cannot be maintained with honor, it is no longer peace."

Brake Dangers Prompt Recall

DETROIT (UPI) — Potential brake problems on 8,900 cars and trucks—all 1973 models—have prompted General Motors to begin recall campaigns for the vehicles.

No accidents or injuries have been reported as a result of the brake conditions, a G.M. spokesman said yesterday, and owners are being notified by certified mail to bring the vehicles to dealers for free inspection and repair.

There are two separate problems, one affecting 3,100 intermediate size vehicles built at the Fremont, Calif., assembly plant and equipped with manual brakes. The other affects 5,800 medium-duty trucks equipped with 366 or 427 cubic inch engines with power steering and hydraulic brakes.

Robber's Really In Same Old Rut

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — The holdup note demanding $1,000 from a branch of the First National City Bank looked familiar. In fact, police found the same note had been used to rob the same bank of the same amount three years ago.

They arrested Harold Lee Leftowich.

Leftowich had been charged in 1970 with committing five bank robberies in the past few years—each time taking $1,000 and handing a teller a note that used virtually the same language.

Sickle Cell Anemia Hearing Scheduled

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee on medical education and health needs will conduct a public hearing July 25 in Los Angeles on financing, research and mass screening programs for Sickle Cell Anemia.

Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, chairman of the committee, made the announcement yesterday. He said the daylong hearing would be held in the New State Building.

July 30 Meeting

A joint meeting between Marin and Sonoma county supervisors will be held July 30. The meeting, to be held at the Sonoma County administration building in Santa Rosa, will deal with flood plain zoning along San Antonio Creek and the Petaluma River.

Bombers Being Returned To U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force has started returning to the United States B52 bombers that were sent to the Pacific at the time of the North Vietnamese invasion of South Vietnam in March 1972.

The Pentagon said yesterday 15 of the heavy bombers were being returned from Guam.

Japanese War Straggler Found

MANILA (UPI) — A Japanese World War II straggler listed as dead was found on the island of Mindanao by his twin brother after a 28-year search, the Japanese embassy said today.

A spokesman said Sozo Miki, 51, identified the straggler as his long-missing brother Ryoji, a former senior seaman in the Imperial Navy.

The spokesman said an elder brother and other relatives were scheduled to fly into Manila later today, presumably for a family reunion with the newly-found straggler.

Miki was officially listed as dead after World War II.

Five Face Hearing On Pot Charge

Five Santa Venetia residents have been ordered to appear Aug. 7 in Marin Municipal Court for a preliminary hearing on charges they possessed marijuana for sale when their home was raided March 20.

Judge David R. Baty Friday ordered the appearance after ruling that two of the five, Jean Mira Kubicki and Lynda Rae Stefko, both 25, are not eligible to be diverted into a program for treatment and rehabilitation of drug offenders.

A sixth person arrested in the raid, Robin Elyse Mariani, 19, previously was funneled into the rehabilitation program.

All five defendants, including Jason Keith Anderson, 24, and David Fremon Witty and Eric Landon Rice, both 23, have pleaded innocent to the drug charges.

San Francisco police and Marin sheriff's deputies reportedly confiscated about two pounds of suspected marijuana at the home at 42 Crestview Drive.

Plea Bargain Ends Obscene Books Case

Three criminal complaints charging a Petaluma man with distributing obscene books have been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court but the company the man heads was ordered to pay a $750 fine.

The dismissal of charges against Donald Calvin Warnecke, 41, was ordered Friday by Judge David R. Baty as the result of a plea bargain. As part of the deal, Warnecke's San Oaks Distributing Co. pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of criminal conspiracy.

A jury trial on the obscene books charges — stemming from a raid at Warnecke's San Rafael warehouse Dec. 22, 1971 — ended in a hung jury split six to six.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Vernon F. Smith said he objected to the plea bargain and told Baty his office wanted to retry the case applying new standards recently handed down by the U.S. Supreme Court. Those guidelines say communities may set their own pornography standards.

Emergency State For Burned Area

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Portions of the fire ravished Palos Verdes Peninsula and the city of Rolling Hills have been declared in a state of emergency by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The proclamation, issued yesterday, enables Los Angeles County to grant property tax relief to victims of the estimated $1.3 million fire.

Bombers Being Returned To U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force has started returning to the United States B52 bombers that were sent to the Pacific at the time of the North Vietnamese invasion of South Vietnam in March 1972.

The Pentagon said yesterday 15 of the heavy bombers were being returned from Guam.

Brake Dangers Prompt Recall

DETROIT (UPI) — Potential brake problems on 8,900 cars and trucks—all 1973 models—have prompted General Motors to begin recall campaigns for the vehicles.

No accidents or injuries have been reported as a result of the brake conditions, a G.M. spokesman said yesterday, and owners are being notified by certified mail to bring the vehicles to dealers for free inspection and repair.

There are two separate problems, one affecting 3,100 intermediate size vehicles built at the Fremont, Calif., assembly plant and equipped with manual brakes. The other affects 5,800 medium-duty trucks equipped with 366 or 427 cubic inch engines with power steering and hydraulic brakes.

Robber's Really In Same Old Rut

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — The holdup note demanding $1,000 from a branch of the First National City Bank looked familiar. In fact, police found the same note had been used to rob the same bank of the same amount three years ago.

They arrested Harold Lee Leftowich.

Leftowich had been charged in 1970 with committing five bank robberies in the past few years—each time taking $1,000 and handing a teller a note that used virtually the same language.

Sickle Cell Anemia Hearing Scheduled

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee on medical education and health needs will conduct a public hearing July 25 in Los Angeles on financing, research and mass screening programs for Sickle Cell Anemia.

Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, chairman of the committee, made the announcement yesterday. He said the daylong hearing would be held in the New State Building.

July 30 Meeting

A joint meeting between Marin and Sonoma county supervisors will be held July 30. The meeting, to be held at the Sonoma County administration building in Santa Rosa, will deal with flood plain zoning along San Antonio Creek and the Petaluma River.

Japanese War Straggler Found

MANILA (UPI) — A Japanese World War II straggler listed as dead was found on the island of Mindanao by his twin brother after a 28-year search, the Japanese embassy said today.

A spokesman said Sozo Miki, 51, identified the straggler as his long-missing brother Ryoji, a former senior seaman in the Imperial Navy.

The spokesman said an elder brother and other relatives were scheduled to fly into Manila later today, presumably for a family reunion with the newly-found straggler.

Miki was officially listed as dead after World War II.

Five Face Hearing On Pot Charge

Five Santa Venetia residents have been ordered to appear Aug. 7 in Marin Municipal Court for a preliminary hearing on charges they possessed marijuana for sale when their home was raided March 20.

Judge David R. Baty Friday ordered the appearance after ruling that two of the five, Jean Mira Kubicki and Lynda Rae Stefko, both 25, are not eligible to be diverted into a program for treatment and rehabilitation of drug offenders.

A sixth person arrested in the raid, Robin Elyse Mariani, 19, previously was funneled into the rehabilitation program.

All five defendants, including Jason Keith Anderson, 24, and David Fremon Witty and Eric Landon Rice, both 23, have pleaded innocent to the drug charges.

San Francisco police and Marin sheriff's deputies reportedly confiscated about two pounds of suspected marijuana at the home at 42 Crestview Drive.

Plea Bargain Ends Obscene Books Case

Three criminal complaints charging a Petaluma man with distributing obscene books have been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court but the company the man heads was ordered to pay a $750 fine.

The dismissal of charges against Donald Calvin Warnecke, 41, was ordered Friday by Judge David R. Baty as the result of a plea bargain. As part of the deal, Warnecke's San Oaks Distributing Co. pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of criminal conspiracy.

A jury trial on the obscene books charges — stemming from a raid at Warnecke's San Rafael warehouse Dec. 22, 1971 — ended in a hung jury split six to six.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Vernon F. Smith said he objected to the plea bargain and told Baty his office wanted to retry the case applying new standards recently handed down by the U.S. Supreme Court. Those guidelines say communities may set their own pornography standards.

Emergency State For Burned Area

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Portions of the fire ravished Palos Verdes Peninsula and the city of Rolling Hills have been declared in a state of emergency by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The proclamation, issued yesterday, enables Los Angeles County to grant property tax relief to victims of the estimated $1.3 million fire.

Smooth Swindling Needs Practice At Card Table

When an obvious singleton has been led against you, the contract may depend on beclouding the obvious. You must be ready to execute a deceptive play without any clumsy pause for thought.

HIGH CARD RETURN

Suppose the four of diamonds is led. You know it is a singleton. If East also recognizes that fact he will take the ace of diamonds and return the eight. This high card asks for a high suit (hearts rather than clubs) as a return lead.

West will ruff the eight of diamonds and return a heart. East takes the ace of hearts and leads another diamond.

And down you go.

You can't expect to fool East by dropping the jack of diamonds from your hand at the first trick. If the jack is an honest card, West has led the unlikely four of diamonds from 9-4-2. However, the jack of diamonds may work well against the sort of opponent who doesn't think.

WORKABLE SWINDLES

If East thinks, play a low diamond from dummy and drop the nine from your own hand. This conceals the whereabouts of the deuce of diamonds. From East's point of view, his partner might have opened the four from the doubleton 4-2 of diamonds.

Better still, put up the king of diamonds from the dummy at the first trick and drop the deuce from your hand. This creates the impression that you don't have the jack. East may well think that his partner opened the four from J-9-4 of diamonds.

PLAN AHEAD

If you cook up swindles of this kind in your spare time, you should be able to execute them smoothly and quickly at the bridge table.

If you try to improvise a swindle at the table, your opponents will probably see through it.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

The Fighting 69th! Yes, age comes before beauty today but we're not telling who is the youngest. To find out, use our secret formulas.

A. JAMES CAGNEY is 60 today and as scrappy, peppy, fast on his feet as ever. After 60 films he is coming out of retirement to accept a special award this month in Hollywood. Typed for years as a public enemy, he broke the mold and went on to win an Oscar as George M. Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

B. DIAHANN CARROLL began her career as a model. She caught the eye of fellow students at New York University, then the attention of Hollywood. She was signed for "Carmen Jones" and got her own TV show as "Julia." Big-eyed, tiny and beautiful, it's hard to guess her age. What is it? Subtract 31 from A (above).

C. ARTLINKLETTER knows that people are funny. Chances are on his birthday today he will hold a "House Party" just to see old friends again. Born in Canada, he moved to San Diego, where he finished college and got a job as a radio salesman. But his ideas for programs soon got him on the air — a daily talk show favorite from Hollywood for years and years. His age today? Add 23 to B (above).

D. LUCIE ARNAZ is the first born child of Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz. She was in the crib when her parents started their hit series, "I Love Lucy." Now she is old enough to share the spotlight in TV programs with her mother — a tall, 120-pound beauty. Her age? Subtract 39 from C (above).

Raiders Swap Chester For Smith

SANTA ROSA (AP) — The Oakland Raiders have acquired defensive end Bubba Smith from the Baltimore Colts in exchange for tight end Ray Chester — a deal Oakland Coach John Madden called "one of the biggest trades ever with two all-pros and two of the bigger names in football.

"It's a sad and difficult thing to lose a player like Ray Chester, but it's a happy occasion to get Bubba," said Madden after Monday night's announcement of the trade.

Chester, 25, a starter with the Raiders the last three seasons, refused comment.

Smith, 28, formerly of Michigan State and the Colts' first pick in the 1967 draft, was happy to leave Baltimore where he sat out last season with a knee injury.

"I now have a chance to do a lot of things," said Smith. "I have a chance to make better money."

Baltimore general manager anager Joe Thomas said Smith's outspoken desire to be traded "had nothing to do with" the deal. "We had a chance to get possibly the best tight end in all football, and we had to give up a good football player," Thomas said.

Chester, from Morgan State in Baltimore and the Raiders' first draft choice in 1970, has caught at least one pass in all but two of his 42 games as a Raider. He had 34 receptions for 576 yards and eight touchdowns last season, and a three-year total of 104 catches for 1,570 yards and 22 touchdowns.

"Ray did a lot of things well, and it is tough to lose a guy like that," said Raider quarterback Daryle Lamonica.

Lamonica went on to say, "It's pleasing Bubba is on our side now — he hit me every game and he always got my knees. Maybe they'll last a little longer now."

Madden said, "We think a lot of our own defensive line. This trade is nothing against them. . .we don't know how we'll arrange the down four. Bubba plays the left side, but he's very versatile."

Former Stanford end Bob Moore has been understudying Chester the last two seasons. Moore caught six passes last year for 49 yards and one touchdown and played with the special teams.

Other Raider tight ends are Jeff Queen, who joined the club last season from the San Diego Chargers; Kent Gaydos, a second-year man from Florida State, and rookie Steve Sweeney of Cal.

In other football developments, Dallas Cowboy all-pro defensive lineman Bob Lilly joined quarterback Craig Morton and center Dave Manders in fialing to show for the team's camp failing Thousand Oaks, Calif.

In Dallas, Lilly's wife, Ann, said he told her the camp was "in a confused shambles, morale was low" and he was returning home from California "until training camp conditions improve."

The Cowboys wondered how he knew of camp conditions without ever arriving and club President Tex Schramm said the incident had him "confused" personally. But he denied any troubles were brewing.

"I don't think there's any confusion here," he said.

"All things considered I think it's a fairly normal opening for us," Schramm said of the official beginning of the Cowboy

Bonds Fails In Bid For All-Star Team

NEW YORK (UPI) — San Francisco Giants outfielder Bobby Bonds now knows how Richard Nixon felt in 1960, or Hubert Humphrey in 1968, while shortstop Chris Speier is savoring the same kind of joy which befell Lyndon Johnson in 1964.

Bonds was narrowly defeated in his election bid, while Speier won in a landslide, as the National League announced the results of its All-Star balloting by the fans.

On the American League side, meanwhile, Oakland outfielder Reggie Jackson and shortstop Bert Campaneris were chosen for the starting team, Campaneris for the third time.

Bonds polled 855,344 votes, a scant 5,000 less than Cesar Cedeno of Houston, in the bid for the third outfield spot behind Cincinnati's Pete Rose and Chicago's Billy Williams.

Speier, on the other hand, decisively outpolled Cincinnati's Dave Concepcion by almost 400,000 votes.

Cincinnati's Johnny Bench was selected at catcher by an overwhelming margin, polling more than four times as many votes as runner-up Manny Sanguillen of Pittsburgh. A similar landslide occurred at first base, where Atlanta's Hank Aaron more than doubled Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell.

Joe Morgan of Cincinnati also won handily at second, more than doubling Pittsburgh's Dave Cash. The third-base voting was fairly close, with Ron Santo of Chicago outpolling Joe Torre of St. Louis, 808,000 to 711,000.

Opposing the NL squad at the 44th mid-summer classic at Kansas City's new Royal Stadium July 24th will be an American League team dominated by sluggers — Dick Allen of Chicago, Reggie Jackson of Oakland, Bobby Murcer of New York, Carlton Fisk of Boston and Amos Otis of Kansas City.

Allen, last year's most valuable player, was the top vote-getter (1,111,366) in the AL but may not be able to play due to a leg injury which has sidelined him for several weeks. If the White Sox slugger cannot play, the starting first base assignment probably would be given to runner-up John Mayberry of Kansas City.

Rod Carew of Minnesota gained the second base starting assignment in a tight ballot battle with K.C.'s Cookie Rojas.

Dads, Sons And Golf

After Tom Weiskopf won the British Open Golf championship Saturday he said he had only one regret — that his father, who died four months ago, was not alive to share in the happiness of victory. "He just lived for my golf — he was my biggest fan," said Weiskopf.

Fathers can play a big role in the development of young golfers. Mat Palacio Jr. of San Rafael, winner of the 1936 California State Amateur Golf Championship who is still busting par at age 57, gives much of the credit for his golf success to his father. Mat's dad used to shag golf balls for him when Mat was a youngster driving them out in a field where the Marin County Civic Center now stands.

A SCHOOL CHUM of Mat's years ago at San Rafael High School was Larry Miller, a man who also has a son that plays pretty good golf. His boy is Johnny, winner of the U.S. Open and runner-up to Weiskopf Sunday at Troon, Scotland.

Larry, his twin brother Bob, Mat and Mat's late brother, John, who was killed in an automobile accident in 1941, were all buddies during their school days at San Rafael High.

Mat and Larry keep in touch and said Palacio: "I have seen young Johnny progress as a wee lad, so it really pleased me that he went on to win the big one — the U.S. Open."

He continued: "I thought Johnny was too high geared, excitable. But now I think the kid has matured."

AFTER MILLER'S victory in the U.S. Open last month at Oakmont, Pa., Mat wrote a congratulatory letter to Johnny's dad, who now lives in San Francisco. Wrote back the senior Miller:

"Yes, we certainly are very proud that Johnny was able to win the U.S. Open. This is a father's dream come true! It just seems like yesterday that we, as kids, were playing at the Sleepy Hollow golf course in Marin. It was 1934 that I started playing golf. I was an avid tennis player until I started in golf. Then I sort of gave up tennis. I always wanted to be good like yourself and your brother, John. But I never attained championship caliber. So when I had a son I vowed he would be a champion. After we lost our older son Ronald we concentrated on Johnny. So this is a realization of my early hopes. My wife and I are still in the clouds where Johnny is concerned. It is like winning an Irish Sweepstakes — but even better."

IN PASSING ON the Miller letter to me, Mat said, "The real thought in Larry's letter to me is the perseverance, a father's desire to keep encouraging his son and the great will young John had to be a champion. I hope there is a lesson here for fathers and sons to stick together closer, like the Millers did. Something good always comes out in this kind of a relationship."

It must be the truth. Palacio still talks of the days his dad shagged balls for him out in the cow pastures. Larry Miller did all he could to make his son into a champion. And Tom Weiskopf talks about his late father as soon as he wins the British Open.

Improbable Finishes Transpac

Combined AP & UPI

HONOLULU — The Marin-based yacht Improbable has finished the Transpacific race, and now is tensely awaiting the effort of Chutzpah to take away its overall corrected time lead.

Improbable, owned and sailed by David W. Allen of Belvedere and registered out of the San Francisco Yacht Club there, crossed the finish line at 10:18 p.m. HST Monday, becoming the 10th boat to finish the 2,225-nautical mile race from Los Angeles to Diamond Head.

Chutzpah, skippered by Stuart Brown of Honolulu, was obligated to get his boat across the line before 3 a.m. HST Wednesday to take the overall lead from Improbable.

Also still on the ocean was Ariana, the Los Angeles Y.C. yacht which took the overall lead from Improbable Friday.

Improbable also held the Class B lead, while Warrior was ahead in Class A, Blue Streak in "C" and Chutzpah in "D."

The finishers, in order, were Ragtime, Windward Passage, Blackfin, Ondine, Buccaneer, New World, Robon, Warrior and Min Sette.

A's Big Crowd Fires Up Foes

OAKLAND (UPI) — There is something about a big crowd and an important game that psyche up Brooks Robinson, the old pro who still gets big hits despite an embarrassing .228 batting average.

Robinson celebrated election to his 17th All Star game Monday night with a three-run homer that lifted the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-5 victory over the Oakland A's and to within a game of the lead in the American League East.

A crowd of 43,571, largest of the year in the Oakland Coliseum, watched the slugfest between the two old rivals and when everyone had finished doing "his thing" the 36-year-old Robinson stood head and shoulders over the mob.

Al Bumbry and Rich Coggins hit solo homers for the Orioles and Gene Tenace and Sal Bando added two-run shots for the A's. In addition, Tommy Davis, Baltimore's designated hitter, rapped out four hits and Don Hood, a poised 23-year-old rookie left-hander, pitched four shutout relief innings to gain a victory in his first major league appearance.

Robinson seems somewhat embarrassed about his low batting average and the fact he was named to the A.L. All Star team ahead of such other third basemen as Bill Melton of the White Sox and Bando.

"Both of those fellows are having better years than I am," said Robinson, who had only six homers and 31 RBIs along with that .228 batting average. "But it's just as big a thrill to be named to my 17th All Star game as it was for the first.

Hood gave up only two hits in his big league debut. He took over in the sixth after the A's built a 5-4 lead on starter Jesse Jefferson.

Giants Even With Cards After Loss

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Just about every way you look at it, the San Francisco Giants and St. Louis Cardinals are even-steven going into tonight's battle.

When Bob Gibson outpitched Jim Barr Monday night in a 3-2 squeaker, it evened Gibson this year with the Giants in general and Barr in particular at two wins apiece. All have been tough one-run verdicts.

It also gave Gibson 234 major league victories, tying him again with the Giant's Juan Marichal, who may have rejoined the Giants' starting rotation by tossing a shutout Sunday over Pittsburgh.

It also evened the two teams at five wins apiece moving into tonight's battle with Tom Bradley (9-7), trying to push the Giants out in front of the Redbirds again.

And maybe catcher Dave Rader got a little even, too. Gibson took umbrage at a Rader remark in the two teams' last meeting at Candlestick Park and took a pitch on the batting helmet in return.

But Gibson took only 1:49 to shove the Giants into third place eight games behind high-flying Los Angeles.

Joe Torre hit the eighth inning single that won Monday's game. Lou Brock ignited the rally with a base hit off the glove of third baseman Ed Goodson. A sacrifice moved Brock to second and Torre followed with his game-winning blow.

Bernie Carbo slammed his second homer of the year leading off the fifth to give the Cardinals a 2-1 lead but the Giants tied it in the sixth.

Lutz Hurts Knee In Net Tourney

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Fourth-seeded Australian John Alexander squeezed past new Tiburon resident Jeff Borowiak, 6-4, 6-7 and 7-6 Monday to advance to the second round of the $60,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships at the Longwood Cricket Club.

The day's action was marred by a knee injury to defending champion Bob Lutz of Sausalito and a noisy crowd of 2,500 that disturbed participants.

Alexander, who finished 11th in the 1971-72 World Championship of Tennis (WCT) tour, narrowly escaped Borowiak's persistent charge that forced a pair of tiebreakers.

The long-haired and headbanded American won the tiebreaker in the middle set, but gave way to Alexander's powerful serve in the final set.

Alexander meets Graham Stilwell of Great Britain on Wednesday as the second round opens.

Stillwell defeated Mike Estep of Dalls, 6-3, 6-7 and 6-2 in another opening round contest Monday.

In other matches, Gerald Battrick of Britain rebounded for a 6-7, 6-4 and 6-1 win over Paul Gerkin of East Norwalk, Conn., seventh seeded Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., whipped Eddie Dibbs of Miami, 6-2, 6-4, and sixth-seeded Dick Stockton of Port Washington, N.Y., stopped Australian Dick Crealy, 7-6, 6-1.

Fifth-seeded Cliff Richey survived some difficulty in the first set to defeat Pakistan's Haroon Rahim, 7-6, 6-1, to move into the second round against Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia, who defeated Doug Crawford of Weston, Mass., 6-2, 7-6.

Stockton complained about a "noisy crowd" that hampered his concentration in the first set, but he quickly settled down to pick Crealy apart while sweeping to an easy triumph in the deciding set.

Bad Vision No Problem For 49er Rookie Star

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Rookie linebacker Willie Harper, the San Francisco 49ers' No. 2 draft choice, has been knocking men around in practice rather handily for a fellow who says he hardly can see them.

"I'm blind without my glasses," the former Nebraska defensive end said Monday. "I didn't need them at Nebraska since I was up on the line, but here, since I'll be back, I'll have to wear contact lenses. I wish I had them now. Everything is just a blur."

"Harper has great legs, He can really move."

Novato Teams Win In Babe Ruth Play

SANTA ROSA — Novato American and Novato National captured victories yesterday in opening games in the District 9 Babe Ruth Baseball 13-year-old tournament at Doyle Field.

Novato American defeated Northgate Marin, 5-3, while Novato National took advantage of 10 Redwood Empire North errors in a 21-1 romp.

San Anselmo Wins

SANTA ROSA (AP) — The Oakland Raiders have acquired defensive end Bubba Smith from the Baltimore Colts in exchange for tight end Ray Chester — a deal Oakland Coach John Madden called "one of the biggest trades ever with two all-pros and two of the bigger names in football.

Larry, his twin brother Bob, Mat and Mat's late brother, John, who was killed in an automobile accident in 1941, were all buddies during their school days at San Rafael High.

Mat and Larry keep in touch and said Palacio: "I have seen young Johnny progress as a wee lad, so it really pleased me that he went on to win the big one — the U.S. Open."

He continued: "I thought Johnny was too high geared, excitable. But now I think the kid has matured."

AFTER MILLER'S victory in the U.S. Open last month at Oakmont, Pa., Mat wrote a congratulatory letter to Johnny's dad, who now lives in San Francisco. Wrote back the senior Miller:

"Yes, we certainly are very proud that Johnny was able to win the U.S. Open. This is a father's dream come true! It just seems like yesterday that we, as kids, were playing at the Sleepy Hollow golf course in Marin. It was 1934 that I started playing golf. I was an avid tennis player until I started in golf. Then I sort of gave up tennis. I always wanted to be good like yourself and your brother, John. But I never attained championship caliber. So when I had a son I vowed he would be a champion. After we lost our older son Ronald we concentrated on Johnny. So this is a realization of my early hopes. My wife and I are still in the clouds where Johnny is concerned. It is like winning an Irish Sweepstakes — but even better."

IN PASSING ON the Miller letter to me, Mat said, "The real thought in Larry's letter to me is the perseverance, a father's desire to keep encouraging his son and the great will young John had to be a champion. I hope there is a lesson here for fathers and sons to stick together closer, like the Millers did. Something good always comes out in this kind of a relationship."

It must be the truth. Palacio still talks of the days his dad shagged balls for him out in the cow pastures. Larry Miller did all he could to make his son into a champion. And Tom Weiskopf talks about his late father as soon as he wins the British Open.

Giants Even With Cards After Loss

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Just about every way you look at it, the San Francisco Giants and St. Louis Cardinals are even-steven going into tonight's battle.

When Bob Gibson outpitched Jim Barr Monday night in a 3-2 squeaker, it evened Gibson this year with the Giants in general and Barr in particular at two wins apiece. All have been tough one-run verdicts.

It also gave Gibson 234 major league victories, tying him again with the Giant's Juan Marichal, who may have rejoined the Giants' starting rotation by tossing a shutout Sunday over Pittsburgh.

It also evened the two teams at five wins apiece moving into tonight's battle with Tom Bradley (9-7), trying to push the Giants out in front of the Redbirds again.

And maybe catcher Dave Rader got a little even, too. Gibson took umbrage at a Rader remark in the two teams' last meeting at Candlestick Park and took a pitch on the batting helmet in return.

But Gibson took only 1:49 to shove the Giants into third place eight games behind high-flying Los Angeles.

Joe Torre hit the eighth inning single that won Monday's game. Lou Brock ignited the rally with a base hit off the glove of third baseman Ed Goodson. A sacrifice moved Brock to second and Torre followed with his game-winning blow.

Bernie Carbo slammed his second homer of the year leading off the fifth to give the Cardinals a 2-1 lead but the Giants tied it in the sixth.

Lutz Hurts Knee In Net Tourney

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Fourth-seeded Australian John Alexander squeezed past new Tiburon resident Jeff Borowiak, 6-4, 6-7 and 7-6 Monday to advance to the second round of the $60,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships at the Longwood Cricket Club.

The day's action was marred by a knee injury to defending champion Bob Lutz of Sausalito and a noisy crowd of 2,500 that disturbed participants.

Alexander, who finished 11th in the 1971-72 World Championship of Tennis (WCT) tour, narrowly escaped Borowiak's persistent charge that forced a pair of tiebreakers.

The long-haired and headbanded American won the tiebreaker in the middle set, but gave way to Alexander's powerful serve in the final set.

Alexander meets Graham Stilwell of Great Britain on Wednesday as the second round opens.

Stillwell defeated Mike Estep of Dalls, 6-3, 6-7 and 6-2 in another opening round contest Monday.

In other matches, Gerald Battrick of Britain rebounded for a 6-7, 6-4 and 6-1 win over Paul Gerkin of East Norwalk, Conn., seventh seeded Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., whipped Eddie Dibbs of Miami, 6-2, 6-4, and sixth-seeded Dick Stockton of Port Washington, N.Y., stopped Australian Dick Crealy, 7-6, 6-1.

Fifth-seeded Cliff Richey survived some difficulty in the first set to defeat Pakistan's Haroon Rahim, 7-6, 6-1, to move into the second round against Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia, who defeated Doug Crawford of Weston, Mass., 6-2, 7-6.

Stockton complained about a "noisy crowd" that hampered his concentration in the first set, but he quickly settled down to pick Crealy apart while sweeping to an easy triumph in the deciding set.

Improbable Finishes Transpac

Combined AP & UPI

HONOLULU — The Marin-based yacht Improbable has finished the Transpacific race, and now is tensely awaiting the effort of Chutzpah to take away its overall corrected time lead.

Improbable, owned and sailed by David W. Allen of Belvedere and registered out of the San Francisco Yacht Club there, crossed the finish line at 10:18 p.m. HST Monday, becoming the 10th boat to finish the 2,225-nautical mile race from Los Angeles to Diamond Head.

Chutzpah, skippered by Stuart Brown of Honolulu, was obligated to get his boat across the line before 3 a.m. HST Wednesday to take the overall lead from Improbable.

Also still on the ocean was Ariana, the Los Angeles Y.C. yacht which took the overall lead from Improbable Friday.

Improbable also held the Class B lead, while Warrior was ahead in Class A, Blue Streak in "C" and Chutzpah in "D."

The finishers, in order, were Ragtime, Windward Passage, Blackfin, Ondine, Buccaneer, New World, Robon, Warrior and Min Sette.

A's Big Crowd Fires Up Foes

OAKLAND (UPI) — There is something about a big crowd and an important game that psyche up Brooks Robinson, the old pro who still gets big hits despite an embarrassing .228 batting average.

Robinson celebrated election to his 17th All Star game Monday night with a three-run homer that lifted the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-5 victory over the Oakland A's and to within a game of the lead in the American League East.

A crowd of 43,571, largest of the year in the Oakland Coliseum, watched the slugfest between the two old rivals and when everyone had finished doing "his thing" the 36-year-old Robinson stood head and shoulders over the mob.

Al Bumbry and Rich Coggins hit solo homers for the Orioles and Gene Tenace and Sal Bando added two-run shots for the A's. In addition, Tommy Davis, Baltimore's designated hitter, rapped out four hits and Don Hood, a poised 23-year-old rookie left-hander, pitched four shutout relief innings to gain a victory in his first major league appearance.

Robinson seems somewhat embarrassed about his low batting average and the fact he was named to the A.L. All Star team ahead of such other third basemen as Bill Melton of the White Sox and Bando.

"Both of those fellows are having better years than I am," said Robinson, who had only six homers and 31 RBIs along with that .228 batting average. "But it's just as big a thrill to be named to my 17th All Star game as it was for the first.

Hood gave up only two hits in his big league debut. He took over in the sixth after the A's built a 5-4 lead on starter Jesse Jefferson.

Novato Teams Win In Babe Ruth Play

SANTA ROSA — Novato American and Novato National captured victories yesterday in opening games in the District 9 Babe Ruth Baseball 13-year-old tournament at Doyle Field.

Novato American defeated Northgate Marin, 5-3, while Novato National took advantage of 10 Redwood Empire North errors in a 21-1 romp.

San Anselmo Wins

Bad Vision No Problem For 49er Rookie Star

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Rookie linebacker Willie Harper, the San Francisco 49ers' No. 2 draft choice, has been knocking men around in practice rather handily for a fellow who says he hardly can see them.

"I'm blind without my glasses," the former Nebraska defensive end said Monday. "I didn't need them at Nebraska since I was up on the line, but here, since I'll be back, I'll have to wear contact lenses. I wish I had them now. Everything is just a blur."

"Harper has great legs, He can really move."

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Commission Allows Special Deer Hunts

The California Fish and Game Commission has approved 13 special antlerless and either-sex deer hunts with 5,375 permits for the 1973-74 hunting season.

The commission took the action in Monterey after hearing recommendations from individual commissioners who had presided at public hearings in the counties in which the hunts were proposed.

After first proposing 19 special hunts with 7,475 permits, the Department of Fish and Game withdrew proposals for archery and gun hunts in Placer County, leaving 17 hunts with 7,125 permits.

PROPOSED hunts in El Dorado County were vetoed by that county's Board of Supervisors, and hearings in Monterey and Santa Barbara Counties produced modifications.

Commissioners decided not to hold the proposed antlerless deer hunt on the San Fernando Rey property in Santa Barbara County after the owner of the ranch, R. S. Cathcart, said he felt the limited number of deer in the area would not cause him undue crop depredation this year.

Last year the Department of Fish and Game proposed 25 special hunts with 12,200 permits. The commission, after holding hearings in the counties in which the hunts were proposed, authorized 21 hunts with 9,125 permits. A total of 1,469 deer was reported taken by hunters in the special hunts.

PERMITS for the special hunts will be awarded on the basis of statewide public drawings.

Applicants must file on the application card attached to their 1973 deer tags. The applications are not transferable. For the Camp Pendleton hunt applicants must be 16 years old or older.

Each deer tag holder must file one application and may indicate his first and second choices of hunts. The application must show the names and code numbers of the hunts applied for. In multiple-period hunts assignments will be by drawing.

DRAWING for the early hunts will be held Wednesday, Aug. 8, with applications due at Fish and Game headquarters in Sacramento by 5 p.m. Aug. 7.

The drawing for the late hunts will be held Thursday, Aug. 16, with the application deadline 5 p.m. Aug. 14.

Immediately following the drawings, successful applicants will be notified by mail to send $5 for the special deer permit.

Again this year, successful applicants will be required to submit their optional deer tag to obtain their special deer hunt permit. The tag should not be submitted until the applicant has been notified he has been drawn, however.

The list of 1973-74 special deer hunts available at Licensed Agent sports shops includes the name, county, quota, code number, types of permits and dates of the hunt (early hunts are marked with an "E;" A-antlerless, ES-either sex; "M" indicates military hunt in which half the permits go to military personnel; the symbol * indicates hunt in which all the permits go to military personnel).

REGION 4 hatchery personnel proved themselves no dummies in using dummies to protect fish from fish-eating birds, especially great blue herons.

They have developed a device consisting of an electric motor with appropriate gears, pulleys, aircraft cable and timers to propel two man-like dummies over a 400-foot course parallel to the pond system. The system works all night at a speed similar to that of man walking.

In operation at the Kern River Hatchery since April 12 and the San Joaquin Hatchery since May 10, the systems have been highly effective in reducing predation of trout from fish-eating birds.

Hatchery people agree that fish loss from this source is second only to disease so they believe this approach to the problem is not only a step in the right direction but an acceptable method of harassment for these fully protected birds.

Pitching Helps Boost Dodgers

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Los Angeles Dodgers' pitching is so consistently good that even Manager Walt Alston takes it for granted.

It can lead to amusing situations like Monday night when reporters sought out Alston after Don Sutton beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0 on a six-hitter. It was the Dodgers' third shutout in their last five games. They have won nine of their last 10 games, during which Dodger pitching has allowed a total of 22 runs, and the Los Angeles staff has by far the best earned run average in the National League.

So Alston talked about Dodger hitting when asked to explain the surge which has carried them to a 7 ½-game lead in the NL Western Division.

"The club as a whole is hitting better," said Alston, "and that's why we have this streak going. For a while the club was tired after playing three doubleheaders in 10 days."

St. Louis beat San Francisco 3-2, Atlanta defeated New York 8-6, Houston shaded Montreal 6-5 in 10 innings and Cincinnati beat Philadelphia 1-0 in other NL games.

American League scores were Boston 9 Chicago 8, Kansas City 10 Detroit 2, Cleveland 9 California 8 and Baltimore 7 Oakland 5.

Nelson Briles, the Pirates' hard-luck pitcher, yielded only three hits in eight innings but one was Willie Crawford's homer and it was enough to tag him with his eighth loss against eight wins.

Dusty Baker's two-run double, following a bases-filled walk to Hank Aaron, was the big blow of a five-run seventh-inning rally which enabled the Braves to hand the Mets' Jerry Koosman his ninth setback.

Tommy Helms' sacrifice fly scored Bob Watson with the winning run for the Astros after Ken Singleton's three-run ninth-inning homer tied the score for the Expos and sent the game into extra innings.

Fred Norman pitched a six-hitter and struck out seven to win his sixth game since the Reds acquired him from San Diego on June 13. Doubles by Bill Plummer and Pete Rose in the sixth inning produced the game's only run off Ken Brett.

Reggie Smith's second homer of the game with two out in the 11th inning gave the Red Sox their victory over the White Sox and enabled Boston to pull within a half-game of the idle New York Yankees in the AL East. Baltimore is another half-game back.

Paul Schaal and Amos Otis each homered and drove in three runs, Dick Drago pitched a six-hitter, and the Royals went wild with five stolen bases before beating the Tigers.

John Lowenstein and John Ellis each hit two-run homers to lead Cleveland over the Angels, who committed five errors.

preseason camp for veteran players. They were due in by Monday night.

Meanwhile, controversial running back Duane Thomas was suspended by Coach Harland Svare after reporting 24 hours late to the San Diego Chargers training camp.

John Riggins, the New York Jets' leading rusher last season, is embroiled in a contract dispute with the club and failed to report to camp. The third-year pro from Kansas reportedly is seeking $150,000 for the coming season and has said he won't appear in camp until the matter is settled.

Running back Larry Brown, who was chosen 1972 Player of the Year, was missing when the Washington Redskins opened their training camp and said through his attorney that he was "attending to some important personal matters."

DIANE WHITNEY

From The Social Whirl To The Winner's Circle

By RON SUPINSKI

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — Among horse trainers, Diane T. Whitney is a rare breed.

She is 29, blonde, pretty and a mother of four who has forsaken the glitter of a state capital socialite to involve herself in a love affair with Appaloosa horses.

As the wife of wealthy Sacramento land developer John Whitney, a cousin of the New York Whitneys, she runs the 15-horse DJ stable which includes 13 Appaloosas and two thoroughbreds. Right now, she lives in a mobile home away from her family while training Appaloosas to run on the California summer fair circuit in nine cities.

The circuit includes the Sonoma County Fair race meeting, which opened yesterday and will run through July 28 in Santa Rosa.

Her daily schedule is far from that of a socialite.

Up at 5 a.m., she heads down to the stables in Levis, boots, and long-sleeved shirt to gallop horses, break the two-year-olds, heal the sore and sick runners and prepare for the day's third race in which Appaloosas are featured exclusively.

"John (her husband) is glad to see me work with horses. He knows it's something I enjoy."

Mrs. Whitney became a licensed thoroughbred trainer in 1970 and was California's leading Appaloosa trainer and No. 2 U.S. trainer in 1971 when her mounts won 20 of 35 starts for a fantastic 57.2 win ratio.

This summer, she saddled three winners at the Vallejo Fairgrounds and appears headed for a banner year.

"Appaloosas are a new breed and it's kind of a kick to be on the ground floor," said the former night club singer, nurse's assistant and reducing salon owner.

Then her dark brown eyes sparkle and her face melts into a smile when she mentions Washo Don, her five-year-old personal Appaloosa, or Wahtonka, another Appaloosa she trained to become a winner at 4½ furlongs after setting the world record at a shorter three-eighths of a mile.

"I have a woman's intuition about my horses and it's proven me mostly right about a good portion of them. My philosophy for my life is the same as for my horses: try everything twice because the first time I may have been wrong."

Mrs. Whitney's intuition tells her that within five years the Appaloosas will surpass quarterhorses as the fastest breeds at one-half and five-eighths of a mile.

"Once they are bred, refined and trained properly, the Appaloosas will break records every single time. Right now, you can never predict how they'll react —they'll jump the rail, crawl under the gate or come out backwards. But this will change."

As the daughter of a retired Air Force colonel, the former Diane Tellman said she began liking horses as a small child.

"Later I saw my first Appaloosa and fell in love," she said. "Those big white circles around the eyes...the hair coloring and nice lines...the striped feet and symmetrical spots on their rumps ..."

Mrs. Whitney says she doesn't miss the social whirl of Sacramento.

"I tried the Sacramento social bit for two years and found it really boring," she said. "It was fun and I was very successful at it. But I finally went to those women's meetings with my boots on and this didn't set too well with them."

Come October and the end of the fair season, she returns to her Sacramento home to resume the life of fulltime wife, mother and cook and parttime horse trainer.

"I want for nothing. I love horses and have an understanding and cooperative family. What more can I ask for?"

Mrs. Ridout Sets Five Swim Marks

LOS ALTOS — Nancy Ridout set five national age-class records over the weekend to lead the Marin Aquatic Swim Club to a fourth-place finish in the Masters Swim meet at the Fremont Hills Country Club.

Mrs. Ridout set new marks for her age (30-34 years) in the 50-meter freestyle (31.7), the 200 free (2:40.8), the 400 free (5:46.5), the 100 free (1:10.6) and the 50 butterfly (34.5). In the 400 free, she shattered the old mark by 1:10.

Former Olympian Steve Clark set a new mark for his age class (30-34) with a 26.2 performance in the 50 free. He also won the 100 free in 58.4.

Other winners for the Marin club were Jane McCollister (50-54) who took the 200 free and the 400 free, Dore Schwab (50-54) in the 50 butterfly and Bill Kuehne (50-54 years) in the 50 free.

Arson Threat Told In Jackson Case

Combined AP & UPI

GALVESTON, Tex. — The principal at Ball High School said Monday the football coach Joe Woolley told him that his home might be burned if he didn't go along with altering Kerry Jackson's transcript.

Jackson played quarterback as a freshman at Oklahoma last year and was the leading candidate for the starting job this season before he was declared ineligible because of the grade tampering.

The Sooners, ranked No. 2 at the end of last season, disclosed Jackson's transcript had been altered to make him eligible to enter Oklahoma, and forfeited eight games in which he played.

Principal Jim Watson said Woolley came to him July 6, 1972, and asked to have Jackson's class standing changed to show he was in the top 25 per cent of his class.

"I just flatly refused to do so," Watson said. He said Woolley told him they would discuss the matter again.

"The next day, Friday, July 7, Woolley came to my office with coach Bill Michael from the University of Oklahoma and again asked that Kerry's transcript be changed or a cover letter written to improve his class standings," Watson said.

"I repeated that it couldn't be done," he said. "Woolley then made a veiled threat that Kerry had a couple of friends up on Postoffice Street and if they knew there was a man keeping Kerry from playing football at Oklahoma his house would be on fire in 30 minutes."

Maccabi Games Near Conclusion

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Finals in basketball, fencing, tennis and wrestling posed the deciding tests today for Israel and the United States, locked in a close race for total medals on the last day of the Ninth Maccabiah.

The Americans maintained the lead in both first place finishes and combined medals in the 27-nation Jewish sports tournament. They held 63 first places to Israel's 57 and a total of 148 medals as compared with 135 for the host contingent.

The two powers were scheduled for a direct confrontation on the basketball court following victories in semifinal play Monday.

Steve Greenberg of Kansas City, Mo., collected 23 points to lead the U.S. to an 89-38 win over Argentina.

Because of the South Africans and two members of the Maccabi Club of Rhodesia, a five-member non-Jewish invitational squad from Kenya left for home today, citing racial bias in selection of the two contingents.

Norwegian Per Halle also pulled out of proffered invitational meets following the competitive events, after coaches of the all jewish field in the 5,000 meter event protested his presence as an unrecorded "pacesetter."

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Commission Allows Special Deer Hunts

The California Fish and Game Commission has approved 13 special antlerless and either-sex deer hunts with 5,375 permits for the 1973-74 hunting season.

The commission took the action in Monterey after hearing recommendations from individual commissioners who had presided at public hearings in the counties in which the hunts were proposed.

After first proposing 19 special hunts with 7,475 permits, the Department of Fish and Game withdrew proposals for archery and gun hunts in Placer County, leaving 17 hunts with 7,125 permits.

PROPOSED hunts in El Dorado County were vetoed by that county's Board of Supervisors, and hearings in Monterey and Santa Barbara Counties produced modifications.

Commissioners decided not to hold the proposed antlerless deer hunt on the San Fernando Rey property in Santa Barbara County after the owner of the ranch, R. S. Cathcart, said he felt the limited number of deer in the area would not cause him undue crop depredation this year.

Last year the Department of Fish and Game proposed 25 special hunts with 12,200 permits. The commission, after holding hearings in the counties in which the hunts were proposed, authorized 21 hunts with 9,125 permits. A total of 1,469 deer was reported taken by hunters in the special hunts.

PERMITS for the special hunts will be awarded on the basis of statewide public drawings.

Applicants must file on the application card attached to their 1973 deer tags. The applications are not transferable. For the Camp Pendleton hunt applicants must be 16 years old or older.

Each deer tag holder must file one application and may indicate his first and second choices of hunts. The application must show the names and code numbers of the hunts applied for. In multiple-period hunts assignments will be by drawing.

DRAWING for the early hunts will be held Wednesday, Aug. 8, with applications due at Fish and Game headquarters in Sacramento by 5 p.m. Aug. 7. The drawing for the late hunts will be held Thursday, Aug. 16, with the application deadline 5 p.m. Aug. 14.

Immediately following the drawings, successful applicants will be notified by mail to send $5 for the special deer permit.

Again this year, successful applicants will be required to submit their optional deer tag to obtain their special deer hunt permit. The tag should not be submitted until the applicant has been notified he has been drawn, however.

The list of 1973-74 special deer hunts available at Licensed Agent sports shops includes the name, county, quota, code number, types of permits and dates of the hunt (early hunts are marked with an "E;" A-antlerless, ES-either sex; "M" indicates military hunt in which half the permits go to military personnel; the symbol * indicates hunt in which all the permits go to military personnel).

REGION 4 hatchery personnel proved themselves no dummies in using dummies to protect fish from fish-eating birds, especially great blue herons.

They have developed a device consisting of an electric motor with appropriate gears, pulleys, aircraft cable and timers to propel two man-like dummies over a 400-foot course parallel to the pond system. The system works all night at a speed similar to that of man walking.

In operation at the Kern River Hatchery since April 12 and the San Joaquin Hatchery since May 10, the systems have been highly effective in reducing predation of trout from fish-eating birds.

Hatchery people agree that fish loss from this source is second only to disease so they believe this approach to the problem is not only a step in the right direction but an acceptable method of harassment for these fully protected birds.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Pitching Helps Boost Dodgers

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Los Angeles Dodgers' pitching is so consistently good that even Manager Walt Alston takes it for granted.

It can lead to amusing situations like Monday night when reporters sought out Alston after Don Sutton beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0 on a six-hitter. It was the Dodgers' third shutout in their last five games. They have won nine of their last 10 games, during which Dodger pitching has allowed a total of 22 runs, and the Los Angeles staff has by far the best earned run average in the National League.

So Alston talked about Dodger hitting when asked to explain the surge which has carried them to a 7 ½-game lead in the NL Western Division.

"The club as a whole is hitting better," said Alston, "and that's why we have this streak going. For a while the club was tired after playing three doubleheaders in 10 days."

St. Louis beat San Francisco 3-2, Atlanta defeated New York 8-6, Houston shaded Montreal 6-5 in 10 innings and Cincinnati beat Philadelphia 1-0 in other NL games.

American League scores were Boston 9 Chicago 8, Kansas City 10 Detroit 2, Cleveland 9 California 8 and Baltimore 7 Oakland 5.

Nelson Briles, the Pirates' hard-luck pitcher, yielded only three hits in eight innings but one was Willie Crawford's homer and it was enough to tag him with his eighth loss against eight wins.

Dusty Baker's two-run double, following a bases-filled walk to Hank Aaron, was the big blow of a five-run seventh-inning rally which enabled the Braves to hand the Mets' Jerry Koosman his ninth setback.

Tommy Helms' sacrifice fly scored Bob Watson with the winning run for the Astros after Ken Singleton's three-run ninth-inning homer tied the score for the Expos and sent the game into extra innings.

Fred Norman pitched a six-hitter and struck out seven to win his sixth game since the Reds acquired him from San Diego on June 13. Doubles by Bill Plummer and Pete Rose in the sixth inning produced the game's only run off Ken Brett.

Reggie Smith's second homer of the game with two out in the 11th inning gave the Red Sox their victory over the White Sox and enabled Boston to pull within a half-game of the idle New York Yankees in the AL East. Baltimore is another half-game back.

Paul Schaal and Amos Otis each homered and drove in three runs, Dick Drago pitched a six-hitter, and the Royals went wild with five stolen bases before beating the Tigers.

John Lowenstein and John Ellis each hit two-run homers to lead Cleveland over the Angels, who committed five errors.

preseason camp for veteran players. They were due in by Monday night.

Meanwhile, controversial running back Duane Thomas was suspended by Coach Harland Svare after reporting 24 hours late to the San Diego Chargers training camp.

John Riggins, the New York Jets' leading rusher last season, is embroiled in a contract dispute with the club and failed to report to camp. The third-year pro from Kansas reportedly is seeking $150,000 for the coming season and has said he won't appear in camp until the matter is settled.

Running back Larry Brown, who was chosen 1972 Player of the Year, was missing when the Washington Redskins opened their training camp and said through his attorney that he was "attending to some important personal matters."

DIANE WHITNEY

From The Social Whirl To The Winner's Circle

By RON SUPINSKI

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — Among horse trainers, Diane T. Whitney is a rare breed.

She is 29, blonde, pretty and a mother of four who has forsaken the glitter of a state capital socialite to involve herself in a love affair with Appaloosa horses.

As the wife of wealthy Sacramento land developer John Whitney, a cousin of the New York Whitneys, she runs the 15-horse DJ stable which includes 13 Appaloosas and two thoroughbreds. Right now, she lives in a mobile home away from her family while training Appaloosas to run on the California summer fair circuit in nine cities.

The circuit includes the Sonoma County Fair race meeting, which opened yesterday and will run through July 28 in Santa Rosa.

Her daily schedule is far from that of a socialite.

Up at 5 a.m., she heads down to the stables in Levis, boots, and long-sleeved shirt to gallop horses, break the two-year-olds, heal the sore and sick runners and prepare for the day's third race in which Appaloosas are featured exclusively.

"John (her husband) is glad to see me work with horses. He knows it's something I enjoy."

Mrs. Whitney became a licensed thoroughbred trainer in 1970 and was California's leading Appaloosa trainer and No. 2 U.S. trainer in 1971 when her mounts won 20 of 35 starts for a fantastic 57.2 win ratio.

This summer, she saddled three winners at the Vallejo Fairgrounds and appears headed for a banner year.

"Appaloosas are a new breed and it's kind of a kick to be on the ground floor," said the former night club singer, nurse's assistant and reducing salon owner.

Then her dark brown eyes sparkle and her face melts into a smile when she mentions Washo Don, her five-year-old personal Appaloosa, or Wahtonka, another Appaloosa she trained to become a winner at 4½ furlongs after setting the world record at a shorter three-eighths of a mile.

"I have a woman's intuition about my horses and it's proven me mostly right about a good portion of them. My philosophy for my life is the same as for my horses: try everything twice because the first time I may have been wrong."

Mrs. Whitney's intuition tells her that within five years the Appaloosas will surpass quarterhorses as the fastest breeds at one-half and five-eighths of a mile.

"Once they are bred, refined and trained properly, the Appaloosas will break records every single time. Right now, you can never predict how they'll react —they'll jump the rail, crawl under the gate or come out backwards. But this will change."

As the daughter of a retired Air Force colonel, the former Diane Tellman said she began liking horses as a small child.

"Later I saw my first Appaloosa and fell in love," she said. "Those big white circles around the eyes...the hair coloring and nice lines...the striped feet and symmetrical spots on their rumps ..."

Mrs. Whitney says she doesn't miss the social whirl of Sacramento.

"I tried the Sacramento social bit for two years and found it really boring," she said. "It was fun and I was very successful at it. But I finally went to those women's meetings with my boots on and this didn't set too well with them."

Come October and the end of the fair season, she returns to her Sacramento home to resume the life of fulltime wife, mother and cook and parttime horse trainer.

"I want for nothing. I love horses and have an understanding and cooperative family. What more can I ask for?"

Arson Threat Told In Jackson Case

Combined AP & UPI

GALVESTON, Tex. — The principal at Ball High School said Monday the football coach Joe Woolley told him that his home might be burned if he didn't go along with altering Kerry Jackson's transcript.

Jackson played quarterback as a freshman at Oklahoma last year and was the leading candidate for the starting job this season before he was declared ineligible because of the grade tampering.

The Sooners, ranked No. 2 at the end of last season, disclosed Jackson's transcript had been altered to make him eligible to enter Oklahoma, and forfeited eight games in which he played.

Principal Jim Watson said Woolley came to him July 6, 1972, and asked to have Jackson's class standing changed to show he was in the top 25 per cent of his class.

"I just flatly refused to do so," Watson said. He said Woolley told him they would discuss the matter again.

"The next day, Friday, July 7, Woolley came to my office with coach Bill Michael from the University of Oklahoma and again asked that Kerry's transcript be changed or a cover letter written to improve his class standings," Watson said.

"I repeated that it couldn't be done," he said. "Woolley then made a veiled threat that Kerry had a couple of friends up on Postoffice Street and if they knew there was a man keeping Kerry from playing football at Oklahoma his house would be on fire in 30 minutes."

Maccabiah Games Near Conclusion

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Finals in basketball, fencing, tennis and wrestling posed the deciding tests today for Israel and the United States, locked in a close race for total medals on the last day of the Ninth Maccabiah.

The Americans maintained the lead in both first place finishes and combined medals in the 27-nation Jewish sports tournament. They held 63 first places to Israel's 57 and a total of 148 medals as compared with 135 for the host contingent.

The two powers were scheduled for a direct confrontation on the basketball court following victories in semifinal play Monday.

Steve Greenberg of Kansas City, Mo., collected 23 points to lead the U.S. to an 89-38 win over Argentina.

Because of the South Africans and two members of the Maccabi Club of Rhodesia, a five-member non-Jewish invitational squad from Kenya left for home today, citing racial bias in selection of the two contingents.

Norwegian Per Halle also pulled out of proffered invitational meets following the competitive events, after coaches of the all jewish field in the 5,000 meter event protested his presence as an unrecorded "pacesetter."

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

A Student Gets Stock Information

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a high school student interested in a career in the stock market. Could you supply me with some background information on the New York Stock Exchange such as: the cost of a seat on the exchange, how many issues are listed, average daily volume, etc. — S.D.

A. I am happy to be able to supply you with some data on The Big Board. In a recent transaction a seat on this August exchange was purchased at a depressed $73,000, the lowest price in 15 years. Back in March, 1958, a seat changed "hands" at $72,000, well below the prevailing 1968-69 price of over $500,000, which approached the inflated levels existant prior to the 1939 crash. There are more than 1,500 companies which list common, preferred and warrants on the New York Stock Exchange. Ten years earlier less than 1,200 companies utilized this facility. The market value of these various issues exceeded $870 million in 1972 vs. $346 million in 1962. Thus, while there was a 25 per cent increase in the number of companies listed, the total value represented by their securities jumped more than 15 per cent.

Volume of trading on the exchange has risen goemetrically by comparison. In 1962 daiiy volume averaged about .38 million shares; in 1972 this figure had risen to 16.5 million, but has eased off to 15.5 million shares for the first half of 1973. Transactions for the year (1972) exceeded 4.1 billion shares, a 5-year increase of 6 per cent. The most far-reaching trend which has developed in recent years is the upsurge in market domination by institutional investors, which include mutual funds, insurance companies, banks, pension funds and non-profit institutions. A decade ago institutional holdings accounted for less than 20 per cent of the value of listed issues; last year this had risen to 30 per cent. Furthermore, this group of professional money managers accounted for over 60 per cent of the transactions on the exchange.

A new anti-theft device to protect vacationers from trailer thieves is now available from Universay Security Instruments Inc. Called the Camper Cop, the weatherproof intrusion alarm system can be easily installed in any type of trailer, camper, or mobil home. The device is equipped with a "panic switch" to allow the camper owner to signal an alarm from inside if he suspects intruders.

Stock Prices Up Sharply As Phase IV Is Awaited

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investors, in anticipation of a lifting of the price freeze when details of Phase IV are released Wednesday, drove prices higher today in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz said Phase IV guidelines would be revealed Wednesday. Many investors have been banking on such disclosure this week, analysts said.

Second quarter earnings reports have been good, thus encouraging some investors, analysts said. But there still is concern over inflation, they said.

Gold mining gained much of the day as gold prices abroad generally advanced. Asa Ltd., Campbell Red Lake, Dome Mines and Homestake Mining were among the winners.

Oils were generally higher after the Senate approved a bill to expand the right-of-way of the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline. Gainers included Exxon, Atlantic Richfield, Ohio Standard, Natomas, Superior Oil and Kerr-McGee.

Martin-Marietta was one of the most active stocks, primarily because of a block of 300,000 shares at 16 ½, up ¼. Texas Utilities had a block of 155,200 shares at 30 ¾, off ¼. Signal Cos. also made the active list with a block of 95,000 shares at 19, up ¼.

Electronics, computers and glamors were mixed. Westinghouse gained 1. IBM lost 2 ¾, Honeywell 1 ⅜ and Texas Instruments 1. Polaroid, which reported slightly higher second quarter earnings.

Foreigners Urged To Buy U.S. Shares

NEW YORK (UPI) — One short-range solution to the currency crisis would be for foreign nations to spend some of the excess dollars they accumulate to buy common stocks of big U.S. companies, according to Carl A. Gerstacker, chairman of the President's National Export Expansion Council, and board chairman of the Dow Chemical Co.

"The U.S. trade deficit amounted to almost $7 billion last year," Gerstacker said in a speech at Notre Dame University. "If foreigners purchased $7 billion worth of stock annually it would give us time to solve our basic, long-range trade problem."

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By WAT TAKESHITA

Groundbreaking Tomorrow For New Site Of Bank Of America

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the relocation of the Tiburon Bank of America will be held at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow, Manager Virginia Hoffman announced today.

The new office will be located on the northeast corner of Tiburon Boulevard and Beach Road.

The building will contain more than 4,800 square feet of floor space including the main floor and a mezzanine, making it nearly three times larger than the present office at 10 Main Street.

Serving customers will be a streamlined teller counter with six stations, a carpeted officers' area with room for six desks. Also included will be coupon booths, a conference room and a night depository facility.

There will also be a parking lot with spaces for 26 cars.

Mrs. Hoffman said the project should take about six months to complete, so that the bank should be able to open for business in its new home in time for the Christmas holiday season.

SCOTT PHILLIPS of Novato has been named manager of forward planning in Northern California by Kaufman & Broad, nationwide housing producer which is building the 230-home Del Monte Highlands in Novato. His work will be in land acquisition primarily, and dealing with various local public bodies in readying new housing developments for market.

A graduate of the University of California in Berkeley, Phillips was formerly with the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency. He is past president of the Northern California Land Executives Association.

Phillips — Hayden

RICHARD HAYDEN of Kentfield, present manager-at-large of the Bourbon Shops of Marin, has been promoted and will manage the new Bourbon Shop now under construction at the corner of Greenfield Avenue and the Miracle Mile in San Anselmo.

John W. Gay, general manager and executive vice president of the Bourbon Shop chain, announced the appointment. The San Anselmo store, the seventh Bourbon Shop in Marin, is scheduled to open about Oct. 15.

RAYDINE ICE SKATING rink at 10 Fifer Avenue in Corte Madera plans to expand its facilities sometime this year to bring the rink to the full Olympic size, 180 feet long.

Ray H. and Nadine H. Schramm of Greenbrae, owners of Raydine, said their tentative plans are to either expand the present building by 50 feet or build a new structure. The present rink is 140 by 70 feet.

Raydine Ice Skating opened in 1954 in Mill Valley, operated there for 18 months before moving to San Anselmo, and then to the present location in Corte Madera in 1967.

G. E. BART of San Rafael has been appointed president of Matson Agencies Inc., newly-established subsidiary of Matson Navigation Company.

R. J. Pfeiffer is chairman of the board of the new firm, which has started operations as general agents for NYK Line in the western United States including Hawaii and Alaska.

Pfeiffer, president of Matson Navigation, said the new company is part of an expansion program by Matson, which will introduce "roll-on, roll off" trailership service to the Hawaii trade next month.

TAX-FREE BONDS will be discussed Thursday night from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Mill Valley Public Library by Peter H. Empey of Mill Valley, vice president of Davis, Skaggs & Co. Inc., San Francisco.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

A Student Gets Stock Information

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a high school student interested in a career in the stock market. Could you supply me with some background information on the New York Stock Exchange such as: the cost of a seat on the exchange, how many issues are listed, average daily volume, etc. — S.D.

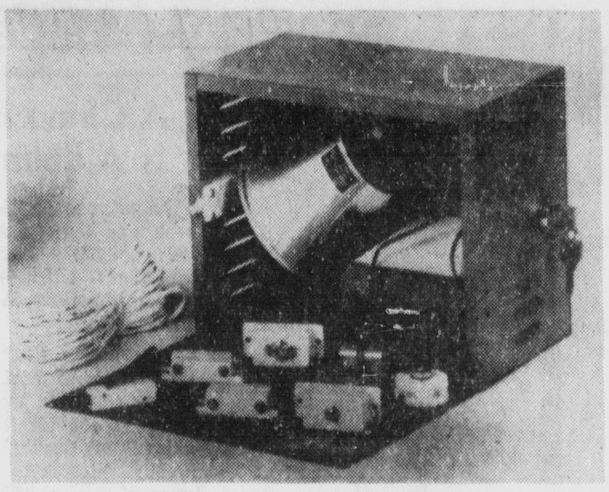
A. I am happy to be able to supply you with some data on The Big Board. In a recent transaction a seat on this August exchange was purchased at a depressed $73,000, the lowest price in 15 years. Back in March, 1958, a seat changed "hands" at $72,000, well below the prevailing 1968-69 price of over $500,000, which approached the inflated levels existant prior to the 1939 crash. There are more than 1,500 companies which list common, preferred and warrants on the New York Stock Exchange. Ten years earlier less than 1,200 companies utilized this facility. The market value of these various issues exceeded $870 million in 1972 vs. $346 million in 1962. Thus, while there was a 25 per cent increase in the number of companies listed, the total value represented by their securities jumped more than 15 per cent.

Volume of trading on the exchange has risen goemetrically by comparison. In 1962 daiiy volume averaged about .38 million shares; in 1972 this figure had risen to 16.5 million, but has eased off to 15.5 million shares for the first half of 1973. Transactions for the year (1972) exceeded 4.1 billion shares, a 5-year increase of 6 per cent. The most far-reaching trend which has developed in recent years is the upsurge in market domination by institutional investors, which include mutual funds, insurance companies, banks, pension funds and non-profit institutions. A decade ago institutional holdings accounted for less than 20 per cent of the value of listed issues; last year this had risen to 30 per cent. Furthermore, this group of professional money managers accounted for over 60 per cent of the transactions on the exchange.

Many Jobs Lost In Bomb Test Cutback

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Money cuts in the United States nuclear weapons testing program resulted yesterday in the layoff of 500 workers at the sprawling Nevada Test Site.

The number of job cuts could climb to 1,000, sources said.



TO FOIL TRAILER THIEVES

A new anti-theft device to protect vacationers from trailer thieves is now available from Universay Security Instruments Inc. Called the Camper Cop, the weatherproof intrusion alarm system can be easily installed in any type of trailer, camper, or mobil home. The device is equipped with a "panic switch" to allow the camper owner to signal an alarm from inside if he suspects intruders.

Stock Prices Up Sharply As Phase IV Is Awaited

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investors, in anticipation of a lifting of the price freeze when details of Phase IV are released Wednesday, drove prices higher today in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz said Phase IV guidelines would be revealed Wednesday. Many investors have been banking on such disclosure this week, analysts said.

Second quarter earnings reports have been good, thus encouraging some investors, analysts said. But there still is concern over inflation, they said.

Gold mining gained much of the day as gold prices abroad generally advanced. Asa Ltd., Campbell Red Lake, Dome Mines and Homestake Mining were among the winners.

Oils were generally higher after the Senate approved a bill to expand the right-of-way of the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline. Gainers included Exxon, Atlantic Richfield, Ohio Standard, Natomas, Superior Oil and Kerr-McGee.

Martin-Marietta was one of the most active stocks, primarily because of a block of 300,000 shares at 16 ½, up ¼. Texas Utilities had a block of 155,200 shares at 30 ¾, off ¼. Signal Cos. also made the active list with a block of 95,000 shares at 19, up ¼.

Electronics, computers and glamors were mixed. Westinghouse gained 1. IBM lost 2 ¾, Honeywell 1 ⅜ and Texas Instruments 1. Polaroid, which reported slightly higher second quarter earnings.

Foreigners Urged To Buy U.S. Shares

NEW YORK (UPI) — One short-range solution to the currency crisis would be for foreign nations to spend some of the excess dollars they accumulate to buy common stocks of big U.S. companies, according to Carl A. Gerstacker, chairman of the President's National Export Expansion Council, and board chairman of the Dow Chemical Co.

"The U.S. trade deficit amounted to almost $7 billion last year," Gerstacker said in a speech at Notre Dame University. "If foreigners purchased $7 billion worth of stock annually it would give us time to solve our basic, long-range trade problem."

Groundbreaking Tomorrow For New Site Of Bank Of America

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the relocation of the Tiburon Bank of America will be held at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow, Manager Virginia Hoffman announced today.

The new office will be located on the northeast corner of Tiburon Boulevard and Beach Road.

The building will contain more than 4,800 square feet of floor space including the main floor and a mezzanine, making it nearly three times larger than the present office at 10 Main Street.

Serving customers will be a streamlined teller counter with six stations, a carpeted officers' area with room for six desks. Also included will be coupon booths, a conference room and a night depository facility.

There will also be a parking lot with spaces for 26 cars.

Mrs. Hoffman said the project should take about six months to complete, so that the bank should be able to open for business in its new home in time for the Christmas holiday season.

SCOTT PHILLIPS of Novato has been named manager of forward planning in Northern California by Kaufman & Broad, nationwide housing producer which is building the 230-home Del Monte Highlands in Novato. His work will be in land acquisition primarily, and dealing with various local public bodies in readying new housing developments for market.

A graduate of the University of California in Berkeley, Phillips was formerly with the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency. He is past president of the Northern California Land Executives Association.

Phillips — Hayden

RICHARD HAYDEN of Kentfield, present manager-at-large of the Bourbon Shops of Marin, has been promoted and will manage the new Bourbon Shop now under construction at the corner of Greenfield Avenue and the Miracle Mile in San Anselmo.

John W. Gay, general manager and executive vice president of the Bourbon Shop chain, announced the appointment. The San Anselmo store, the seventh Bourbon Shop in Marin, is scheduled to open about Oct. 15.

RAYDINE ICE SKATING rink at 10 Fifer Avenue in Corte Madera plans to expand its facilities sometime this year to bring the rink to the full Olympic size, 180 feet long.

Ray H. and Nadine H. Schramm of Greenbrae, owners of Raydine, said their tentative plans are to either expand the present building by 50 feet or build a new structure. The present rink is 140 by 70 feet.

Raydine Ice Skating opened in 1954 in Mill Valley, operated there for 18 months before moving to San Anselmo, and then to the present location in Corte Madera in 1967.

G. E. BART of San Rafael has been appointed president of Matson Agencies Inc., newly-established subsidiary of Matson Navigation Company.

R. J. Pfeiffer is chairman of the board of the new firm, which has started operations as general agents for NYK Line in the western United States including Hawaii and Alaska.

Pfeiffer, president of Matson Navigation, said the new company is part of an expansion program by Matson, which will introduce "roll-on, roll off" trailership service to the Hawaii trade next month.

TAX-FREE BONDS will be discussed Thursday night from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Mill Valley Public Library by Peter H. Empey of Mill Valley, vice president of Davis, Skaggs & Co. Inc., San Francisco.

Small Claims Court Keeps Costs Down

Many damage cases where the aggrieved party feels he has a small amount ($500 or less) coming to him are ultimately written off as a lost cause because the cost of hiring a lawyer would be more expensive than the amount of recovery expected.

Such aggrieved parties, however, have another recourse where they can seek redress without incurring the cost of legal counsel. It is known as Small Claims Court and is located in the Marin County Hall of Justice, in San Rafael.

THE BIG DISTINCTION in a Small Claims Court is that the judge hears and decides each case (no jury permitted), and neither side may hire a lawyer. The purpose of these rules is to keep costs low and to save time in thousands of cases involving small sums of money.

The one basic kind of case that the Small Claims Court handles is a suit for recovery of money not exceeding $500. You may sue to get money from someone who owes you for personal injury, property damage, labor, goods sold, money loaned, a bad check, a dented fender and the like. But you may not sue for the return of specific property or the performance of services.

You can start action in Small Claims Court by filling out a form provided by the court.

Give the full name and address of each defendant you are suing. If a claim arises out of a car accident, name the driver of the other car as well as its registered owner and their addresses.

A copy of the form must be served on the defendant or defendants by a process server or any person not a party to the action. The plaintiff cannot personally serve the defendants.

AT THE TRIAL, be prepared to back up all allegations with witnesses and documents to substantiate the claims. More detailed information will be provided by the clerks of the court.

Many of these small claim cases involve considerable time and effort on the part of the person seeking redress. But if he is in the right, his persistence usually pays off.

Very few areas remain, particularly in the legal field, where the individual layman can operate without the aid of expensive specialists. Small Claims Court is one such area; it should be utilized to the fullest by individuals with legitimate grievances for money recovery.

Canine Earthquake Monitors

It is a part of the world's folklore that domestic animals are more tuned in on natural phenomena than over-civilized man. They are believed to be endowed with the ability to foretell changes in the weather and earthquakes. In China, scientists are actually studying the behavior of dogs prior to earthquakes.

Perhaps we in Marin should make our contribution by placing loud-voiced hounds along the San Andreas Fault, as an early warning system. Probably the idea is a bit fanciful. But the concept of investigating the alleged ability of animals to predict earthquakes deserves nothing but applause. With their different senses, it is entirely possible that they can detect earth stresses and slippages before man.

Sen. Sam Ervin Is Key To Press Protection Bill

By EARL G. WATERS

United States Senator Alan Cranston, a former newsman, has been in the forefront in the battle to preserve a reporter's right to maintain the confidentiality of his sources.

He has proposed a federal law to preserve this right and prohibit the jailing of a newsman for refusing to disclose his sources.

His efforts have been spurred by a rash of jailings by the courts of reporters who have refused to divulge source information to the police, grand juries and the courts.

ALTHOUGH NUMEROUS states have enacted laws extending immunity from contempt proceedings in such cases, there has never been a federal law dealing with the subject.

But even in states with the protective laws the present statutes have been thrown into a gray area by court decisions. And, in the absence of a specific federal law, the U.S. Supreme Court has held the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press does not extend to reporter privilege.

CRANSTON INITIALLY proposed a single sentence bill designed to afford reporter protection. It was limited to the federal level. But at the request of the American Newspaper Association he has sponsored a broader measure which blankets state and local governments.

Joining with Cranston in sponsoring the bill is Senator Edward Kennedy who serves on the Judiciary Committee which must pass on the bill.

The protection would apply to both civil and criminal proceedings. It establishes procedures which would enable a reporter to block subpoenas and prohibits compulsory testimony or production of notes.

"FINALLY," SAID Cranston, "it includes definitions of 'newsman' and 'news media' to prevent the courts from coming up with their own definitions and applying the protection too narrowly."

Consideration of the Cranston bill however has been deferred by committee chairman Senator Sam Ervin due to his preoccupation with the Watergate hearings.

Cranston is hopeful that Ervin will incorporate the essentials of the bill into his own committee bill.

HE SAID ERVIN agrees with many of the concepts of the bill but a crucial unresolved matter is his "belief that the protection should be withheld in any case in which a reporter has allegedly witnessed a crime."

"As chairman of the committee," Cranston explained, "and as one of the great Constitutional scholars and statesmen of the Senate, Sam Ervin is the key to passage of any legislation affecting the First Amendment rights."

IT WOULD SEEM the wise course for Senator Cranston would be to defer to Senator Ervin on the eyewitness issue. This does not seem to the point of the confidential source issue. If a reporter does see a crime committed, it would seem he has a duty to report it and be available as a witness. It is difficult to see where this involves a violation of a confidential source.

And protection of such sources by the reporter is vital to his job. As Cranston points out, "Watergate has demonstrated to even our critics, that a press that is truly free, free to gather news as well as print it, is an indispensable watchdog against corruption and abuse of power in government."

"And," he adds, "time is on our side. We are gaining support."

Dog Training Club Also AKC Affiliate

I thoroughly enjoyed your Marin Lving section of July 14, featuring the Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club. I would like to point out one error when you mentioned "there was a time in the late 1950s when Marin was without an American Kennel Club affiliate."

The Marin County Dog Training Club has been an American Kennel Club licensed dog training and obedience trial giving Club continuously since 1949. We conduct dog obedience and conformation classes in Marin County, we give annual obedience trials and matches, and we also donate our proceeds to the Guide Dogs for the Blind, the Marin County Humane Society, and other animal welfare groups. Many of our members are also members of the Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club and the Blue Ribbon Dog Breeders Association as mentioned in your feature.

We are equally proud of all the animal interest and welfare groups in Marin. Thank you for acknowledging the 24-year affiliation of the Marin County Dog Training Club with the American Kennel Club.

Outraged At Proposal To Exterminate Dogs

It is with utter amazement and complete incredulity that I have read and re-read and re-read a querulous denunciatory, to coin a term, that monopolized tonight's letters column and which in effect appears to advocate the extermination of "man's best friend." Is the writer quoted correctly? . . .

Its writer proposes an open season on dogs in place of the "present practice of using poison baits to control them." Now just what or whose "present practice" is that? The only one I have heard of revolves around the activities of an unspeakable demon on the loose in Mill Valley, one, I am sure, who would subscribe wholeheartedly to the sentiments voiced . . .

I cannot but help thinking her quotation comparing the dog with the louse and the rat might be better applied elsewhere.

Why No Pay Increase For Sheriff's Officers?

This afternoon I had occasion to visit the sheriff's office at the Civic Center to be fingerprinted for taking the bar examination. I had a very pleasant experience, except for one thing: the man who fingerprinted me told me about the failure of the supervisors to grant any pay increase to sheriff's department employees, while other county employees have been given increases of up to 22 per cent. Not disputing the validity of raises given to other employees, it strikes me as highly unfair that these people at the sheriff's department should be given no raise at all. Don't they have to live with the same disastrous economy as the rest of us? Don't they pay more for hamburger, building materials, gasoline, and everything else?

The man I spoke with is a taxpayer; he has two children in college whose expenses must be defrayed. Why is there no relief for him? I urgently request your newspaper to take a stand on this issue, and I hope readers will write in protest to the Supervisors. Surely this is an injustice which can be corrected.

Paradise Drive Not Safe Bike Route

First, I want you to know that I heartily favor the use of bicycles on bicycle paths. I must voice exceptions, however, to your editorial of July 12 in which you list Paradise Drive as one of "the bike paths that have proved comparatively safe —". Nothing could be further from the fact.

Recommendation of its use as a bike path is an open invitation to serious accidents. Paradise Drive is a narrow, two-lane winding road, with no paved shoulder or provision for a bike path. It is virtually impossible for a cyclist to "watch out for his own safety." He must travel the automobile roadway, and in doing so places himself at the mercy of the cars. Curves are so frequent a driver or cyclist at no point has a clear view of oncoming traffic. Vehicles must stay behind the cyclists or take a chance of endangering the cyclists, oncoming motorists and himself, should he try to pass (which they do).

Compounding the problem, Paradise Drive is heavily traveled on weekends by sightseeing tourists and motorists visiting Paradise Park, many of whom are not familiar with the hazardous road or that it has become a popular route for cyclists. . .

A China Hostile To Russia Is A Boon For Western Europe

The gathering in Helsinki over this last week was novel, interesting and might even be the beginning of something important — although not because of the wordy and pious speeches of the opening sessions.

It is novel in that it brought together diplomats from most of the countries of Europe and from the three neighboring countries (Soviet Russia, the United States and Canada) which are most directly interested in the shape and future of Europe. This was not "summitry" as made familiar over the last two decades. Summitry began as a matter of the "Big Four" — U.S., Britain, France, Russia. It ended in the recent big two of the Nixon-Brezhnev summit. Helsinki brought together almost everyone directly involved in Europe. In this sense it is a first.

IT IS INTERESTING because the countries involved in Europe have gathered together to see whether they might discover some new formula or some modifications of old formulas which would make possible easy relations among all the countries involved. In simplest terms its true purpose is to take down the iron curtain and allow Europe as it was known two centuries ago to emerge again.

Europe once meant everything from the English Channel to the Ural Mountains. Some definitions included the British Isles —although the British usually dissented. Charles de Gaulle clung to those earlier definitions when he insisted on speaking of "Russia at the Urals" as being European. But to most West Europeans of recent times Europe ended at the iron curtain.

THE HELSINKI Conference breaks with the iron curtain definition in that it is a conference about Europe and it includes the eastern tier of Communist states — Poland, Czechoslovakia etc. — as well as the Soviet Union itself. The United States is present as the principal friend and ally of the West European countries and as being European itself in the sense of being a vast melting of all the indigenous European peoples.

This in-gather of the European clans could be the beginning of something important because it just might (certainly not tomorrow, but perhaps a few years from now) lead to a revived sense of Europe being a single community instead of being two hostile communities.

FOR NEARLY TWENTY years the prime hostility in the world which shaped the relations of all nations towards each other was the division of Europe at the iron curtain. On both sides policies were dominated by the doctrine of "whoever isn't with me is against me."

The opening Russian speech at Helsinki admitted no deviation from the Brezhnev doctrine of Moscow's right to control politics and policies in the neighboring "Socialist" states of Eastern Europe. And the West Europeans were willing to go to Helsinki and meet with the Russians only in the presence of their American allies. They understand well enough that as yet Western Europe is neither sufficiently united nor sufficiently armed to be left safely alone with the mighty Soviets.

THAT ANYTHING substantial will emerge this year from Helsinki and its aftermath is unlikely. To the Russians, Helsinki seems to be an opportunity primarily for legitimization of its imperial control over the states overrun by Stalin's armies at the end of World War II.

Acceptance by the West Europeans means freedom for Moscow to turn her attention eastward and be freer than before to deal with the Chinese.

BUT TO THE EUROPEANS, China has been the benefactor. Russian pressure on West Europe has declined proportionately as Peking has gained independence from Moscow. It now behooves the Europeans to beware of doing anything which would encourage Russia to attack China. What has Moscow to offer the West Europeans at Helsinki which could possibly equal the benefit Europe has already obtained from the break between China and Russia?

There is every reason for the West Europeans to proceed cautiously and slowly down the Helsinki road. They seem to understand this. There is no stampede.

Will Nixon Give Curtain Line In The Watergate Spectacular?

WASHINGTON — The still photographers are crouched just in front of the witness, a large pack ready to spring. And when John Mitchell breaks momentarily the impassive, stolid countenance he presents to the committee and puts his hand to forehead they jump with a click of shutters.

Strung on a cable high above are a series of color-tran lights blazing down on the scene for the benefit of the television cameras, the red eyes basilisklike on the left. This is a show, a spectacle, a performance put on as though with professional actors and professional direction. Committee Chairman Sam Ervin squiggles his black eyebrows up and down, and how many million viewers see this unconscious (or conscious) bit of character acting the agencies that check these matters will determine.

WE HAVE HAD these shows before — once or twice even more sensational than this Watergate spectacle. In 1933 when a Senate committee was investigating the rigging of the stock market, J. P. Morgan, the banking tycoon of the century, was the witness. A shrewd public relations man suddenly put a female midget on his lap. It broke up the hearing.

No television in that primitive time, but Morgan and the midget provided a field day for the stills. So far as what the public got out of the searching investigation, directed by Ferdinand Pecora, one of the ablest interrogators ever to function here, the midget was the principal memory.

IN MY OWN recollection was the spectacle in 1941 when Wendell Willkie was to be fed to the lions, the lions in this instance being isolationist senators wreaking vengeance on him for supporting Franklin Roosevelt's policy of aiding the beleaguered Allies. The Senate Caucus Room then, as today, was packed to the rafters. Willkie made the headlines by dismissing as "campaign oratory" what he had said in the 1940 campaign about staying out of foreign wars.

The greatest spectacle in recent times was the Army-McCarthy set-to. That was followed on television with the same fascination as Watergate. Joe McCarthy, the brash street fighter from Wisconsin, was out to get the top-brass civilian and military. CBS is shrewdly doing a replay of that big show.

AT THIS STAGE the fascination with Watergate seems a national obsession. On the first floor of the Senate Office Building long lines wait for admission to the Caucus Room. Under the careful scrutiny of guards who have searched purses and brief cases for concealed weapons the lines snake up the marble staircase. It will be a long wait, since once inside the lucky few stay put.

Outside in Washington's steamy heat the taxi driver has his car radio tuned to the hearing. "I listen to every minute of it," he says. "I guess that fellow Mitchell's going to be on all week and when he's finished we won't know any more than when he started."

WHAT IS SURPRISING about the obsession is that most of the performers are so predictable. One could be sure, as Stewart Alsop put it in a cogent column, that John W. Dean 3d would weave his sticky spider's web around the President. Mitchell was predictable as a calculating, highly successful lawyer with a faltering memory. That was just how he appeared, his rotund monotone putting a damper of dullness on his testimony.

Passing the rear of the White House there is a long line of vacationers dressed in abbreviated summer costumes waiting to get in for a glimpse of the public rooms. The line reaches back around the Executive Office Building. These patient families, many of them with small children, want to see the President's house — they want to see where their President lives.

WE WILL SURVIVE this latest scandal presented as a spectacle, the optimists believe, as we survived those other spectacles. After all, out of the Pecora investigation into the banking and stock scandals of the booming '20s came the laws governing security transactions and the Securities and Exchange Commission. The televised hearings helped to end McCarthy and McCarthyism.

At the present stage it is difficult, if not impossible, to see how Watergate will end. The pervasive feeling in this capital is one of drift and uncertainty.

Small Claims Court Keeps Costs Down

Many damage cases where the aggrieved party feels he has a small amount ($500 or less) coming to him are ultimately written off as a lost cause because the cost of hiring a lawyer would be more expensive than the amount of recovery expected.

Such aggrieved parties, however, have another recourse where they can seek redress without incurring the cost of legal counsel. It is known as Small Claims Court and is located in the Marin County Hall of Justice, in San Rafael.

THE BIG DISTINCTION in a Small Claims Court is that the judge hears and decides each case (no jury permitted), and neither side may hire a lawyer. The purpose of these rules is to keep costs low and to save time in thousands of cases involving small sums of money.

The one basic kind of case that the Small Claims Court handles is a suit for recovery of money not exceeding $500. You may sue to get money from someone who owes you for personal injury, property damage, labor, goods sold, money loaned, a bad check, a dented fender and the like. But you may not sue for the return of specific property or the performance of services.

You can start action in Small Claims Court by filling out a form provided by the court.

Give the full name and address of each defendant you are suing. If a claim arises out of a car accident, name the driver of the other car as well as its registered owner and their addresses.

A copy of the form must be served on the defendant or defendants by a process server or any person not a party to the action. The plaintiff cannot personally serve the defendants.

AT THE TRIAL, be prepared to back up all allegations with witnesses and documents to substantiate the claims. More detailed information will be provided by the clerks of the court.

Many of these small claim cases involve considerable time and effort on the part of the person seeking redress. But if he is in the right, his persistence usually pays off.

Very few areas remain, particularly in the legal field, where the individual layman can operate without the aid of expensive specialists. Small Claims Court is one such area; it should be utilized to the fullest by individuals with legitimate grievances for money recovery.

Canine Earthquake Monitors

It is a part of the world's folklore that domestic animals are more tuned in on natural phenomena than over-civilized man. They are believed to be endowed with the ability to foretell changes in the weather and earthquakes. In China, scientists are actually studying the behavior of dogs prior to earthquakes.

Perhaps we in Marin should make our contribution by placing loud-voiced hounds along the San Andreas Fault, as an early warning system. Probably the idea is a bit fanciful. But the concept of investigating the alleged ability of animals to predict earthquakes deserves nothing but applause. With their different senses, it is entirely possible that they can detect earth stresses and slippages before man.

Sen. Sam Ervin Is Key To Press Protection Bill

By EARL G. WATERS

United States Senator Alan Cranston, a former newsman, has been in the forefront in the battle to preserve a reporter's right to maintain the confidentiality of his sources.

He has proposed a federal law to preserve this right and prohibit the jailing of a newsman for refusing to disclose his sources.

His efforts have been spurred by a rash of jailings by the courts of reporters who have refused to divulge source information to the police, grand juries and the courts.

ALTHOUGH NUMEROUS states have enacted laws extending immunity from contempt proceedings in such cases, there has never been a federal law dealing with the subject.

But even in states with the protective laws the present statutes have been thrown into a gray area by court decisions. And, in the absence of a specific federal law, the U.S. Supreme Court has held the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press does not extend to reporter privilege.

CRANSTON INITIALLY proposed a single sentence bill designed to afford reporter protection. It was limited to the federal level. But at the request of the American Newspaper Association he has sponsored a broader measure which blankets state and local governments.

Joining with Cranston in sponsoring the bill is Senator Edward Kennedy who serves on the Judiciary Committee which must pass on the bill.

The protection would apply to both civil and criminal proceedings. It establishes procedures which would enable a reporter to block subpoenas and prohibits compulsory testimony or production of notes.

"FINALLY," SAID Cranston, "it includes definitions of 'newsman' and 'news media' to prevent the courts from coming up with their own definitions and applying the protection too narrowly."

Consideration of the Cranston bill however has been deferred by committee chairman Senator Sam Ervin due to his preoccupation with the Watergate hearings.

Cranston is hopeful that Ervin will incorporate the essentials of the bill into his own committee bill.

HE SAID ERVIN agrees with many of the concepts of the bill but a crucial unresolved matter is his "belief that the protection should be withheld in any case in which a reporter has allegedly witnessed a crime."

"As chairman of the committee," Cranston explained, "and as one of the great Constitutional scholars and statesmen of the Senate, Sam Ervin is the key to passage of any legislation affecting the First Amendment rights."

IT WOULD SEEM the wise course for Senator Cranston would be to defer to Senator Ervin on the eyewitness issue. This does not seem to the point of the confidential source issue. If a reporter does see a crime committed, it would seem he has a duty to report it and be available as a witness. It is difficult to see where this involves a violation of a confidential source.

And protection of such sources by the reporter is vital to his job. As Cranston points out, "Watergate has demonstrated to even our critics, that a press that is truly free, free to gather news as well as print it, is an indispensable watchdog against corruption and abuse of power in government."

"And," he adds, "time is on our side. We are gaining support."

Outraged At Proposal To Exterminate Dogs

It is with utter amazement and complete incredulity that I have read and re-read and re-read a querulous denunciatory, to coin a term, that monopolized tonight's letters column and which in effect appears to advocate the extermination of "man's best friend." Is the writer quoted correctly? . . .

Its writer proposes an open season on dogs in place of the "present practice of using poison baits to control them." Now just what or whose "present practice" is that? The only one I have heard of revolves around the activities of an unspeakable demon on the loose in Mill Valley, one, I am sure, who would subscribe wholeheartedly to the sentiments voiced . . .

I cannot but help thinking her quotation comparing the dog with the louse and the rat might be better applied elsewhere.

Why No Pay Increase For Sheriff's Officers?

This afternoon I had occasion to visit the sheriff's office at the Civic Center to be fingerprinted for taking the bar examination. I had a very pleasant experience, except for one thing: the man who fingerprinted me told me about the failure of the supervisors to grant any pay increase to sheriff's department employees, while other county employees have been given increases of up to 22 per cent. Not disputing the validity of raises given to other employees, it strikes me as highly unfair that these people at the sheriff's department should be given no raise at all. Don't they have to live with the same disastrous economy as the rest of us? Don't they pay more for hamburger, building materials, gasoline, and everything else?

The man I spoke with is a taxpayer; he has two children in college whose expenses must be defrayed. Why is there no relief for him? I urgently request your newspaper to take a stand on this issue, and I hope readers will write in protest to the Supervisors. Surely this is an injustice which can be corrected.

Paradise Drive Not Safe Bike Route

First, I want you to know that I heartily favor the use of bicycles on bicycle paths. I must voice exceptions, however, to your editorial of July 12 in which you list Paradise Drive as one of "the bike paths that have proved comparatively safe —". Nothing could be further from the fact.

Recommendation of its use as a bike path is an open invitation to serious accidents. Paradise Drive is a narrow, two-lane winding road, with no paved shoulder or provision for a bike path. It is virtually impossible for a cyclist to "watch out for his own safety." He must travel the automobile roadway, and in doing so places himself at the mercy of the cars. Curves are so frequent a driver or cyclist at no point has a clear view of oncoming traffic. Vehicles must stay behind the cyclists or take a chance of endangering the cyclists, oncoming motorists and himself, should he try to pass (which they do).

Compounding the problem, Paradise Drive is heavily traveled on weekends by sightseeing tourists and motorists visiting Paradise Park, many of whom are not familiar with the hazardous road or that it has become a popular route for cyclists. . .

The gathering in Helsinki over this last week was novel, interesting and might even be the beginning of something important — although not because of the wordy and pious speeches of the opening sessions.

It is novel in that it brought together diplomats from most of the countries of Europe and from the three neighboring countries (Soviet Russia, the United States and Canada) which are most directly interested in the shape and future of Europe. This was not "summitry" as made familiar over the last two decades. Summitry began as a matter of the "Big Four" — U.S., Britain, France, Russia. It ended in the recent big two of the Nixon-Brezhnev summit. Helsinki brought together almost everyone directly involved in Europe. In this sense it is a first.

IT IS INTERESTING because the countries involved in Europe have gathered together to see whether they might discover some new formula or some modifications of old formulas which would make possible easy relations among all the countries involved. In simplest terms its true purpose is to take down the iron curtain and allow Europe as it was known two centuries ago to emerge again.

Europe once meant everything from the English Channel to the Ural Mountains. Some definitions included the British Isles —although the British usually dissented. Charles de Gaulle clung to those earlier definitions when he insisted on speaking of "Russia at the Urals" as being European. But to most West Europeans of recent times Europe ended at the iron curtain.

THE HELSINKI Conference breaks with the iron curtain definition in that it is a conference about Europe and it includes the eastern tier of Communist states — Poland, Czechoslovakia etc. — as well as the Soviet Union itself. The United States is present as the principal friend and ally of the West European countries and as being European itself in the sense of being a vast melting of all the indigenous European peoples.

This in-gather of the European clans could be the beginning of something important because it just might (certainly not tomorrow, but perhaps a few years from now) lead to a revived sense of Europe being a single community instead of being two hostile communities.

FOR NEARLY TWENTY years the prime hostility in the world which shaped the relations of all nations towards each other was the division of Europe at the iron curtain. On both sides policies were dominated by the doctrine of "whoever isn't with me is against me."

The opening Russian speech at Helsinki admitted no deviation from the Brezhnev doctrine of Moscow's right to control politics and policies in the neighboring "Socialist" states of Eastern Europe. And the West Europeans were willing to go to Helsinki and meet with the Russians only in the presence of their American allies. They understand well enough that as yet Western Europe is neither sufficiently united nor sufficiently armed to be left safely alone with the mighty Soviets.

THAT ANYTHING substantial will emerge this year from Helsinki and its aftermath is unlikely. To the Russians, Helsinki seems to be an opportunity primarily for legitimization of its imperial control over the states overrun by Stalin's armies at the end of World War II.

Acceptance by the West Europeans means freedom for Moscow to turn her attention eastward and be freer than before to deal with the Chinese.

BUT TO THE EUROPEANS, China has been the benefactor. Russian pressure on West Europe has declined proportionately as Peking has gained independence from Moscow. It now behooves the Europeans to beware of doing anything which would encourage Russia to attack China. What has Moscow to offer the West Europeans at Helsinki which could possibly equal the benefit Europe has already obtained from the break between China and Russia?

There is every reason for the West Europeans to proceed cautiously and slowly down the Helsinki road. They seem to understand this. There is no stampede.

Will Nixon Give Curtain Line In The Watergate Spectacular?

WASHINGTON — The still photographers are crouched just in front of the witness, a large pack ready to spring. And when John Mitchell breaks momentarily the impassive, stolid countenance he presents to the committee and puts his hand to forehead they jump with a click of shutters.

Strung on a cable high above are a series of color-tran lights blazing down on the scene for the benefit of the television cameras, the red eyes basilisklike on the left. This is a show, a spectacle, a performance put on as though with professional actors and professional direction. Committee Chairman Sam Ervin squiggles his black eyebrows up and down, and how many million viewers see this unconscious (or conscious) bit of character acting the agencies that check these matters will determine.

WE HAVE HAD these shows before — once or twice even more sensational than this Watergate spectacle. In 1933 when a Senate committee was investigating the rigging of the stock market, J. P. Morgan, the banking tycoon of the century, was the witness. A shrewd public relations man suddenly put a female midget on his lap. It broke up the hearing.

No television in that primitive time, but Morgan and the midget provided a field day for the stills. So far as what the public got out of the searching investigation, directed by Ferdinand Pecora, one of the ablest interrogators ever to function here, the midget was the principal memory.

IN MY OWN recollection was the spectacle in 1941 when Wendell Willkie was to be fed to the lions, the lions in this instance being isolationist senators wreaking vengeance on him for supporting Franklin Roosevelt's policy of aiding the beleaguered Allies. The Senate Caucus Room then, as today, was packed to the rafters. Willkie made the headlines by dismissing as "campaign oratory" what he had said in the 1940 campaign about staying out of foreign wars.

The greatest spectacle in recent times was the Army-McCarthy set-to. That was followed on television with the same fascination as Watergate. Joe McCarthy, the brash street fighter from Wisconsin, was out to get the top-brass civilian and military. CBS is shrewdly doing a replay of that big show.

AT THIS STAGE the fascination with Watergate seems a national obsession. On the first floor of the Senate Office Building long lines wait for admission to the Caucus Room. Under the careful scrutiny of guards who have searched purses and brief cases for concealed weapons the lines snake up the marble staircase. It will be a long wait, since once inside the lucky few stay put.

Outside in Washington's steamy heat the taxi driver has his car radio tuned to the hearing. "I listen to every minute of it," he says. "I guess that fellow Mitchell's going to be on all week and when he's finished we won't know any more than when he started."

WHAT IS SURPRISING about the obsession is that most of the performers are so predictable. One could be sure, as Stewart Alsop put it in a cogent column, that John W. Dean 3d would weave his sticky spider's web around the President. Mitchell was predictable as a calculating, highly successful lawyer with a faltering memory. That was just how he appeared, his rotund monotone putting a damper of dullness on his testimony.

Passing the rear of the White House there is a long line of vacationers dressed in abbreviated summer costumes waiting to get in for a glimpse of the public rooms. The line reaches back around the Executive Office Building. These patient families, many of them with small children, want to see the President's house — they want to see where their President lives.

WE WILL SURVIVE this latest scandal presented as a spectacle, the optimists believe, as we survived those other spectacles. After all, out of the Pecora investigation into the banking and stock scandals of the booming '20s came the laws governing security transactions and the Securities and Exchange Commission. The televised hearings helped to end McCarthy and McCarthyism.

At the present stage it is difficult, if not impossible, to see how Watergate will end. The pervasive feeling in this capital is one of drift and uncertainty.

Downtown Plan Is Hushed Up; It's As Dead As A Dodo Bird

How long has it been since anyone has dared to mention Novato's big dodo bird? By that we refer to the Novato Downtown Plan. It is dead or extinct, isn't it?

It was conceived at a cost of $45,317 of which $30,207 was put up by the federal government under a "701" grant and the citizens of Novato put up the other $15,110.

At the time of its adoption in 1970, Sedway and Cook had planned for a major shopping center on the almost-landlocked Pinheiro Ranch, thus giving the owners a free hand to hold out for almost any amount of money they wanted for the land.

CLAUDE GRUEN of Arthur Little Co., financial consultant, pleaded with a gathering of civic leaders to give the Pinheiro plan a chance. He said that if it did not work, however, to change to the crossroads at Highway 101 and 37, or San Marin East. He said not to wait too long on the Pinheiro development. At the same meeting, he pointed out that across the bay, Richmond had spent millions on urban development and then voted to move the location of the business district to another site.

In the intervening time, Novato has spent a lot of money fixing Vallejo Avenue to feed traffic into the site. In doing this, the islands put in the center of the street have become a traffic hazard for residents backing out of their driveways.

SO FAR NO ONE has come forward with anything workable or the finances for the Pinheiro site. Many applications for businesses were turned down because they did not conform to the plan.

A few months ago, a group of businessmen said that they did not like the plan and that it was a hindrance to the development of the business district and not a help.

About that time some unofficial word must have gone around city hall to hide the copies of the plan and not mention it above a whisper where it could be heard outside the hallowed walls of the administration building.

Luckily the state furnished a diversion. It required master plans. It named all the elements that it wanted in these master plans. This took up so much official time that the proposed changing the site of the shopping center in the downtown master plan was forgotten.

Now that Novato has its master or general plan, complete with text, the first amendment or change has been proposed for it. When will that document be placed in mothballs so something else can be studied?

ONE OF THE interesting parts of the general plan is the noise element. It goes into great specifics on residential construction near freeways, railroads and airports.

Sure, there is some noise from these means of transportation. Jet planes have been a part of the Novato scene for many years. The occasional whistle of an approaching train actually brings a touch of nostalgia. Trucks and some cars do make noise on a freeway.

Nothing was said, however of some of the worst noise offenders in a residential area. Have you ever had your ears pierced by the roar of a motorcycle being revved up or taking off at a high rate of acceleration? How about the effect of a hot-rodder gunning his motor? How about some neighbor playing rock and roll music so hard your head rocks and rolls with the sound?

These things can be as bad or worse because of their proximity than the major sources of noise.

It could start in such places as the Novato schools.

At the board meeting last week, it was noticed that the clock in the Novato High School lecture room was five minutes slow.

A school official said that most of the clocks in the Novato schools were set five minutes slow.

Why?

So that if students come in late, they do not know it, and it is not down against them.

Could that be called "Dishonesty is the best policy"?

Marin City Official Is Arrested

The vice chairman of the Marin City Council has been arrested on suspicion of slugging a Corte Madera woman with a telephone receiver, sheriff's deputies reported.

Nesbit D. Crutchfield, 33, of 16 Buckelew Street, was booked into county jail Sunday on suspicion of assault and battery, but was later released on his promise to appear in Marin Municipal Court Thursday.

Crutchfield is accused of hitting Carolyn F. Williams, age unknown, of 106 Redwood Avenue, after a meeting of the Soul Fashion Troupe at Crutchfield's home at about 5:10 p.m.

The woman said Crutchfield hit her with a phone receiver, then slugged her with his hand, knocking her to the floor, deputies reported.

She and Crutchfield had been embroiled in an argument over the group's finances, according to officers, and she said he hit her after she refused to sign over a sum of money.

Crutchfield was appointed to the council — which represents tenants in public housing in Marin City — nine months ago, replacing Royce McLemore.

He also is coordinator of the Marin City Employment Service, a privately-funded agency. He has been at that post two-and-one-half years.

Crutchfield called the dispute "an internal political thing" but declined to be specific.

Strange Assortment Of Facts From Watergate Hearings

WASHINGTON — While all the facts in the Watergate have not come out yet, it is time to sum up what the country knows so far about this fascinating affair.

It cost American Airlines $100,000 to fly Herbert Kalmbach from New York to Washington.

John Mitchell, who told the country to "judge us by what we do, not what we say," can't remember what he did.

The only person in the Nixon administration whom the country still believes is Julie Eisenhower.

NO ONE APPROVED of G. Gordon Liddy's plan to break into the Democratic Party headquarters. He did it on his own, against the protests of everyone in the White House and the Committee for the Re-Election of the President.

The best time to go to the bathroom when watching the Watergate Senate hearings is when Sen. Joseph Montoya is questioning the witness.

The only person in the Watergate affair who doesn't have a good lawyer is the President of the United States.

If you commit a crime involving the administration, the first thing you should ask for is immunity.

John Ehrlichman's favorite hobby was recording the conversations of people who came to his office.

E. HOWARD HUNT has a thing about red wigs.

The CIA does not launder money in Mexico.

The biggest problem the Nixon administration faced in the first four years was how to prevent an "enemy" from eating dinner at the White House.

If Charles Colson didn't like you, you could expect an audit by IRS.

The White House did not earn interest on the $350,000 kept in H. R. Haldeman's safe.

HAD THE PRESIDENT known what was going on in regard to the Watergate, according to John Mitchell, he would have taken action and would have lost the election.

Sen. Howard Baker, as far as the American housewife is concerned, is the "cutest" member of the Ervin committee.

When people commit a burglary for a political party, their lawyers' fees should be paid in cash and their families should be taken care of, for "humanitarian" reasons.

Men who have short hair and wear coats and ties are capable of lying.

IF THE PRESIDENT hadn't maintained three White Houses, he would have probably found out about the Watergate.

The two favorite phrases to come out of the Watergate hearings are "to the best of my recollection" and "at that point in time."

Nixon Medallion Is Selling Well

MELROSE, Mass. (UPI) — For $45, a Massachusetts firm is selling a Watergate commemorative silver medallion that depicts President Nixon in the three poses of "See no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil."

Edward J. Aleo said his company, E.J. Aleo & Co., sold about 150 of the medallions in the first day of mail order sales yesterday.

The medal—two inches by three inches, and an eighth of an inch thick—portrays the President blocking his eyes, ears and mouth. Aleo said his wife, Louise, designed it.

He said he conceived the idea about two months ago when watching three reporters talking about Watergate on television.

Plans For Two Subdivisions Approved By Petaluma Council

The Petaluma City Council last night approved two new subdivision plans and agreed to locate a new park at Casa Grande Junior-Senior High School to serve both developments.

Marino Crinella received approval of tentative map plans for the 100-unit Sunny Hills subdivision north of the school while Valley Green Co. received approval for 25 houses west of the school.

The planning commission had recommended the council require Valley Green to set aside six building lots that could someday be part of a neighborhood park fronting on South McDowell Boulevard.

The council agreed, however, the park would be of better service if it were nearer the school site. City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said the Petaluma School District has already shown an interest in sharing some of its 65-acre campus for a city park.

Both developments had previously been approved by the residential allotment board and were given permission to build in 1973-74 under the building limitation of 500 units per year.

The Petaluma City Council also:

POLLUTION — Approved a resolution urging the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors not to expand burning privileges in the northern part of the county. Councilmen complained it would foul south county air where no burning is permitted.

WATER RATES — Rescinded its plans for lower summer water rates after receiving complaints from Santa Rosa and North Marin Water District that it would encourage too much water use.

SEWER LINE — Awarded a construction contract of $16,740 to Soiland Construction Co. of Novato to extend the sewer main on Frates Road. Costs will be paid by property owners.

APPOINTMENTS — Met in closed session to consider appointments to various city commission.

CONNECTIONS — Delayed two requests from county residents for connections to city sewers pending further planning commission study.

MEETING — Adjourned to the next regular meeting on Aug. 6 at 7:30 p.m.

Americans Buy Cycles

Americans are discovering the joys of bicycling. Last year, more bikes than cars were sold in the U.S. for the first time since World War I. In just over 100 years, the bicycle has evolved from the French velocipede, or "bone-shaker" as critics called it, with its wooden frame and iron tires, into today's modern multi-geared machine with its sleek tubular frame and rubber tires. The first machine mass produced for personal transportation, the bicycle uses energy more efficiently than any other means of transportation. It could play an important part in solving the energy, congestion, and pollution problems associated with the automobile.

Luckily the state furnished a diversion. It required master plans. It named all the elements that it wanted in these master plans. This took up so much official time that the proposed changing the site of the shopping center in the downtown master plan was forgotten.

Now that Novato has its master or general plan, complete with text, the first amendment or change has been proposed for it. When will that document be placed in mothballs so something else can be studied?

ONE OF THE interesting parts of the general plan is the noise element. It goes into great specifics on residential construction near freeways, railroads and airports.

Sure, there is some noise from these means of transportation. Jet planes have been a part of the Novato scene for many years. The occasional whistle of an approaching train actually brings a touch of nostalgia. Trucks and some cars do make noise on a freeway.

Nothing was said, however of some of the worst noise offenders in a residential area. Have you ever had your ears pierced by the roar of a motorcycle being revved up or taking off at a high rate of acceleration? How about the effect of a hot-rodder gunning his motor? How about some neighbor playing rock and roll music so hard your head rocks and rolls with the sound?

These things can be as bad or worse because of their proximity than the major sources of noise.

It could start in such places as the Novato schools.

At the board meeting last week, it was noticed that the clock in the Novato High School lecture room was five minutes slow.

A school official said that most of the clocks in the Novato schools were set five minutes slow.

Why?

So that if students come in late, they do not know it, and it is not down against them.

Could that be called "Dishonesty is the best policy"?

Marin City Official Is Arrested

The vice chairman of the Marin City Council has been arrested on suspicion of slugging a Corte Madera woman with a telephone receiver, sheriff's deputies reported.

Nesbit D. Crutchfield, 33, of 16 Buckelew Street, was booked into county jail Sunday on suspicion of assault and battery, but was later released on his promise to appear in Marin Municipal Court Thursday.

Crutchfield is accused of hitting Carolyn F. Williams, age unknown, of 106 Redwood Avenue, after a meeting of the Soul Fashion Troupe at Crutchfield's home at about 5:10 p.m.

The woman said Crutchfield hit her with a phone receiver, then slugged her with his hand, knocking her to the floor, deputies reported.

She and Crutchfield had been embroiled in an argument over the group's finances, according to officers, and she said he hit her after she refused to sign over a sum of money.

Crutchfield was appointed to the council — which represents tenants in public housing in Marin City — nine months ago, replacing Royce McLemore.

He also is coordinator of the Marin City Employment Service, a privately-funded agency. He has been at that post two-and-one-half years.

Crutchfield called the dispute "an internal political thing" but declined to be specific.

Strange Assortment Of Facts From Watergate Hearings

WASHINGTON — While all the facts in the Watergate have not come out yet, it is time to sum up what the country knows so far about this fascinating affair.

The average cost of a White House aide's honeymoon is $4,800.

It cost American Airlines $100,000 to fly Herbert Kalmbach from New York to Washington.

John Mitchell, who told the country to "judge us by what we do, not what we say," can't remember what he did.

The only person in the Nixon administration whom the country still believes is Julie Eisenhower.

NO ONE APPROVED of G. Gordon Liddy's plan to break into the Democratic Party headquarters. He did it on his own, against the protests of everyone in the White House and the Committee for the Re-Election of the President.

The best time to go to the bathroom when watching the Watergate Senate hearings is when Sen. Joseph Montoya is questioning the witness.

No one talked to the President of the United States from June 17, 1972, until March 22, 1973, about his own political campaign.

The only person in the Watergate affair who doesn't have a good lawyer is the President of the United States.

If you commit a crime involving the administration, the first thing you should ask for is immunity.

John Ehrlichman's favorite hobby was recording the conversations of people who came to his office.

E. HOWARD HUNT has a thing about red wigs.

The CIA does not launder money in Mexico.

The biggest problem the Nixon administration faced in the first four years was how to prevent an "enemy" from eating dinner at the White House.

If Charles Colson didn't like you, you could expect an audit by IRS.

The White House did not earn interest on the $350,000 kept in H. R. Haldeman's safe.

HAD THE PRESIDENT known what was going on in regard to the Watergate, according to John Mitchell, he would have taken action and would have lost the election.

Sen. Howard Baker, as far as the American housewife is concerned, is the "cutest" member of the Ervin committee.

When people commit a burglary for a political party, their lawyers' fees should be paid in cash and their families should be taken care of, for "humanitarian" reasons.

Men who have short hair and wear coats and ties are capable of lying.

IF THE PRESIDENT hadn't maintained three White Houses, he would have probably found out about the Watergate.

The two favorite phrases to come out of the Watergate hearings are "to the best of my recollection" and "at that point in time."

Nixon Medallion Is Selling Well

MELROSE, Mass. (UPI) — For $45, a Massachusetts firm is selling a Watergate commemorative silver medallion that depicts President Nixon in the three poses of "See no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil."

Edward J. Aleo said his company, E.J. Aleo & Co., sold about 150 of the medallions in the first day of mail order sales yesterday.

The medal—two inches by three inches, and an eighth of an inch thick—portrays the President blocking his eyes, ears and mouth. Aleo said his wife, Louise, designed it.

He said he conceived the idea about two months ago when watching three reporters talking about Watergate on television.

Plans For Two Subdivisions Approved By Petaluma Council

The Petaluma City Council last night approved two new subdivision plans and agreed to locate a new park at Casa Grande Junior-Senior High School to serve both developments.

Marino Crinella received approval of tentative map plans for the 100-unit Sunny Hills subdivision north of the school while Valley Green Co. received approval for 25 houses west of the school.

The planning commission had recommended the council require Valley Green to set aside six building lots that could someday be part of a neighborhood park fronting on South McDowell Boulevard.

The council agreed, however, the park would be of better service if it were nearer the school site. City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said the Petaluma School District has already shown an interest in sharing some of its 65-acre campus for a city park.

Both developments had previously been approved by the residential allotment board and were given permission to build in 1973-74 under the building limitation of 500 units per year.

The Petaluma City Council also:

POLLUTION — Approved a resolution urging the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors not to expand burning privileges in the northern part of the county. Councilmen complained it would foul south county air where no burning is permitted.

WATER RATES — Rescinded its plans for lower summer water rates after receiving complaints from Santa Rosa and North Marin Water District that it would encourage too much water use.

SEWER LINE — Awarded a construction contract of $16,740 to Soiland Construction Co. of Novato to extend the sewer main on Frates Road. Costs will be paid by property owners.

APPOINTMENTS — Met in closed session to consider appointments to various city commission.

CONNECTIONS — Delayed two requests from county residents for connections to city sewers pending further planning commission study.

MEETING — Adjourned to the next regular meeting on Aug. 6 at 7:30 p.m.

Americans Buy Cycles

Americans are discovering the joys of bicycling. Last year, more bikes than cars were sold in the U.S. for the first time since World War I. In just over 100 years, the bicycle has evolved from the French velocipede, or "bone-shaker" as critics called it, with its wooden frame and iron tires, into today's modern multi-geared machine with its sleek tubular frame and rubber tires. The first machine mass produced for personal transportation, the bicycle uses energy more efficiently than any other means of transportation. It could play an important part in solving the energy, congestion, and pollution problems associated with the automobile.

Hillside Density Controls Sidetracked In Larkspur

A graph, which zigged when it should have zagged, last night prevented the Larkspur Planning Commission from recommending tough new controls on hillside density to the city council.

Faced with a curve which would have allowed only half as many apartments on a parcel sloping 12.5 per cent as on a similar lot of 10 per cent slope, the commission ordered some relief for property owners.

A third public hearing to consider revised density requirements was set for next Tuesday to allow planning director John A. Roberto to draw up a new graph.

The commission did not give him specific numbers to work with, but gave him suggestions on the shape of the new graph. The one presented last night would have very heavily affected the density of lands of 10 to 20 per cent slope, but would have had increasingly less effect as the slope increased.

For example, in a multiple residential zone, 2,000 square feet per unit would have been required at 10 per cent while more than 4,750 square feet would be required at 15 per cent.

But between, 25 and 30 per cent, the square feet needed per unit would have risen only 1,000.

The commission agreed with Norman T. Gilroy, planner for TI Properties Inc., that the curve should reduce density more slowly in the 10 to 20 per cent slope range and more rapidly in the steeper areas. TI properties has 75 acres of multiple residential land now zoned for 1,440 apartments on the San Quentin Peninsula.

It contains a complicated formula for computing slope that would govern the density allowed in the hills. It further specifies that at least 25 per cent of affected lots be left open and requires owners, who want to build on slopes of over 25 per cent or within 100 vertical feet of a ridgeline, to obtain use permits.

In contrast to the first hearing, which drew more than 90 persons last week, the meeting last night drew only 20 spectators for the mostly mathematical discussion.

However, in addition to Gilroy, representatives of two other large landholders appeared to complain about the restrictions in the proposed ordinance.

Wallace S. Myers, attorney for the Tiscornia estate, said, "Right next to Larkspur is some 80,000 acres of open space. I challenge the need for open space in Larkspur. I don't believe you need it."

He said the ordinance would reduce the number of units that can be built on the multiple residential land in the estate from 125 to 73 at a cost of $208,000.

Architect Richard H. Olmsted, speaking for the Pell Development Co., said the ordinance would have cut density allowed on the company's steep five-acre site from 114 units to 14. "Once you hit 10 per cent, you really get it in the teeth," he said.

Charles Brousse of the Town Meeting Group countered that property ownership is speculation and noted courts have consistently upheld the right of cities to zone.

Commissioners, while agreeing with Brousse, apparently felt the proposed densities were too harsh on landowners. "When the chart came out, I was appalled by what I saw," Otto Hoefler said.

Roberto said the graph reflected the city policy of tying density of hilly multiple residential lots to the density allowed in single family zones in the hills.

He called the commission's wish to be less harsh on lots with slopes just above 10 per cent "a whole new premise."

Gilroy said it "doesn't make sense" to drop density 2.5 times between 10 per cent slope and 15 per cent slope. He said the street outside the city hall sloped 15 per cent.

Cambodia Orders Draft; Bombing Error Hurts 14 Besieged Troops

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — U.S. warplanes aiding Cambodian troops defend the approaches to Phnom Penh wounded 14 government troops today in a mistake bombing of their positions five miles from the city's Pochentong Airport, field reports said.

The government announced the introduction of compulsory military service for the first time in the three-year-old war. Informed military sources said the action was taken a month before the scheduled U.S. bombing halt because of heavy casualties taken around Phnom Penh during the current Communist offensives.

"The problem is to find men to replace the casualties," the military sources said. "It is a matter of fleshing out the ranks, finding the men for the material not the material for the men."

In the accidental bombing incident, field reporters said another six paratroopers were wounded by heavy rebel fire when they raced in with armored personnel carriers to evacuate the wounded from the embattled position, which had been surrounded for three days.

A field reporter who accompanied the rescue team said American 700-and 500-pound bombs crashed close to the encircled position, and insurgents troops could be seen running "camouflaged like dozens of bushes" from the path of the rescuers.

There were heavy American bombing raids during the night, with fighting reported in a radius 10 miles north and south of the city. To the north, government troops retreated half a mile from one of three villages defending the approaches to Phnom Basset, a hill frequently used by Communist troops to launch rockets on the capital—11 miles away by road.

Field reporters said hundreds of refugees fled the area to avoid the crossfire. U.S. bombers could be heard striking in support of government troops still occupying Phnom Basset and an encircled position at a railroad town 1.5 miles west of the hill after sunset.

Heavy U.S. bombing strikes by F111s, F4 phantoms and A7 Corsairs were also reported around Highways 4 and 5, with bombers accompanying a convoy on Highway 5 to the western provinces. However by nightfall there was no news as to whether the convoy had reached its destination.

Announcements said Cambodia also would establish a council of war and appoint a chief of staff to coordinate relations between the army and the government.

The draft will require all men between the ages of 18 and 35 to serve in the army or carry a draft registration card.

The decision to introduce the draft came yesterday during a meeting of the ruling High Political Council, which consists of President Lon Nol, Prime Minister In Tam and members Sisowath Sirik Matak and Cheng Heng.

Up to now, Cambodia has fought only with volunteers, but heavy casualties and desertions seriously depleted army units.

There are now about 230,000 men in the army, including about 40,000 "phantom" troops —the non-existent soldiers that army commanders added to unit rolls in order to gain larger payrolls. The government has tried to cut the number of these non-existent troops, but with little success.

Pressing: A Secret to Successful Sewing

The difference between a perfectly finished garment and an amateur one may be as simple as pressing. Pressing is done on a concentrated area by lifting up and setting down the iron – rather than sliding and gliding it over the entire surface. Press the wrong side of the fabric wherever possible for best results. A press cloth is a must if the right side has to be pressed! Be sure you press with the straight grain and in the direction you've stitched to avoid pulling and stretching the fabric out of shape.

PRESS MITT

TAILOR'S HAM

Press as you sew – even if it does take you away from the sewing machine. Darts, seams and style lines should be pressed before they are intersected with other seams; remove basting stitches and pins before pressing to avoid marring your fabric; and fit and alter your garment before pressing sharp creases. Your fabric is the key factor in the techniques of pressing. How a fabric is made and the fiber it is made of will determine how to press it. On a sizeable scrap, test the fabric's reaction to dry heat and steam, direct and indirect pressing and what degree of pressure is necessary to obtain the desired results. A bulky wool fabric will need more moisture and pressure than a lightweight wool. Woven fabrics respond more readily to pressure than knits. Fabrics with nap should be steamed with as little pressure as possible. A needleboard and clothes brush are important equipment for these fabrics. Some fabrics may water spot, therefore, direct steam should be avoided. Synthetic fabrics cannot tolerate too high a temperature.

For a professional pressing job, several pieces of equipment are necessary. Each serves its own purpose and will help you achieve the finish you desire.

IRON: a combination steam and dry iron with a wide temperature range is most practical for all types of fabrics. Steam vents should be at the tip of the soleplate to assure concentrated steam wherever needed. It should be clean and smooth at all times.

IRONING BOARD: should be level, sturdy and adjustable. A silicone treated cover over a substantial amount of padding will prevent scorching and sticking. It should be clean and lie flat so you won't press dirt, wrinkles or bumpy impressions onto your garment.

PRESS CLOTHS: choose one that corresponds to your fabric's weight – as similar to it as possible. Several layers of cheese cloth make an ideal press cloth. Since you can see through it, it is great for detailed areas. For general pressing, a cloth made of heavy cotton and wool should be on hand at all times. Place it on top of your fabric or garment to avoid the direct heat and pressure of the iron. It protects your fabric from becoming over-pressed and shiny. A press cloth can also be purchased to cover the soleplate of your iron.
